Astrological Predictions

COMMENT: In the August 6th edition of the Sun, I made the following statement, which I quote, "Within the next year, the planet Neptune will move into the sign of Sagittarius, where it will remain for some time. The sign of Sagittarius is known to rule: science, religion, foreign travel (this could have included any type of long distance travel as any astrologer knows) and metaphysical or esoteric philosophies." Later in the article, I also stated "weird and unexplainable things will happen in relationship to foreign travel, especially in relationship to travel over water. There will possibly be things like ships and planes disappearing."

On a local radio show, about six weeks ago, I stated that the Middle East would become "explosive" and that the war there would get into high gear. On that same radio station I stated that I thought there would be an earthquake around the twenty-eighth of August, (or was it July? I do not normally keep track).

I review these things for only one reason. The Middle East situation did become considerably worse, even though there was a strong peace effort at that very time. I certainly admit that I thought I had been wrong. I wish I had been! I could not have been expected to know just how the disappearance of the airplanes would come about. The earthquake happened just as I timed it also.

Now for the reason behind all this. One of our local newspapers recently ran an article about the lost continent of Atlantis. The author of the article implied that anyone who believed that there ever was a place called Atlantis could just possibly be a fool. He placed the continent, or island as he called it, in the Mediterranean Sea.

When I stated in this column, back in August, that the movement of Neptune into the sign of Sagittarius would bring about weird and unexplainable things, I did not have the courage, then, to state what I feel one of the weird things will be. Now, in view of this newspaper article I feel that I would like to defend us "fools".

If Atlantis existed, as Plato stated that it did, it has been submerged for about ten thousand years. To assume that it could rise out of the ocean at this time would be incredible. This is, however, just what is going to happen. I do not say that it could, or that it might, but that I feel certain it will. I do not suggest that there will be a rising of thousands of foot mountains or that we will find a gateway with the inscription "This is Atlantis" written on it but there will be a land rise at least to water level. It could, and I think it will, interfere with shipping where there has been "deep waters" before. Needless to say this will bring about a revolution in many areas of our lives. There will be many who will remain just as fast asleep as they are now.

To begin with, it is foolish to look for Atlantis in the Mediterranean, as the newspaper writer did. Plato insisted that Atlantis was larger than Asia Minor. There is not enough room for an island in the Mediterranean, the size of the whole of Asia Minor.

The late Mr. Edgar Cayce stated that the islands of Atlantis were located in the Atlantic Ocean, and that they could begin to rise between the years 68 or 69. I know that Mr. Cayce continues to be a controversial figure, but regardless of one's beliefs there is much which cannot be dismissed or denied.

In December of 1969, the month I arrived at the Beach, there was an article in Life magazine, pictures and all, showing there was a land mass rising in the Atlantic, and that there appeared to be some kind of structure visible from the air. There has been some kind of "security lid" placed on the area by the British and no land developments have been forthcoming. Not surprising under the circumstances.

As I check my ephemeris for the planets places at that time I find that on January 3rd, 1970, the planet Neptune was located in 0 degrees and a few minutes of the sign of Sagittarius. Right on schedule.

In making a prediction like this I am not as foolish as it may seem at this time. There is a lot of evidence to back up my belief that there will be a land mass rise in the Atlantic and that it will occur during the time Neptune is in the sign of Sagittarius. To begin with, in 1960 or thereabout, a book was published by the Theosophical Society in India which was a series of letters written by two Tibetan Lamas to one Mr. A. P. Sinnet. In these letters one of the writers stated that one of the first land areas that would "go" would be England. They state that there has always been sinking and rising of land masses. That England is sinking cannot be questioned. Furthermore, there is a great deal of land changes going on around the globe. There are land areas in the Mediterranean that have risen 1500 feet in the last twenty years. That is a tremendous amount of movement, and it would appear that this sort of thing has a snowball effect.

The land area around the state of Georgia is sinking, slowly to be sure, but this sort of thing can be accelerated quite quickly. Just a few years ago I witnessed, over Los Angeles television, the rising and sinking of an island several miles long in the South Pacific. I thought it very strange that they just happened to have a ship and camera over there at the right time.

In addition to this prediction, I would like to make another in reference to long distance travel. Long distance travel could involve a trip to the moon, could it not? Neptune's movement into the sign of Sagittarius will bring about some startling revelations with regards to this as well. In fact, there is some considerable evidence that there has already been some rather strange things going on in our space program. Statements have been made by our astronauts to the effect that there were things flying about up there and that there was a lot of activity going on in one of the craters on the moon! Activity going on in a crater, on the dead and lifeless moon! Incredible! But is the moon dead? It may interest you to know that our scientists have been amazed to find that some plant life planted in moon soil is growing at an extremely rapid rate compared to the norm. Interesting, is it not?

Recent information, coming to me from several sources indi-

Inlet Opening Finished

Virginia Beach Erosion Commission spokesman Worth Morse indicated work has been completed on opening the Rudee Inlet channel.

Morse said the channel has now been opened "all the way out, 180 feet wide and 10 feet deep, from the bulk head at the Lighthouse Restaurant to the seaward end of the jetty." Morse also indicated plans called for work to begin today on dredging the sand trap to a depth of 18 feet, and he hoped to have this project completed within 46 working days, as long as weather permits dredging operations.

Rally Is Planned Oct 12

Two of the three senatorial candidates--Democrat George Rawlings and Republican Ray Garland--have accepted an invitation to speak at a rally here October 12.

Independent Harry Byrd, Jr. had neither accepted or refused by Wednesday morning.

The rally will be sponsored by the 61-league Virginia Beach Council of Civic Leagues in conjunction with the League of Women Voters and the Education Association of Norfolk.

The event is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Bayside Junior High School.

Chamber Endorses Revisions

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has formally endorsed the proposed revision of Virginia's Constitution that will be voted on November 3.

The Chamber also agreed to offer its wholehearted support to the present effort of explaining the constitutional changes to voters.

James P. Sadler, president, said that "the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce felt that the constitutional changes, written during the 1969 and 1970 sessions of the General Assembly, created a workable, fundamental document containing governmental policy which will serve well the needs of Virginia, the citizens of Virginia Beach and all Virginians."

Sadler also said that "the Chamber will work to the ultimate goal of insuring passage of all four questions that will be presented on the November 3, 1970 ballot."

The Chamber's position was approved by the Board of Directors at a meeting held September 22 at the Virginia Electric and Power Company Building on First Colonial Road.

Body in Bay Identified As Cherry

The body of Glen Francis Cherry Portsmouth was recovered from Chesapeake Bay Wednesday morning by the U.S. Coast Guard cutter "Reliance".

Cherry, 33, was reported missing Saturday following the capsizing of a 16-foot outboard boat at a point approximately one mile east of the first island of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

Three other men who were in the boat with Cherry at the time of the capsizing were rescued by a private boat.

The "Reliance" reportedly recovered the body about six miles offshore about two miles west of the bridge-tunnel, while the 210-foot cutter was on a training cruise. The body was brought ashore at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base and taken to the State Medical Examiners office in Norfolk.

Officials said positive identification of Cherry's body was made by relatives.

Mayor signs first one

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes signs his first proclamation designating the week of Oct. 4-10 as Fire Prevention Week in Virginia Beach. Milton T. Holland, Chief Fire Investigator for the City, witnesses the signing of the proclamation.

Drug 'Pusher' Gets 10 Years

What is believed to be the heaviest sentence ever rendered by a Virginia Beach court for a conviction of a violation of state drug abuse laws was handed down by a Circuit Court jury.

Thomas Roy Hazelwood was sentenced to 10 years in prison following his conviction of the charge of the sale of narcotics to a minor.

The jury deliberated evidence presented during Hazelwood's trial for only 12 minutes before returning a verdict of guilty and recommending a 10-year prison sentence.

Police arrested Hazelwood, 24, of the 2500 block of Oceano Avenue, on the night of May 22 charging him with the sale of hashish to a minor. Hazelwood entered a plea of not guilty.

As the trial began defense attorney John Parker requested a trial by the court, while Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans requested a trial by jury. Judge George Vakos ruled in favor of Evans' request.

Testimony during the trial indicated that Hazelwood allegedly sold a gram of hashish to the minor on the night of May 22 in the London Bridge area.

The minor, according to testimony, had previously agreed to assist Virginia Beach police in their investigation of drug movements after being introduced to Hazelwood through an unidentified third party.

Trial testimony indicated the minor had been supplied with a $10 bill, the serial number of which had been recorded by police for the purpose of purchasing the hashish.

The minor testified that following the "buy" he turned the hashish over to police, and identified Hazelwood as the person who had sold it to him. Police arrested Hazelwood and found him to be in possession of the $10 bill bearing the recorded serial number.

When the jury returned their verdict in the case defense attorney Parker made motions to set aside the verdict and set a new trial.

Judge Vakos promptly denied both motions and pronounced sentence as recommended by the jury.

When questioned as to why he requested a trial by jury Commonwealth's Attorney Evans said "one of the reasons for the request was to involve the public through hearing the case, because I feel the public should become involved in this drug problem." He is also awaiting further court proceedings on three charges of possession of narcotics, consisting of two counts of possession of opium and one count of possession of hashish.

Former Secretary of Interior Udall Speaks on Behalf of Rawlings

By HOWARD SWINDLE

Virginia Democrats, launching what they hope will be the "Year of the Donkey" in state politics, rallied at the Lake Wright Motel Saturday with some out-of-state support for their state of candidates.

Stewart L. Udall, secretary of the interior from 1960 through 1968 in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, was on hand to predict the success of the Democratic Party in Virginia.

"I foresee the end of the Byrd dynasty," Udall told newsmen before the Demo Dinner '70. He said the time was right for a candidate such as George Rawlings Jr. Rawlings was chosen to carry the Democrat's standard after Sen. Harry Byrd Jr. bolted the party to run as an independent.

Attending the banquet were the Democratic hopefuls for all 10 districts. The kickoff dinner was sponsored by the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia.

Udall, an Arizona congressman who said he declined to run for the senate this year, said the Democratic Party nationwide "isn't in as much disarray as some people would like to think."

Looking ahead to the next presidential race, Udall said he believes Kennedy is definitely out in '72, but termed him a "possible" candidate in '76.

"Sen. Muskie would be nominated if the convention were held today," the former interior secretary said. Terming Vice President Agnew's tactics "ham and games," Udall said he won't be a major influence in the next election.

Planner Says of Planning Understanding Is What's Important

By JAMES TURNER

The Kempsville Development Plan may signal a new type of urban planning if it's approved by City Council Oct. 29, but not because it is based in a specific area of the city.

"It's similar to other studies that will be made in the future in the respect that the Kempsville Borough is partly urbanized, has a fringe area of urbanization, and has agricultural development areas," said Timothy E. Barrow, assistant director of planning.

"It is also a result of the experience we gain from the four other development plans. Now we've begun to develop an understanding of city-wide growth," he said.

But what makes this plan unique is that a new set of criteria have been applied to the borough which is on the southwest portion of the city. "The fact is that we have new information we hadn't had available in the past," Barrow said.

"In the preceding development studies, information related to topography and natural features was used only as a secondary input to the planning process," the report reads.

But in this study, Barrow said, soil and drainage conditions, flood plain information, topographic features and other natural and environmental characteristics are being applied as primary input information.

"This is the best way to approach the plan because now we're getting an objective evaluation of what the land is capable of supporting and what it's best suited for," Barrow said. "Before the information was available, Barrow said the planning staff could only guess at what the best purposes for the land would be."

"Now we can tell you where the flood plain is and where the heaviest flooding is likely to occur. Now we can tell you what areas are suitable for density population growth and what areas won't support it, all backed up by scientific fact."

The areas designated for urban growth were chosen for because they were accessible to city water and sewer facilities, roadway facilities, or were in areas that could adequately use the city's urban services such as schools, police protection and fire services.

"We expect that the 14,000 people Kempsville will receive as new residents in the next five years will almost all be able to live in areas that are developed now or are being developed like College Park and Fairfield," Barrows said.

Thus, in planning the land's use, the planning department has designated development in two phases:

* Lands which are least suitable for development such as the intermediate flood plain, areas with marginal water and sewer services, all major drainage courses not included in the flood plain, and major conservation areas held in public control or ownership.

* Lands which are less suitable for development such as those which are unsuited and very low density suitable areas not served by central water and sewer, all private conservation areas or open space areas, and areas with very poorly drained soils.

In designating these areas, Barrow said the department hopes to see development of other areas first, then the less suitable areas, and finally the least suited areas for urbanization.

By the time developers and real estate people realize use of least suited areas, the city hopefully will have extended its

6-Month Residents May Register-But Voting Questionable

Virginia Beach residents who have lived here six months may register to vote in the November 3 election but it's still uncertain whether or not they will be able to cast their ballots.

With the registration books scheduled to close Saturday, General Registrar Mrs. Anne Cotton said she and her staff still don't know whether the 6-month residents will be allowed to vote.

The confusion came about when the State Board of Elections announced that a Federal court order instructed that residents of Virginia for six months or more, and who are otherwise qualified to vote, would be allowed to register. Virginia law previously required a one-year residency.

"The names of the short-term voters will not be put in the registration books, however, until a three-judge court makes a ruling on the constitutionality of the State's one-year law."

"Each of the new voters who register under this ruling will be told that we are not going to put their names in the registration books until we get the word here on what is going to take place," Mrs. Cotton said.

There is no way of telling how many new voters will be affected by this change. "It may be 15 or 1,500," Mrs. Cotton said—but it could mean chaos Saturday when the books close and again just before the November 3 election, providing the ruling is in by that time.

The books will remain open today through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the general registrar's office at Princess

(See "Registration" pg. 10)

Three Caribbean Cruises To Sail From Norfolk

Three cruises to the Caribbean are scheduled to sail from Norfolk this fall and winter. The T.S. HANSEATIC and SS NIEUW AMSTERDAM will leave for their "cruises" back to Norfolk, disembarking there on the 17th.

Both liners offer a variety of well-planned cuisine and courteous service in the traditional Continental manner. There are many activities on board these resort ships — games, dancing, cocktail parties, free dance lessons, masquerade parties, movies, sports and bridge tournaments, to mention only a few. Several nightspots are featured.

The T.S. HANSEATIC, a post-modern German cruise liner, will depart from Norfolk October 25, 1970, and return to Port Everglades November 6, 1970.

The SS NIEUW AMSTERDAM, a stately Dutch ship of European elegance and charm, will offer a post-holiday, 11-day cruise from Norfolk January 6, 1971, returning to Norfolk on January 17th, whereupon it leaves Norfolk the same day as the 50th Anniversary annual "Virginia Cruise", returning January 31st.

A unique feature for passengers of the January 6th cruise will be the opportunity to spend the last day and night of their with contrasting dance rhythms to suit every taste, and to top off the evening, there is the "nightowl" bar for that final nightcap.

Also on board, there are shops and boutiques which offer a great variety of gifts from different parts of the world, a drugstore as well as barber and beauty shops. For relaxation and exercise, there are saunas and swimming pools, both indoor and outdoor.

All three cruises will offer a variety of ports of call, including such fascinating ports as Jamaica, Grenada, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. The ships will also call at other enchanting islands which still retain much of their primitive charm such as St. Lucia, St. Martin and St. Barthelemy. Each port has its own unique characteristics. -- For those who want to try their hand at the "game of chance", there is Curacao and St. Martin, and for those who seek the excitement of tropical nights throbbing to the drumbeat of calypso music, there is Jamaica and the Bahamas. St. Lucia is renowned for its rugged beauty and St. Thomas for its beautiful beaches and duty-free shopping. Guadalupe for its excellent restaurants and creole cookery.

Further information on these cruises may be obtained through any local travel agent.

Enrollment up at TCC

As Tidewater Community College begins its third year of operation as a part of the State-wide system of Community Colleges, enrollments are expected to exceed 2,000.

Registration for day classes started on September 23rd and ran through last Friday.

Enrollment will conclude today with registration for evening classes all day and from 6 to 7 p.m.

Tidewater Community College has expanded rapidly, both in enrollments and curricula offerings since it was taken over by the State in 1966. At that time, its enrollment was 620 as compared to today's figure of 2,000.

This comparison serves to further highlight the urgent need for bringing into reality the proposed four-campus complex to meet the growing needs of our people in college transfer and technical training programs here in the four-city Tidewater area.

Of the new student enrollments at Tidewater, Portsmouth leads with 29%, with Norfolk in second place with 25%, while Virginia Beach and Chesapeake tie with 17% each. The remaining 12% come from Nansemond County, Isle of Wight, and other parts of the State.

In the Occupational-Technical Curricula areas, Business Management, Drafting & Design Technology, Secretarial Science and Data Processing are the most popular.

Two curricula being offered for the first time at the College, Data Processing (Computer Programming) and Nursing, have exceeded spaces available.

Liberace In Hampton

Liberace, the world renowned pianist and winner of six gold albums, will appear at the Hampton Roads Coliseum October 10 at 8:30 p.m. under sponsorship of WGH radio.

"Mr. Showmanship" has performed for the presidents, Queen Elizabeth, on television and in motion pictures. No two Liberace shows are ever the same. Each is created and inspired by the individual audience and because of this Liberace announces his own numbers.

The program at Hampton is expected to include the music of Chopin, Liszt, Tchaikovsky, Beethoven, George Gersting, Jerome Kern, Cole Porter, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Irving Berlin, Lerner and Loewe, Comden and Green, Rodgers and Hart, James Van Heusen, Julie Stein and some of Liberace's own compositions.

The exhibit will continue through November 2 at the gallery which is located in the big barn on Providence Road in College Park.

The show will include approximately 250 prints by members of the Virginia Professional Photographers Association as well as the efforts of the Norfolk Camera Club and the more recently formed Tidewater Photographic Society.

The types of photography on exhibit will be quite varied and should prove interesting and enjoyable. Scenics, portraits, editorials, fashion, and theater are some of the categories to be included in the show. These subjects will be highlighted through modern techniques of darkroom skill, which can be as diversified as the work of each individual photographer.

The Village Gallery is open daily from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m., Sunday 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Season tickets are available from Mrs. Richmond Fitzgerald, 1124 Ditchley Rd., Virginia Beach. They are $8 for adults and $3 for students. Single tickets may be purchased at the door.

Other concerts and artists are Grigory Sokolov, Jan. 31, and Grigory Sokolov, Jan. 31; he was first prize winner of the Tchaikovsky Competition in 1966, and Jose Sandoval, April 4, gifted young Mexican artist.

The Friends are asking for community support as they continue their efforts to bring quality music to the Virginia Beach area. They are a non-profit group.

Virginia Beach schools are above the national average in quality according to the results of a study released Monday night by the School Board during a presentation at Bayside Junior High School.

Using a new evaluation system, called "Indicators of Quality," to test classroom behavior, Virginia Beach schools were shown to be among the top seven elementary schools and the top five secondary schools in a sample of 96 school systems.

E. Bruce McGuire, director of elementary education, told more than 450 parents and city officials that results of the study were "quite favorable" but "also revealed areas for improvement."

McGuire said the study was conducted in March with impartial observers from the Chesapeake and Norfolk school systems. The observers, all educators, evaluated the classes in individualization, interpersonal regard, creativity and group activity.

School officials also pointed to Virginia Beach's standing in the nation using achievement tests as the measuring stick. "Virginia Beach exceeds the national level in grades one through seven by one to five months," McGuire told the group.

Virginia Beach sixth graders, for example, were found to be five months more advanced in academics than the average sixth grader, he said.

McGuire said a study was launched last year on a secondary level to determine Virginia Beach schools' effectiveness at teaching foreign languages. This study is still in effect, he said.

The dinner-presentation at the newly completed school was called to show Beach residents the quality of education in local schools and "to account for the vast outlay of tax dollars," school officials said.

League Picnic is October 11

The Lake Shores Civic League will hold a fall picnic October 11 from 1 to 4 p.m. at Lake Shores Picnic Area on Lake Shores Road at Oak Leaf Lane.

The Planning Committee in charge is headed by Jim Carney as general chairman. He is assisted by Ed Johnson, Neil Morris, Marty Mulderrig, Dick Hyde, Jim Chestnut and Bill George.

Cost is $1.50 per adult, children under 12 half price and pre-schoolers may attend free.

Morris Assists Commander

First classmen from Colorado and Virginia, have been named to lead the 4300-man Brigade of Midshipmen at the Naval Academy for the fall semester.

Michael R. Heconovich of Denver, Col. will serve as Brigade Commander through the weekend of the Army-Navy game (Nov. 28). Assisting him as Deputy Brigade Commander is Ernest L. Morris, Jr., of Virginia Beach.

Midshipman Morris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Morris of Castle Road. A graduate of Princess Anne High school, he was president of the Honor Society and lettered in football and baseball.

Young Artists' Work Displayed

Area residents will have a chance to enjoy the art work of Ann Woolard and several of her students of various ages, for the next several weeks, as they are displayed at Windsor Woods Library on South Plaza Trail.

Children with art on display are Robin Cody, Sharon Setser, Gail Wallace and Lisa Langlier. Also two besides Mrs. Woolard adults have art on exhibit. They are Anne Monahan and Barbara Winslow. A variety of art media was used in the paintings: water color, acrylic, tissue paper and water color and string. Mrs. Woolard has displayed her art in shows all over the United States and next planning to have a one-woman show in Boston.

Robin Cody, 12, painted this picture of two young fishermen.

Benefit Dance Set Oct. 10

The Tidewater Chapter of Parents Without Partners will hold a benefit dance October 10 from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the VFW Club in Ocean View. Proceeds will go into the chapter's children's fund.

Music will be provided by the Kemy Smith Group. A special invitation has been extended to former members and prospective members. Admission is $2 per person. Further information may be obtained from Sandy Wyda, 588-2915.

U.S. Air Force Airman First Class Percy A. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earline Phillips, Rudder Road, has arrived for duty at Yokota AB, Japan. The airman is a 1968 graduate of Union Kempsville High School.

Astro Advice

There are things going on in our space program that are difficult to explain. One is the fact that the Armstrong crew, or maybe the crew before them, heard celestial music. It's not funny. In the vicinity of the moon they heard the song "Fools rush in where Angels fear to tread" I know it is incredible, but it happened.

Neptune is a rather slow moving planet. It stays in each sign about 14 years. It first moved into the sign of Scorpio in the early part of 1956 and will move out of this sign later this year. Its passage through the sign of Scorpio, which rules sex and reproduction, brought about the "thalidomide" babies, the sexual revolution and as one of its last, dying acts, is bringing about the "Fem-Lib-Movement". Unfortunately there is not much good that can be said for the planet Neptune at this stage of man's development. It creates more confusion than anything else.

I do not want to predict the dates that these things will take place. This is almost an impossible task, but one day when computers are placed into service for astrological research, this will be possible. This has always been a source of delight for the non-believer because he feels that he can then dismiss the whole "foolishness" as he likes to call astrology. Why the resistance? A good question.

Address your questions to Astro-Advice, Virginia Beach Sun, P.O. Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451. All questions will be answered as space permits but must include date, time and place of birth.

Candidates Have Similar Goals

The League of Women Voters of Virginia sent questionnaires to the Congressional candidates similar to the ones sent to City Council candidates by the League of Women Voters of Norfolk-Virginia Beach earlier this year.

Voters in Virginia Beach will have three choices for the Senator: George C. Rawlings, Jr., Democrat; Ray L. Garland, Republican; and Harry Flood Byrd, Jr., Independent. Thomas N. Downing, First District representative, is running for re-election unopposed.

Rawlings, 48, from Fredericksburg, has been a practicing attorney since 1947 and has been a member of the House of Delegates since 1964. In 1966 he was the Democratic nominee for Congress.

In stating what he considers the national priorities for the next Congress, Rawlings listed "bringing some sense into the present strange economic situation," ending U. S. involvement in Southeast Asia, conservation and bettering education through high quality education for all, state-supplied free textbooks and uniform teacher pay scales.

In writing to achieve these priorities, Rawlings said that prices and interest rates should be rolled back, stronger diplomatic efforts made in the U. N. and the Paris Peace Talks to return prisoners of war from Hanoi, polluters should be fined. "We must remember the cost of not investing in better medical care, better education, clean cities, job training, an unpolluted environment, and move vigorously to improve these areas."

Garland, 38, of Roanoke, has an M.A. degree from the University of Virginia and has been admitted to candidacy for the Ph.D. there. He has served in the House of Delegates since 1968, has taught at Roanoke College and lectured at the University of Virginia.

According to Garland, the national priorities for the next Congress should be preserving America's institutions by protecting them from attacks by both the far left and the far right and raising the quality of life of the people.

To achieve these he said, "I hold that the best way to preserve and protect our institutions—is to make them work. The frustrations which he behind the rising tide of attacks on our institutions must be made to disappear, if the attacks and counter attacks of the extreme left and the extreme right are ever to stop. We must always place public interest above special interests. This is absolutely necessary to success in achieving environmental objectives."

Byrd, 55, of Winchester, served in the Virginia State Senate for 18 years before his appointment to the U.S. Senate in 1965. In 1966 he was elected for the term ending January, 1971. He is a member of the Armed Services Committee and the Finance Committee in the Senate.

His priorities and how to achieve them are as follows: "I believe that in dealing with war and threats of war, the United States must bend every effort to secure and maintain just peace. At the same time, I know that America must be militarily strong. At home, inflation eats into the worker's paycheck and the dollar the housewife spends at the supermarket. A major cause of inflation is excessive federal spending, and I am working to hold that spending down. We cannot solve our problems by ever-greater increased taxes. That would only further reduce the working man's pay and encourage irresponsible spending.

"The rising crime rate threatens everyone. We must take the handcuffs off the police and put them on the criminals. Our environment is imperiled on many fronts. I am dedicated to the preservation of our air, land and water resources.

"I do not pretend to have the answers to all the problems we face. But I hope my long experience in government will be helpful in dealing with them."

Downing, 51, of Newport News, has a law degree from the University of Virginia. His priorities are: ending the conflict in Vietnam, stabilizing the national economy and solving environmental problems.

NEW OFFICERS FOR CANCER SOCIETY—The Virginia Beach Chapter of the American Cancer Society fielded a new slate of candidates last Wednesday at a dinner at

Three New Managers Named

In preparation for the opening of three new area offices of Virginia National Bank, C.A. Cutchins, III, president, has announced the appointment of a manager for each.

The new Court Square Office located in the new Virginia Beach City Hall Complex which will be officially opened within the next few weeks, will be managed by Waldo F. Bornemann, assistant cashier. Bornemann until recently had been assigned to the Virginia Beach Office at 31st and Atlantic Avenue in the resort city.

The Industrial Park Office to be located at 3300 East Princess Anne Road in Norfolk will be headed by Cecil R. McCullar, who has been assistant manager at the Mid-town Office. Modification of the former Texaco Building to house the Industrial Park Office is presently underway. The building now houses VNB's Credit Card and Dealer Finance Departments.

The third appointment is for the proposed Hilltop Office to be located on Laskin Road at Virginia Beach. Construction on this office will begin later this year. It will be managed by William L. Rueger, assistant cashier. Until last week, Rueger was assigned to the lending platform in the Headquarters Office in Norfolk.

Virginia's Trade Is Up 35 Per Cent

Foreign trade through Virginia ports during the first six months of 1970, reached a level of 30.5 million tons, up by 35 per cent over the 1969 level of 22.6 million tons.

Figures released by the Virginia Port Authority also showed that exports rose to 26.0 million tons and imports increased to 4.5 million tons, up by 36 per cent and 28 per cent respectively over 1969 levels. Japan was the main recipient of export tonnage, mostly coal, and Venezuela was the leading supplier of import tonnage, mostly residual fuel oil.

In another category of foreign trade handled by Virginia ports, bulk cargo in 1970 after six months, rose to 29.2 million tons, a substantial increase over the 1969 level after six months. Coal exports during 1970 made up 83 per cent of total bulk cargo handled.

General cargo handlings, which include high-value goods producing the most economic benefit to the State's economy, reached a level of 1.3 million tons during the first six months of 1970, a modest increase over

Business State's Economy was 'Sluggish' in August

Some "slowness" developed in Virginia's economy during August, according to an analysis of business indicators in the current Virginia Business Index.

Sluggishness turned up in such areas as bank debits, building permits, retail sales, newspaper advertising lineage and new car registrations—although employment picked up a bit, according to Dr. Island E. Traywick of the School of Business Administration at the College of William and Mary.

The index is published monthly by the School's Bureau of Business Research. Bank debits, which are checks charged against demand deposits, were up only 12.8 per cent in August compared to the same month a year ago. Earlier in 1970, debits were running about 20 per cent above corresponding figures from 1969.

The slowness in building permits, Dr. Traywick noted, is somewhat typical of August but for the state as a whole, they were up 43.1 per cent over August, 1969.

Retail sales were off 0.4 per cent, newspaper advertising lineage was down 2.1 per cent and new car registrations were 12.2 per cent below August, 1969. On the brighter side, electrical consumption was 6.2 per cent above last year, thus "holding its own," postal receipts were up 5.3 per cent and water consumption was up 6.7 per cent.

Dr. Traywick said the Virginia picture was not much different from the national experience during August.

The largest overall increase in the economy was experienced in Cape Charles-Exmore, where the August "city index" was up 8.7 per cent. The city index is based on a weighted arithmetic mean of all business and economic components except building permits.

Other increases were shown in Franklin, up 7.7 per cent; and Alexandria, up 4.6 per cent. The only declines were shown in Charlottesville, down 3.1 per cent and Norfolk-Portsmouth, off 0.7 per cent.

Apartment Ready for Occupants

Powell and Huntley, Inc. single-family homebuilders, have entered the multi-family market with 16 two-bedroom apartments and four two-bedroom townhouses located at 28th Street between Pacific and Arctic Avenues.

Located near the oceanfront, the Windward Shores Apartments were opened for occupancy in September.

The new units are being rented for about $300 a month on a yearly lease, with utilities and furnishings included in the rental.

Designed to attract young career men and women, the all-electric, air-conditioned units have a television antenna, draw draperies and carpeting with a laundry accessible to all tenants.

Interiors are designed by Toscano Interiors utilizing a Mediterranean motif.

"The happy I am when I'm straight is more beautiful than the happy I seemed to be when I was stoned."

The girl in the picture is named Chris. For over a year, she was on amphetamines, powerful drugs known as "speed." This is how she describes it:

"I think 'speed' is a lot worse than heroin. Kids have got to know about it, because they can fall so easily into taking it through the diet pill hassle, or needing something to help them study. You know, that's crazy. Because the combination of amphetamines and no sleep just blows your memory completely. There are whole sections of my life which I just can't remember. It got to be just 'do a little more, do a little more,' until that was all there was. And the 'crashing'... sometimes the 'crashing' is just really awful!

"For me to stop taking it, I had to feel that people were caring. And they were. I was really lucky. I was very close to two people that were really into amphetamines very deeply, and I loved them a lot. But as far as they were concerned, the only thing that they had was the 'meth,' and that was their life. And they're both dead now."

"Dexies," "bennies," "meth" are all called "speed" these days. And people who know "speed" know "speed" kills!

Constitutional Revisions Important To Everyone

Voter registration books for the November 3 election close Saturday and it is hoped that the residents of this city will discard their usual apathy and make the effort to exercise their right to vote.

The political candidates may not fire the voter's enthusiasm but one of the men—George C. Rawlings Jr., Ray Garland or Harry F. Byrd Jr.—will represent each and every one of us in the United States Senate and it is imperative that he at least represent a large percentage of the citizenry. It is the responsibility of each voter to cast a ballot for the man of their choice.

Even more important, however, will be the voter's decision on the proposed Constitutional amendments as approved by the General Assembly at its 1969 and 1970 sessions.

It has been thirty some odd years since the State Constitution has been changed. These proposed revisions are designed to up-date the document; it has nothing to do with politics. The amendments were, in fact, endorsed by Democratic Governor Mills E. Goodwin during his administration and now by Republican Governor Linwood Holton. Influential organizations from all parts of the State have formally given their endorsement the latest being the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

There are only four proposals:

Main Body of the Constitution

(1) "Shall the Constitution be generally amended and revised as agreed to by the General Assembly at its 1969 and 1970 sessions (except for the three proposals separately stated below)?"

Lotteries

(2) "Shall the Constitution be amended by repealing section 60 (which prohibits lotteries), leaving it to the General Assembly to decide whether to authorize or prohibit lotteries?"

General Obligation Bonds

(3) "Shall the Constitution be amended to permit the General Assembly, subject to approval by the people in a referendum, to authorize general obligation bonds for specific capital projects, the total not to exceed 1.15 times the annual income and sales tax revenues of the Commonwealth?"

Revenue Bonds

(4) "Shall the Constitution be amended to permit the General Assembly, by two-thirds vote, to pledge the full faith and credit of the Commonwealth to revenue bonds issued for revenue-producing capital projects if the Governor certifies that the anticipated revenue from such projects will be sufficient to pay principal and interest as they become due, the total not to exceed 1.15 times the annual income and sales tax revenues of the Commonwealth?"

The second proposal is of particular interest to the residents of Virginia Beach. If approved, it would remove from the constitution the ban against lotteries and allow the General Assembly to decide whether to permit or forbid lotteries.

This revision would clear the way for pari-mutuel betting in this resort city, which has long been hoped for by city officials because of the tremendous revenue to be derived from race tracks. And for the additional tourists such betting will attract.

Residents are urged to turn out and vote. But new residents can't vote unless they register. And after Saturday they can't register. Now is the time to act.

Can Arrange Tours

To the editor:

Many thanks to Carolyn McAllen for her fine front-page story "Fifteen Acres of Controversy" and bringing this issue before the public. Also, thanks to your photographer (what's his name?) for the beautiful picture of this area little known to many Virginia Beach residents. I'd like to ask that if there are any local residents interested in seeing for themselves this "beautiful and desirable" site, they contact either Mrs. Bills or myself and we will arrange a tour for them. To see is to appreciate and we would welcome the opportunity to introduce them to the beauty hidden here. We would take them for a walk along the old "Indian Trail" beside the swamp, and climb to the top of the dune where the ships can be seen going and coming to and from Hampton Roads. It is worth exploring for those who live here and love the area.

There is one fact that appeared in the story that I should like to correct. I am a permanent resident here. And I love this area. Somehow this bit of misinformation got into the story, i.e., the statement that I am not a permanent resident, and since I am happy to be a resident, I'd like to set the record straight. Thanks! Anne W. Ramsey

Editor's note: Mrs. McAllen was also the photographer for the story Mrs. Ramsey refers to here.

Something Lacking

To the editor:

Once again the shriners have won the hearts of the residents and merchants of Virginia Beach with their gay abandon. That bucolic frolic that reached the charthouse and gold crescento in the parade Saturday seemed to me the kind of fun that EVERYONE could enjoy. I saw in that parade of thousands of Shriners, some festooned with medals won in the wars, some hefting M-1 rifles on their shoulders, only one black man. He had stopped for a moment to rest. He looked up at me with a kind of glazed look and said softly, "You know, I hefted one of those...in Korea." He smiled proudly, turned away and continued his duty, sweeping up behind the horses. Beach is Polluted

To the Editor:

My wife and I went to Virginia Beach yesterday, Saturday, for what may be the last swim of the season. We enjoyed the swim, and the beach, but not what we saw. There was real evidence of oil pollution. Not the aggravated example of an oil spillage off the beach which might clear up in a few days, but the result of a gradual and increasing general pollution of the ocean. Waves of black or gray sand were mixed in with the normal yellow-colored sand. By picking up the sand and rubbing it through your fingers you could detect the stain of an oil product. There were also a number of congealed bits of oil material about the size of a dime, scattered on the beach. The real disturbing thought is that when pollution of the waters off our coast gets to this stage, how much time do we have left. Pollution of Virginia Beach should be of real concern to the commercial tourist interests, as well as the conservationist and the naturalist. J. E. Weirich Virginia Beach

Likes Boycott Idea

To the editor:

Your fine editorial concerning billboards along the expressway, to which I am categorically opposed, brought out a possible procedure which I through its Department of Community Promotion, brings to the area is nevertheless commendable one and from the support it received opening night obviously an appreciated one.

The other plays, "1776", "Forty Carats", "George M.", and "Papa Suits", will brighten Tidewater's entertainment scene throughout the season. —Rudy Jean Phillips

FRANTZ FANON, by David Castle, N.Y., The Viking Press, 1970, $4.95.

"Frantz Fanon" written by David Castle and published by Viking Press is one of the Modern Masters series - by modern masters the editors mean men who have changed and are changing the life and thought of our age. Frantz Fanon was one of those men. A black Algerian, educated in France, Fanon was head of a psychiatric department of the Blida-Joinville Hospital until he resigned to join the revolutionary forces in Algeria against the French. He made social philosophy. The "Tell it like it is" phrase describes his literary technique. He declared himself to be "a didactic writer, concerned to project a particular subjectivity and to change or modify the world in the process." For the student of race relations and for the reader who casually comes across Fanon's name in fiction, David Castle neatly packages the evolution of Fanon's social philosophy. His changing from theories of liberation to revolution as shown in his writings - from "Black Skin, White Masks" to "The Wretched of the Earth".

Fanon died in 1961. The African peasants he championed seem no longer to embrace his philosophy. To black militants in the United States, he has become a patron saint. I. Waller have practiced for years. Feeling as I do that billboards are dangerous, hideous, and an imposition on my senses, I have always made it a firm practice to "boycott products advertised on billboards."

I hope our new city council will stand by the billboard ban, which a former council passed. Mrs. John William Sills, II

'Zorba' just didn't quite come to life

Norfolk opened its new Broadway-Theatre Attractions last week-end with the road show of the musical "Zorba", starring Vivian Blaine.

For those who have read Nikos Kazantzakis' great novel "Zorba the Greek" or seen Anthony Quinn's memorable performance in the movie version, the idea of putting Zorba to music seems a bit ludicrous.

After seeing this Broadway production it obviously was ludicrous.

The character of Zorba is not considered a musical extravaganza. He is both simple and complex in his wants and his beliefs. His moods, his zest for living, cannot be confined by music, he must be free to express himself with genuine exuberance, to fall about in anger, to touch gently in his hunger for love.

Music, and certainly the music in this production, adds nothing to Zorba the Greek or to Zorba the man.

Michael Kermoyan did an excellent job in portraying this fascinating character and his impressive baritone voice did the numbers more justice than they deserved. But Zorba just doesn't come alive in this watered-down version of a tremendous story and there's nothing Kermoyan or any other actor can do about it.

The same is true of Miss Blaine in her role as the French chanteuse Hortense. This role and its beautiful interpretation won for Lila Kedrova the best supporting actress in the 1964 Academy Award presentations. Miss Blaine had all she could do to make "Hortense" believable...not because she is not a lovely, talented actress, but because the part seems so shallow compared to the way it was originally created. Too it was difficult to visualize the vivacious Miss Blaine as an aging and rather pitiful has-been singer.

There were some beautiful voices in this production. Margalit Anshory, herself a fifth generation Sabra and a former member of the Israeli army, is the Leader and as such presented the opening number "Life Is". It is the only familiar number and the only one the audience really seemed to enjoy.

Vilma Vaccaro as the widow also turned in a good musical performance and Thom Koussoukos was quite good as the naive Nikos, the young intellect who plans to reopen a mine on the island of Crete.

The friendship that develops between the brash and somewhat overly enthusiastic Zorba and the quiet, studious Nikos is the background for the story. Zorba gets involved, just slightly, with Hortense and Nikos becomes attracted, apparently a little more than slightly, to the ostracized young widow. She is rejected by the townspeople because she spurns the love of a boy far too young for her. The boy commits suicide over the widow's love for Nikos and the townspeople, in turn, kill the woman. Just about the time Zorba agrees that maybe he should marry Hortense, she dies. And it all happens so fast there isn't even time for sympathy for the two ill-fated women.

The staging of "Zorba" was quite interesting and offered its own action with choruses and bedrooms and hillside moving on and off the stage in organized silence. The dance numbers, especially the one in which a stocky Greek dancer performed with a sturdy wooden table between his teeth, and some of the special effects kept the stage lively but all in all "Zorba" just didn't quite make it.

This particular musical might have missed but the program that the City of Norfolk,

Most people won't admit it but just about everyone has a psychological block against accepting unpleasant facts about people and places they love. This is unfortunate because it often prevents meaningful help for those who need it most of all.

Today, most families have a member who is an out-and-out alcoholic. If an alcoholic receives professional help and the cooperation of family and loved ones, this condition can be controlled. The big problem is that most families won't admit, even to themselves, that good old uncle Joe is a drunk. No, he just has a little "problem" that will go away and the family must stick together and never mention it. What a shame.

Just about every family has a member who can't get or hold a job. Many such people are nothing but plain "unemployables" for one reason or another. With proper training and placement they can become productive members of society. The big problem is that most families refuse to accept the fact that brother Bill will be a bum if something isn't done so they rally behind him and help him by chipping in to pay the rent, give him cast off clothing, food, etc. The family must stick together and never mention it. What a shame.

Today, an ever-increasing number of families have members who either do not have a religion or who do not practice one on a meaningful basis. If someone would help bring these people back to God it would enrich their lives and help everyone. Most families can't admit that sister Ann is a sinner. No, she is just busy and she doesn't need to go to church to be good. The family must stick together and never mention it. What a shame.

A great many families have a member who is not very bright. With special professional help such people can pull themselves up and be a part of the world around them. Rarely inside the family that will admit for a second that Junior doesn't have all his faculties. No, he is just a slow learner. The family must stick together and never mention it. What a shame.

Just about every city, town and community has its own ghetto. Such places are nothing but slums and are a blight on the area. Such places can be cleaned up and made livable with the backing of the people. How many places will even admit they have ghettos? No, they are just places where the working people live. The area must stick together and never admit such places exist. What a shame.

Good and bad exists in everything. Some areas are cursed with bad school systems. With the interest and help of the people such systems can be improved. No, the local people must never admit anything they have is not perfect. They must rally behind the poor schools and never let anyone know they have them. What a shame.

Hardly a state in the USA doesn't have its pockets of poverty and ignorance. Some of these bad spots are in the so-called "Establishment" or the elected offices and governmental agencies. The spotlight of truth on such situations can clear never speak ill of "fellow-citizens." They must stick together and cover up for others. What a shame.

The young people who have "Turned Out" and "Turned On" come from somewhere. They have a home. They have a family. They are the responsibility of someone. They weren't kidnapped on a hot rock or under a stone. They have mothers, fathers, grandparents, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, and cousins. They could not come up with the money to practice their drug habits without support. They need wheels to travel, they need food, clothing and pocket money. Since most of them don't work, that has to come from someone. What if amounts to is that most families are in fact subsidizing the drug culture. They are paying for it. These young people have more than a little "problem" that they will "outgrow." They need help NOW! Why protect them and contribute to their harm? What a shame.

Voters Want Voice

For those who feel that most citizens are not concerned about their city, they should have seen the response to last week's question: "Do you think members of the city's boards and commissions which most affect the general public, such as the School Board and Planning Commission, should be elected rather than appointed by City Council?"

The response was enthusiastically 100 per cent in favor of giving the people a voice in these groups.

One reader also threw in a very valid suggestion: (1) Not all should be elected because public interests might be served better if some were appointed; and (2) more voter interest is mandatory.

To that reader a word of thanks also for his comments that both editorials last week were "excellent."

Another reader is very much in favor of electing the School Board and Planning Commission and suggests a Sun Survey question concerning a fully elected City Council. The exact meaning of his suggestion is not known since City Council is elected by the people. The mayor and vice mayor, of course, are elected by the council so the voters indirectly have a voice. Could be mean that a vacancy in council, such as that left by the death of Frank D. Tarrall, Jr., to which council appointed Robert H. Callis, choice? A very thought-provoking subject. If this is the intent of the question, that reader is asked to verify it.

All readers, incidentally, are encouraged to suggest questions for this column. It offers an opportunity to get a feel of how the public reacts to certain issues. The questions must concern Virginia Beach, be topical and in good taste.

An entirely different avenue of thought crops up this week in a question suggested by a reader. This reader believes that a city this size, and a resort of such national and international prominence, should offer to its residents and visitors a city zoo. He goes so far as to suggest the old land fill site at the corner of Arctic Avenue and Laskin Road be used for this purpose.

This site is destined for better days. The city cannot continue to allow a polluted swamp in the middle of its highly valuable resort community. A theatre complex has been discussed. A zoo might just be the answer. It's something to think about.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters. They will be published when possible. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer. Letters are invited on any question. Mail each to: Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, Post Office Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451.

Off for a fun weekend

These local Converse College freshmen took a break from academics last weekend to take part in one of the first social functions of the year, a mixer at the Citadel, the military college of South Carolina in Charleston. During the weekend, the young women enjoyed a beach party, an informal dance and a tour of Charleston with the Citadel men. Monday it was back to the books. DITCH-DESTINED—This car, owned by Donald R. Brinn of 5716A Princess Anne Road, veered into the ditch alongside the service road on Virginia Beach Blvd. Friday but apparently no one was injured. The crash occurred shortly before 9 p.m. about three blocks east of the Virginia Beach Blvd.-Thalia Road intersection.

Kids 'Take Over'

About 400 Virginia Beach youngsters had themselves a field day Saturday when they "took over" the Oceana Naval Air Station for the annual Kid's Day sponsored by the Virginia Beach Kiwanis Club and the military installation.

The youngsters were picked up at the Virginia Beach Civic Center early Saturday morning and bused to the base.

They watched movies about various aircraft, scrambled aboard some of the planes they had seen on film, enjoyed a lunch provided by the station and thrilled to a "real live" parachute display.

The busing of the youngsters was a major part of the project since they had to be bused to different points on the base.

Tom Follary, who has served as Kiwanis chairman for Kid's Day ever since its beginning nine years ago, had great praise for those who helped him.

"I owe a special thanks to those who helped with the buses... Joe Phelps, Fort Story, Oceana and Dam Neck all provided buses for the youngsters," Follary said. "And, of course, it couldn't have been as successful as it was—and this was probably the most successful Kid's Day we've had—if I hadn't had such an excellent committee to work with me."

Boat Is Beyond Repair

Old Dominion University Officials have declared the university's scientific vessel Albatross a total loss after the boat went aground in the False Cape area of Virginia Beach Monday afternoon.

Officials said the grounding occurred while the 63-foot Albatross was engaged in making a profile survey of the Atlantic Ocean floor along False Cape beaches.

None of the four persons on board the craft at the time of the accident were injured, each of whom was able to walk to shore by wading through shallow water to the beach.

Those on board were identified as Eugene Doty, skipper of the 24-year-old wooden vessel, and three graduate students listed as Barry Holiday, Dennis McGrath and John McElone.

The survey was being conducted by taking the vessel on short trips to and from the beach, and the grounding occurred when the Albatross' engines failed while moving away from the beach. Three anchors failed to keep the vessel from being blown ashore by northeast winds.

Coast Guard cutters and a helicopter were dispatched to the scene to lend whatever assistance possible to the grounded vessel and those on board.

Operations were begun Monday night to remove electronic gear belonging to O.D.U.'s Oceanographic Institute from the Albatross, and efforts to salvage the vessel were begun at high tide Tuesday morning.

"Despite continuing effort throughout Tuesday, officials came to the conclusion that the Albatross was damaged beyond repair."

West Named Cavaliers Win Contest Librarian

A former Norfolk city librarian has been named Assistant Director of the Library at Virginia Wesleyan College.

William R. West, a native of Detroit, Michigan, assumes his duties this month. He comes to Virginia Wesleyan from a position as Librarian at the College of Charleston in Charleston, South Carolina.

Mr. West, 47, served as head of the Business, Technology and Social Sciences department in the Norfolk Public Library from 1960 to 1966. Prior to that he had considerable experience as reference librarian with the Enoch Pratt Library in Baltimore, the Detroit Public Library and the Cleveland Public Library. Before his position as head Librarian at the College of Charleston, West served for two years on the library staff of the Medical University of South Carolina.

A graduate of George Washington University, Mr. West holds a M.S. degree from the School of Library Service at Columbia University. He has also studied at the University of Bern in Switzerland.

In addition to his duties as assistant director of the library, West will serve as head of the reference section.

Ervin Suggests Erosion Commission Be Dropped

City Councilman F. Reid Ervin has requested that the council consider asking the General Assembly to abolish the Erosion Commission and let the city assume the beach sand replenishment program.

In a letter to City Manager Roger M. Scott, Ervin said that his move was in no way related to recent publicity given the commission dealing with its insurance program and was not intended as "criticism of individual commission members."

However, the city and the Erosion Commission have been at odds for several years. The city, which pays a portion of the commission's operating expenses, has attempted to take over the commission's function since many of its operations parallel those of the city's dredging operation specifically in and around Rudee Inlet.

Until recently, the commission had refused to recognize any responsibility for the inlet's clearance.

The commission, a state-appointed body, is under state control and its abolition would require an act of the General Assembly.

In order for the change to be accomplished, emergency legislation would have to be enacted by the General Assembly at its special session in January, he said.

"In order to give our members of the General Assembly sufficient time to prepare for such we should begin immediately with preliminary planning," Ervin said.

The first-term councilman said the move was necessary because "the city, without question, provides the lion's share of operating funds and handles the payroll and bookkeeping operations."

Ervin said that as a matter of good business, the city should take over the management of the commission in the interest of coordination and planning.

Ervin added that the problems of Rudee Inlet and the commission have been reluctant to engage themselves in the inlet's problems.

"The city and the Erosion Commission employ the same engineering firm, and that firm has on occasion found itself in the difficult position" because it's had to render two different reports on the same problem, he said.

"Needless to say," Ervin said, "it is just good common sense to consider maintenance of the inlet and sand replenishment as a joint function and with one engineering firm."

As far as the loss of federal and state grants to Ervin said that he believed there would not be any change in their status, and noted that the city would be in a position to handle the sand replenishment problem easier because it would be pumping "clean sand" from the inlet that could be used on the beach to curb that erosion problem.

The commission's chairman, E. H. Church, was not available for comment.

Parents Earn Plaudits

"Parents can be 'stinkers' when you disagree with something, but, by far, we have the greatest bunch of parents who are always there ready to help and vote on for various bond issues," stated James W. Buffington, chairman of the Virginia Beach School Board, as he addressed the Point O View Elementary School PTA.

Principal Mac Rawls introduced Buffington, who went on to say how little a school board has to do with a good school system. He said that it's those that are bad that require the work.

"There are many applicants for every given job in the school system, and we are happy that we are able to choose the teachers that best serve our children," Buffington said. "This year we have introduced many new innovations, one of them being the non-graded system, which has been put in a few schools. Before any of the new systems are placed in the schools, each will have been studied and tried, then put in on an experimental basis."

Buffington, He also stated that computers are being used, which have proved to provide better service in connection with the scheduling of buses. Buffington went on to say, "Concerning the drug education, Ed Brickell, school superintendent, insisted that our teachers be completely informed first, before discussing same with students."

Buffington concluded his address with, "a conference is necessary with the teacher to really learn about your child's shortcomings and advancements."

Bike Laws Not Obeyed Worker Trainee Jobs are Open

The Virginia Highway Safety Commission, through John T. Hanna, Director of the Highway Safety Division, expressed its concern today over non-observance of laws regulating bicycles in traffic.

The Commission issued a statement that it "Noted with concern the failure of many bicycle riders to abide by traffic laws relating to the operation of bicycles on the streets and highways of this state. In the interest of saving lives and preventing injuries, the Commission urges full compliance with these laws and increased emphasis on education of riders, as well as on enforcement."

Hanna explained that Virginia law requires operators of bicycles to obey all laws applicable to operators of motor vehicles unless the provision clearly states otherwise. This requires that bicycles be ridden with traffic rather than against it.

If ridden at night, the bicycle must be equipped with a white front lamp visible from at least 500 feet in clear weather and either a rear red lamp visible for the same distance or a red reflector of an approved type visible from 50 to 300 feet when directly in front of automobile headlights.

He continued in saying that riding on sidewalks is illegal with the exception that cities with populations of more than 300,000 may authorize children under 15 to ride on designated ones.

Last year, Hanna said, eight people were killed on bicycles in Virginia, 384 were seriously injured and 226 were slightly injured.

The U.S. Civil Service Commission in Norfolk has announced that applications are being accepted for the positions of worker trainee which pays from $2 to $3 per hour.

No written test or experience is required but interested persons should apply by October 8.

Council Names Several In Appointments

City Council Monday made appointments to the Southeastern Virginia Planning District Commission, the city's Industrial Development Authority, the city's Personnel Board and confirmed personnel changes made by the Commonwealth's Attorney.

Councilmen appointed to the planning district commission were Dr. Clarence Holland and Robert B. Cromwell Jr., filling the seats of former councilmen G. Dewey Simmons and Lawrence E. Marshall.

Council reappointed George Woody to the industrial authority and appointed Richard H. Kline and Noland U. Chandler to fill the seats of James P. Sadler and George J. Parker, both of whom resigned from the posts.

It also reappointed Claiborne Bryant and Sgt. Charles Harris to three year terms to the personnel Board.

Council also confirmed the personnel changes made by Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans to promote Paul A. Sciorino to Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney and employ Charles D. Meachum as Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney.

Parked Cars Dangerous

"Stay on the sidewalk" advised Richard S. Holland, Director, Tidewater Auto. Assn. "Many people, especially children, are killed or injured every year because they fail to follow this simple safety precaution."

He went on to explain: "Parked cars block the vision of both drivers and pedestrians. A pedestrian suddenly emerging from between parked cars is quite a surprise to a motorist."

He continued, emphasizing that cars cannot stop instantly. "It takes time for a driver to react, time to apply the brakes, and time for the brakes to stop the car. All this means that a driver often cannot stop in enough time to avoid hitting a pedestrian, especially a small one, who may unexpectedly appear in front of him."

Holland urged parents to set good examples in their walking habits and to instruct their children not to play around or near parked cars.

"Keep From Between Parked Cars" is the central theme of this award-winning poster, which has been selected for use in classrooms around the country. It was created by Audrey St. Vincent, age 11, of Crompond School in Yorktown Heights, N.Y.

Police officials say they have charged Bernard Williams, 24, of Pine Cone Circle, with a series of forgery charges involving the alleged passing of checks in Virginia Beach.

According to Det. J. M. Curran the forgeries occurred during July, August, and September at a number of department stores, variety stores, grocery stores, service stations and a florist shop.

Curran said his investigation shows that Williams also purchased a variety of electronic equipment, including a television and stereo set as well as a car through forgery of business contracts.

Williams also, according to Curran, allegedly opened a bank account and obtained a Virginia State motor vehicle operators permit by use of the name used in the forgery operation.

When Williams was arrested, according to Curran, he was living in an apartment in the recently opened Green Run Farms housing development on Princess Anne Road. Williams reportedly obtained the use of the apartment, as he allegedly had done at a number of apartments in other locations in the resort city, through the use of a name other than his own.

Curran said his investigation shows Williams was using the name of Harvey E. Martin Jr., who in reality is a teacher at Virginia Beach Junior High School, during the rash of forgeries.

This is the charred remains of the Rathskeller Lounge after it was severely damaged by fire last Friday morning.

Cause of Lounge Fire Sought

An investigation is underway to determine the cause of the fire which virtually destroyed the Rathskeller Lounge at the White Sands Country Club last Friday morning.

No one was in the building at the time of the fire's origin, and there were no reports of injuries to patrons or employees. However, officials said volunteer fireman Tommy Jackson of the Plaza Fire Department received a slight injury to his shoulder when he momentarily had his vision blurred by heavy smoke and heat and fell down a stairway while fighting the fire.

The fire apparently had been burning for some time before it was discovered about 7 a.m. Mrs. Ethel Layne, manager of the country club snack bar was quoted as saying she discovered the fire when she reported for work and smelled smoke.

Volunteers from the Plaza and London Bridge Fire Departments fought intense heat and dense smoke for nearly 30 minutes before they were able to extinguish the fire, and remained on the scene for several hours.

Fire investigators W. H. Cartwright and J. W. Hundley, Jr., said their investigation thus far indicated the fire began at a point just inside the main outdoor entrance into the private club in the basement of the White Sands building. Fire spread throughout the interior of the club destroying virtually everything, including thousands of dollars worth of musical instruments which had been left on a band stand from the night before.

Indications are a thick concrete ceiling over the lounge acted as a "fire-stop" and prevented flames from spreading into the Country Club. However heavy smoke and intense heat travelled up stairways leading into the White Sands Club area. Bunny Green, club banquet manager, said the lobby, ballroom, dining room, and kitchen were heavily damaged by smoke and heat.

Jay Baumann, asst. mgr. of the Rathskeller Lounge, said he had left the club about 5:45 a.m. Friday morning and witnessed no signs of fire or anything unusual in the lounge.

Baumann indicated the lounge, which operates as a private club, had been occupied by approximately 100 people during the course of Thursday night, and that he was the last person to leave the lounge after securing the building.

Baumann and Green both praised volunteer firemen for the way they responded to the alarm and extinguished the fire while keeping damage to the building at a minimum.

Thus far no estimate has been made on the extent of monetary loss which resulted from the fire. However, some sources have placed the damage in the region of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Neither rain, nor snow, nor....

Foot weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of guests at the sixth Annual Buffet Party of the Lamplighter Circle of The King's Daughters Sunday.

The party, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Trant, Jr. (she's Circle leader), attracted nearly 200 persons. The only problem which developed from the rainy weather was in reclaiming (and finding) raincoats and umbrellas after the party.

The sudden drop in temperature Sunday must have caused some last minute changes in dress for the ladies present, but one thing was sure—midis were completely absent from the scene. Several women wore attractive pants suits, however.

Since chairs were somewhat scarce, Mrs. Sam Houston, Sr. and Mrs. Walter L. Renn solved the problem by sitting on the front staircase. Besides, that way they got to see everyone as they came in the front door.

The six women who formed the committee in charge of the buffet deserve a pat on the back from their fellow Circle members. They were Mrs. Marion D. Joyner, Mrs. William P.

Kellam, Mrs. L. D. Finley, Jr., Mrs. W. A. Wood, III, Mrs. Sidney Kellam and Mrs. R. L. Simpson.

Especially popular at the buffet table was the thinly-sliced, rare roast beef—delicious with hot rolls. The buffet committee kept up a steady relay of food from the kitchen. There seemed to be an endless supply of a variety of sandwiches, shrimp fondue, plus crackers, assorted spreads and dips.

The buffet raises approximately $800 each year which is used to buy equipment for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The Circle, which has 30 members, also operates a Thrift Shop at London Bridge, proceeds from which are also donated to the hospital.

Among the many guests, and it would have been impossible to get all their names, were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Portlock, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cassada, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe LaGiglia, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawk, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Boice, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Clayman, Mr. and Mrs. James Sadler, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Lott, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Braun, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Coblick, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Toepelman, Judge and Mrs. P. B. White, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Aspinwall, Dr. and Mrs. John Bowman.

Proceeds to provide sendoff

With their husbands often away so much of the time, Navy wives must rely heavily on ingenuity.

The VA-85 Wives are no exception. Their husbands are due to leave on a cruise soon, and the Wives Club decided to give them a rousing send-off. Rather than bear the expense of a farewell party themselves (after all, it is close to Christmas), they decided to rent a space in the Women of Wesleyan Flea Market.

Booth space (still available) is $10, and the Wives figured their profits from their booth would more than pay for that and their party too.

The WOW Flea Market will be Oct. 17 at the Twin Drive-In Theatre on Independence Blvd. from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. with Oct. 31 as an alternate date in case of rain.

All proceeds from the Flea Market will go to the individuals or groups who rent spaces. However, rental profits from the spaces will be used by the WOW for Virginia Wesleyan College.

Anyone desiring to reserve a space (actually a twin-space) may do so by calling Mrs. J.

A. Ballard at 423-1956 or Mrs. J. R. Wilkins, 423-8600.

In addition don't forget the date. Admissions free, and last year every type of booth imaginable at the market, including baked goods, handmade articles, gift items and white elephants.

Take me out from the ball game

Football season is here again.

It was bad enough when the season used to begin after Labor Day and ended New Year's. The Rose Bowl parade and game was a fitting climax to the whole thing.

Now there are post season games and playoffs through half the spring. And the pre-season practice games begin in August. Wasn't there some kind of game played in July?

Then, the colleges, not to be outdone, added an 11th game to their 10-game season this fall. As if adding post-New Year's bowl games wasn't enough.

I think sports are fine. I think men should have something (besides their wives) to interest them. But not every free minute.

The extension of football games into the Monday night television schedule is just too much. Next year it will be Tuesday, then Wednesday. Pretty soon the networks won't have to worry about new fall shows—just the football schedule. Then they can fill in with movie re-runs for any extra time they have. Or maybe re-showings of last year's football games.

I shouldn't complain. I did get to watch 20 minutes of Carol Burnett during Monday night's half time break.

I always swore I would never have one of those houses where the family sits in front of the TV to eat. Well, we don't. After leaving it on during one meal and having everyone run to check on the game one week, I put my foot down. Now I have a choice. We can either eat during half time or after the game. The only problem is that on Saturdays there are usually two games at the same time and the half times don't coincide.

One or two games per weekend weren't so bad. But when the drapes are drawn in the den for three days and the kids are forbidden to say a word it's just too much. They even missed "Loosey" Sunday because of a game. It seems there are at least six games every weekend. And the season is at least 20 weeks. That's at least 120 games.

My new house is going to have a windowless, sound-proof room with an extra TV set. No, it won't be for my husband. I want to get as far away from football myself as possible.

Early 'settlers' enjoy luau

On a beautiful weekend, Pembroke Courts Apartments had a Luau Party to utilize their pool facility before the close of the season. All the tenants were invited and it was hosted by Pembroke Realty.

The food was really outstanding, as Chef Maxey of the Sheraton Hotel Chain was good enough to cater. He is one of the members of the Pembroke Courts family. There were chicken breasts stuffed with wild rice in white grape sauce, port tenderloin with assorted condiments, sweet and sour spare-ribs, a beautiful display of fresh fruit sprinkled with shredded fresh coconut; fruit tarts, and beer. A wonderful informal social evening was had by all.

Among the guests were Pembroke Courts Apartments first family to sign a lease, Mr. and Mrs. John Beta, who have twin daughters of age 13. Among the other guests were third and fourth families, Dr. Miller is at Norfolk General Hospital coming from Florida. Hosts were C. C. Taylor, property manager of Pembroke Realty and Mrs. Byllie-Jacque Sheppard, resident manager of the apartments.

Cavaliers offer chance to Christmas shop early

Here's a chance to do your Christmas shopping early.

The Candle Coffee planned by the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club will feature not only candles but also an assortment of gift items including decoupage by Doris (Mrs. John S.) Cucura and primitives by Ann (Mrs. Jack) Bonner.

Mrs. Cucura's decoupage is much in demand, as she has developed her own technique. A variety of items will be for sale.

Mrs. Bonner has been doing primitive paintings on wood for a little more than a year now. "A friend of mine did them," said Ann. "In fact she did one for me. Then she moved away. I don't think I'd ever have started if she hadn't moved."

Mrs. Bonner buys scrap wood, mostly pine, from a hardware store and "ages" it herself. She has aigsaw and sander ("I'd like a workshop") and distresses the wood by beating it with nails.

She has a number of small primitives of fruit, vegetables and mushrooms and says she will do some frogs before the coffee—"frogs are an 'in' thing now."

Also popular are her family primitives which are individualized according to the number of people in the family, their coloring, any pets and hobbies.

Something new she is trying is long horizontal primitives of Williamsburg street scenes. She got the idea from a can of shortening she bought with a scene on it.

Painting isn't her only interest, however. She sews during the day and paints at night "just for fun." She designed and made a wooden bench ("Jack helped me with it") which a friend bought for a coffee table. She also designed and made a lamp table in a milk can. "I never got around to painting it," she admitted. Another lamp she made has a table leg for a base.

The Bonners have lived in Kings Grant nine years. "We bought the house while it was still being built." Although originally from Alabama, they plan to stay here because of their children: Susan, 14; Butch, 12; and Cathy, 10.

In addition to the decoupage and paintings, there will be a number of other small gift items for sale too. Hours of the coffee will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. at

Coffee honors granddaughter

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Malbon of Robin Drive gave a coffee Saturday morning for their granddaughter who was visiting for the weekend.

The granddaughter is Mrs. Robert Lee Overman, the former Amy Midgett and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Midgett, formerly of Virginia Beach and now living in Auburn, Ala.

Mrs. Overman was married in June, and she and her husband are both students at Auburn.

1440 Watersedge, which is reached by driving back on Little Neck Road to Harris Road and turning right. Drive to Kline Road and turn right again, then left on Watersedge. It's the first house on the right.

The candles will be in all sizes, shapes and forms. Orders will be taken for delivery before Christmas. There will be color drip candles, advent candles, Christmas figures, tapers, etc., along with traditional colored candles. In addition there will be flower rings to go around candles and ensembles of candles, holders and flowers. Proceeds from the coffee will go to the Cavalier's scholarship fund.

The Cavaliers have mailed some 1,000 invitations to the coffee, but the public is also invited.

Program needs more helpers

The Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department is in need of people to work as instructors in the afterschool program for elementary school-aged children.

Anyone interested in teaching arts, crafts, tap, ballet or horse is urged to call the Recreation Department at 471-4844.

So called "problem children" who cause disciplinary problems and are now being sent to school, may actually be suffering from unmet emotional needs.

EVERYTHING OLD, VERY LITTLE NEW

Since we were on the subject of priceless laces in the last column and had such a response, suppose we continue by telling you a story about our new bride, Donna. She and her husband, Steven love antique and thrift shops. They manage to find some most unusual objects which they spend a great deal of time and money restoring.

While working on his master's degree, Steven had to pass a thrift shop every day on his way to the university, and had noticed a bridal gown on display. He had thought about taking enough time out to drop in and purchase it for Donna, but one day he passed and the bridal gown was gone! He took the time then to rush into the shop to ask about it. Evidently not realizing the value of the gown, the lady in charge pointed to the floor where the gown lay in a crumpled mass where she had thrown it after taking it off the mannequin. Steven purchased the gown for practically nothing.

With old lace on it, dug in the attics of her family and friends of her family until she had what she needed. She went to a lot of time and expense to have the gown ready for her wedding day and by the time she was finished she had perhaps spent more than the average young lady spends on a new gown.

Donna went even further. She found a pair of old shoes on display in an antique shop which were "definitely not for sale". The owner further explained that the shoes were too small for anyone to wear in this day and age. Finally, Donna got them! They fit and matched her gown perfectly.

Her entire wedding was coordinated around a theme of the period of the gown and was a garden wedding. The guests were enclosed but could view the entire wedding through glass and could hear the ceremony by means of microphones. The actual ceremony took place in a gazebo and even the background music was different. The quacking of the ducks on the grounds was quite lively and certainly authentic.

On another occasion, the family was expecting approximately 200 people; only half that amount showed up after having answered "yes" to the RSVP. What happens? Too much food.

Please, please, return your respond card with a "yes" or "no" even if you have to rub tract it by phone. If you do not answer at all, don't be surprised if the bride's mother calls to confirm your answer. It is certainly proper for her to do so. She must have as accurate an account as possible in order for her to advise the caterer.

City Wins Prizes, Convention

Men of the Beach Borough Volunteer Rescue Squad captured seven first place trophies in competition during the 35th annual convention of the Virginia Association of Volunteer Rescue Squads, Inc., staged at the Virginia Beach Civic Center last Thursday through Saturday.

The Beach Borough Squad captured the Virginia Highway Users Association first-aid grand trophy, the Forest David Porter, Jr., memorial trophy denoting outstanding achievement in first-aid and rescue equipment, the Virginia Association of Rescue Squads' Raymond H. Thierien trophy awarded for outstanding achievement in first-aid, the 2nd District first-aid first place trophy, and services to those areas.

Barrow noted that the best agricultural areas have already been used for urban developments and hence were not included in suitability levels.

"Besides, the city's second largest economic factor is agricultural business, and we need to continue with these areas."

"They are the breadbasket of the area and can supply the needed foods and dairy products to our residents. We need to keep them," he said.

Barrow said eventual land use should follow three principles developed by the department for all planning guides:

- Encourage the development of an environment which offers each individual an opportunity to develop his innate talents and aptitudes to the highest potential by offering the full range of services and choices necessary to this development.
- Promote the rational development of our natural resources—the ocean front, rivers, estuaries of recent land, while working to insure that these irreplaceable resources are not destroyed in the process of development and that they remain permanently accessible to the citizenry of Virginia Beach.
- Encourage the diversification and development of the economic base through the promotion of tourism, industrial development and retail expansion, while not losing sight of the city's obligation to preserve and strengthen the established and developing residential communities.

The remaining two principles established deal with recommendations for development, he said, and are:

- Development of a heterogeneous community which offers residents and visitors diversified patterns of living, varied entertainment and cultural activities and an optimum choice of life styles.
- Development of a publicly sponsored framework of capital improvements—roads, community facilities, parks and utilities which will serve as a guide to the pattern and timing of private development within the city.

But what excites Barrow about development plans of any nature and what he would most like to see is community involvement.

"There are several things that can keep a plan from working," he said, "but the most important thing is lack of community involvement and people forgetting the plan."

"People involved in the making of the plan could lose interest or forget the plan, in which case the moving force behind it is lost," he said.

And this is the premise upon which the Kempville Plan is based, he said. "We could have made this a staff function and kept the whole thing secret, but we elect to draw in the civic leaders, the businessmen and others because they are the ones who have to live with it."

The other roadblock to the plan lies with the policy makers, the Planning Commission and the City Council, he said. "If they forget about the fact that there's a plan and begin to move off, then it's lost."

"What I want to emphasize is that this is a policy statement and not a definite plan."

Barrow said the policy statement is based on three goals:

- To develop plans which are addressed to the difficult economic, social and physical problems confronting the city and which will serve as an impetus to public and private action to rectify these problems.
- To develop plans that will serve as viable guides to public officials and private individuals in the making of decisions which will shape the future environment of the city.
- To utilize the planning process as a communication device designed to generate community involvement in public decision-making and to serve as a forum for discussion between public officials and the new citizenry of Virginia Beach.

"Even if the plan is changed as we develop it, as long as we keep these goals and principles in mind, we can amend and change the plan but it will remain viable," he said.

"If people understand the planning process and principles, then no matter how they change it, it will still function as it should."

"I'm not concerned about approval of it, because what's important is that the people understand these things. If they do, then the plan is not as important as it might be if they didn't," he said.

Mayor Names Councilmen To Study Citizen's Group

A resolution proposing a Citizens Advisory Committee for Virginia Beach was tabled by City Council Monday until a special committee can recommend its composition and set a specific purpose for the body.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes appointed Councilmen Charles H. Callis Jr., Dr. Clarence A. Holland and D. Murray Malbon to study the question with Callis, the sponsor of the resolution, acting as chairman of the group.

Callis introduced the resolution at his first meeting as a councilman but was chastised by J. Curtis Payne for having introduced the measure without consulting other councilmen.

At that time, development of the resolution was directed to City Attorney J. Dale Binson because it was felt that the wording of the original resolution was too vague and that it might have to meet certain Federal standards.

The latest resolution that the committee shall be "an aid in the orderly process of government and community development" and that it shall act in an advisory capacity to the council.

But City Manager Roger M. Scott said that unless the committee determines what the committee will consider and sets its purpose, it may find itself faced with several "pitfalls."

Scott said that often CAC members get offended and dis-

Billboard 'War' May Just Be Getting Started

The moratorium declared by City Council on billboards a month ago may be over, and the war between the billboard industry and opposing parties just beginning.

In a letter to City Manager Roger M. Scott released Monday, Councilman F. Reld Ervin asked that section 3-5 of the City Code be amended to include a ban on billboards along the expressway.

Section 3-5 of the code states that no billboards can be placed along the Oceanfront from 40th Street to the southernmost boundary of the city with the exception of those used to identify businesses.

Ervin asked that the amended section of the code be given a first reading for passage on October 12.

He also asked that the planning director, Charles Carrington, deliver an outline of the signboard study to council so that will be available for future deliberations.

"No applications for use permits for billboards at any location should be accepted by the Planning Department pending completion of the study," Ervin wrote.

However, use permit applications for proper identification of businesses located on the business site should be processed as usual, he said.

Ervin said that after passage of the proposed amendment, the city attorney should be ordered allusioned and eventually act as a liability to the city. "They tend to see themselves as experts" in dealing with the city's problems, and get mad when Council doesn't follow through on their advice, he said.

Scott recommended that the membership be "short term" to give a broad spectrum of citizens a chance to serve on the committee, and that a specific purpose be determined as the issues arise.

As the resolution is currently phrased, membership will consist of no less than 15 or more than 27 members, and that the CAC shall consider such matters as referred to it by council.

Rhodes said he had already received requests for appointments and would rather wait until the purpose and composition are finalized before he considered names.

Council was also asked to consider rescinding a section of the City Code dealing with amusement taxes on school functions. In a letter from the First Colonial High School Parents League, Harold Kahn said that the taxes imposed on school-sanctioned events are "grossly unfair."

Kahn said that receipts collected from the events are being used to purchase band and football uniforms, library books and other items used to improve the public school system.

A 10 per cent amusement tax is imposed on such events, and Kahn asked that the section be written to exclude "sanctioned organizations and student groups in the schools."

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell Jr. agreed with the argument, and said that the tax is "in effect, depriving funds from schools."

Rhodes referred the request to the city attorney to study the feasibility of excluding the schools.

In other matters, council:

- Deferred indefinitely a use permit application by Robo Wash Co. to operate a car wash and gas station on the North-east corner of Boyd and Rosemont roads in Princess Anne Plaza, pending final plans by the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway authority for construction of on and off-ramps on Rosemont Road for traffic toward Virginia Beach.
- Approved two ordinances dealing with the extension of use permits which would allow them to remain valid for 12 months instead of six months and make possible an extension of the permit for another six months following the 12 month period.
- Was told that the First Colony Telephone Company will

TITLES WERE HIS BUSINESS: Vince Lombardi, two Eastern Division and one World title as offensive line coach with N.Y. Giants. ... Six Western Division and five World championships with Green Bay Packers. ... A winning season his only year at Washington. Off the field, he was "Sportsman of the Year" and "Salesman of the Year" in 1969. And one of the titles he was proudest of was "Ex-newspaper boy."

DEPENDABILITY COUNTS!

... A tribute to newspaperboys by the late Vince Lombardi

"A coach really appreciates a dependable performer," said Vince Lombardi, the late head coach of the Washington Redskins and one of pro football's all-time coaching greats. "He's the man that wins the big ones for you. You count on him to deliver—and he never lets you down."

"Newspaperboys are like that too: Reliable, hard-working, on the job in all kinds of weather. As newspaper subscribers we all appreciate the year-round good service we get from our carriers—and when that Newspaperboy Day comes around, we ought to tell them so!"

Opposing coaches will tell you Vince Lombardi was usually right—and he was on target again when he talked about newspaperboys. They're dependable, industrious—and thrifty too. Many of them buy U.S. Savings Bonds regularly out of earnings for college and other future needs. It's another mark of their good citizenship, their service to community and country. The Treasury wishes them a Happy Newspaperboy Day 1970.

All of the Virginia Beach High School went into their third week of the football season last weekend.

In the one to watch Friday, the Cavaliers of Princess Anne took every advantage in their victory over the Granby Comets, 16-8. P.A.'s first score came on the next to last play in the first quarter when quarterback Al Strange completed a seven yard pass to end Tom Butts. This came after a 62-yard march led by fullback Jerry McGrath. Eddie Diehl made the conversion. Although P.A. picked up all four of Granby's fumbles, their break came in the second period when a punt was lost off of a Comet and P.A. recovered on the Granby 43 yard line. Four plays later, McGrath scored from the 23, and Ronnie Walls made the two point conversion. Finally, in the third quarter, Granby mounted a 57-yard drive ending with Comet Buddy Walker scoring from the nine. A pass to Pat Orem made it eight for the Comets, but that just wasn't good enough.

In other action, the Pilots of Norview shut out the Falcons of Cox to the tune of 20-0. Norview's Larry Steppney scored the first and last touchdowns for the Pilots on runs, while Otis Purvis caught passes for the second TD as well as the conversion. Through it all, Cox just couldn't get moving.

The Marlins of Bayside upset the First Colonial Patriots with a score of 22-15. Marlin Lance Platz scored two TD's, one on a 66-yard punt return, and a conversion to star in Bayside's scoring.

To round out the evening's action, the Chiefs of Kempsville defeated the Kellam Knights with a score of 14-4. The Knights were first on the board with a pass from quarterback Clyde Jones to Mike Delullo. After that it was Kempsville's game. Chiefs Jerry Inge and Julius Hurdle scored the TD's and Bob Taylor made the kicks.

This Friday all of the Virginia Beach High Schools see action, starting with Bayside hosting Kellam. Cox will be at Lake Taylor, First Colonial will be at Kempsville, and Princess Anne will be at Maury.

Predictions

Predictions: Bayside over Kellam, Lake Taylor over Cox, First Colonial over Kempsville, and Princess Anne over Maury. One to watch: Princess Anne-Maury.

New Fabrics Require New "Know-How"

MAKE YOUR OWN LINGERE

With the "do-it-yourself" craze gaining momentum every day in America, the ladies are getting as interested as men have been for many years. With the many new fabrics and the new sewing machines, with a little instruction mother can not only make clothes for the children but for herself-including lingere. MRS. NINA POSTON, proprietor of Poston's Fabric & Sewing Center in the Kempsville Plaza Shopping Center, conducts classes in various techniques of sewing. MRS. POSTON'S classes learn by doing. She not only demonstrates to them how but they actually make garments for themselves and the family. Here MRS. POSTON demonstrates how to cut from a pattern.

LINDA QUICK, following directions, is cutting out a pair of flare legged panties, as LINDA CASTLE, VIRGINIA ALLEN, SHIRLEY BURROUGHS, THELMA BYRD and MRS. POSTON watch.

MRS. POSTON shows SHIRLEY BURROUGHS some of the little secrets of sewing lace and other frills to the panties she is making. Little secrets like using cellophane tape to hold the lace in place while it's being sewn to the garment.

In addition to the lingere course MRS. POSTON also teaches classes in art of sewing double knits, sweater knits and bathing suit knit. Each class is limited to six persons and is completed in six lessons. In the lingere class each member will make a pair of briefs, a pair of flare legged pants, petti pants, a girdle and a half slip.

Now to the sewing machines. Each lady sews up her own garment.

Young pianist shines on a sunny afternoon

The Friends of Music re-wardingly preempted a sunny Sunday afternoon to present their initial program of the season. Prada Sikorski, a young dark haired performer, reminding one of a Greek muse in her pensive, thoughtful, and somewhat aloof expression, is not unknown to concert goers in the area. She has appeared on the Kaleidoscope series with the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra and last season appeared with the Feldman String Quartet.

Her program began with the well known Haydn E minor Sonata. This piece is often attempted by advancing piano students. It was a pleasure to hear it played so well. Miss Sikorski preset her dynamic levels to early classic dimensions and the architecture of the phrases flourished within this framework. Her articulation for the most part was precise. One of the pianist's assets is her ability to achieve a musically languid sound coupled with a singing tone. This was shown to great advantage in the Adagio. The Sonata bubbled to a close with the predominantly Alberti-based Vivace.

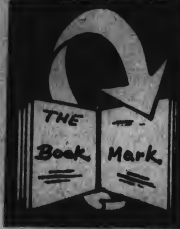

The opening statement of the Bach Toccata gave evidence of the pianist's strength and the piano's weakness. The instrument unfortunately had a chalky bass which could not produce the sonorities required. Or as in the Adagio the muted sonorities ran together. Perhaps some of this resulted from a compensatory over-pedaling. The fugue was begun at a safe, metered tempo but reached an exciting climax to conclude the first half of the program.

The Sonetto, a charming, lyrical piece of Liszt, was a good foil for what was to follow. Some of the most exciting playing of the afternoon was the Transcendental Etude in F Minor. Miss Sikorski displayed a fire and brilliance not evidenced up to this point. Her left hand encompassed the gigantic leaps and technical demands with the ease of a polished pro. She encountered this work with the joy of a performer rediscovering an old friend in her repertoire.

The Barber Sonata is one of the most dynamic contributions to the mid-twentieth century piano repertoire. The demonic drive that propels it should be relentless. It is orchestral in conception presenting an endless shifting of textures. Rather than abandoning herself to the passion of the piece Miss Sikorski was in complete control, calculating technically and emotionally throughout this large scale work. She achieved through wide and arms the feeling of weighted depths necessary in the first and fourth movements but found her forte in the Allegro vivace creating the personification of controlled leggerissimo playing. The driving syncopated fugue that concludes this work has the rhythmic feel of Bach-like jazz. It requires all the drive, energy and bravura playing that a pianist possesses. Miss Sikorski was there with all three to conclude a stirring program by an exciting new talent. She wisely chose not to play an encore. Anything after the Barber would have been anticlimactic.

CAROL MENKE NOON

THE DEVIL'S LIEUTENANT, by M. Eagan. New York, G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1970, $6.95.

Undoubtedly one of the most absorbing books on the continuing struggle between justice and injustice to be published in quite a long time. The problem posed in THE DEVIL'S LIEUTENANT is precipitated by the murder of a captain of the elite General Staff of the Royal Austro-Hungarian Army. This captain had been sent a circular letter describing a revolutionary new aphrodisiac, guaranteed to revive diminished sexual potency. Along with the aphrodisiac, he received a sample of the product. Feeling that such a capsule might be exactly what he needed, he swallowed two just before a date. Almost immediately, he died. The capsules each contained one gram of potassium cyanide.

Judge Advocate Emil Kunze is assigned to the case which is destined to have the most shattering consequences on the entire empire. Not only had Captain Mader been a target of the killer, but also nine other officers of the General Staff received identical circulars with identical capsules. Captain Kunze slowly narrows down his suspects to one officer, Lt. Peter Dorffrichter. Although he seems in every way one of the most able and upstanding of men, Kunze believes he is guilty. The greater part of THE DEVIL'S LIEUTENANT shows the struggle between these two men, with Kunze trying to prove Dorffrichter guilty or to have him confess, and Dorffrichter in his own way trying to break the Judge Advocate. This book deserves your undivided attention, especially for the excellent portrayal of the two characters of Kunze and Dorffrichter.

"With this kind of leadership I think it is obvious that the revised Constitution enjoys wide support in Virginia Beach," he said. Astro Advice love. There are the obvious answers of course. The sun, in one horoscope in the same place as the Ascendant (rising sign) in the other is a powerful attraction. But is this love? Many astrologers would say that there is no aspect that will bring about love. This may be true. As a scientific astrologer, which means that I want to prove before I accept, I find this more than unsatisfactory. There should be one aspect that, above all others, will produce love. But there isn't.

I have a friend in California who has made some very interesting experiments along this line. She has a lovely home with a beautiful, almost formal, dining room. In order to test some of the astrological tenets, she will invite as many as six people, carefully selected, of course, to a nice cozy candlelight dinner. The strange thing is, that the people who are so powerfully attracted to each other, often lose interest very quickly, while those who should be quite antagonistic often have a brief period of coolness but then become quite close and on several occasions have developed strong affectional ties. On a couple of occasions these people have ended up at the altar.

As a result of these experiments, and some I have made on my own, I must honestly admit that I do not know what brings about love. In fact I am not sure that it is at all what I was taught it was as a youngster. Often I find people who are in love fighting and mistreating each other in ways that I would never mistreat my worst enemy, if I had one. I confess I doubt that the state called love exists.

Blame It On Eclipse

QUESTION: This summer has seen our family experiencing one difficulty after another. Illness, accidents and misfortune have marked the past three months. Can I expect something in the months ahead? Signed RG.

ANSWER: One of the reasons that you have had such a difficult time is that the Eclipse, which occurred on March 7th, fell in very close conjunction to your natal Neptune. Neptune rules the fourth house (governing the home) in your horoscope. The nature of Neptune is such that in most instances it creates a lot of confusion and the fourth house is the home. Added together we have, simply, confusion in the home. Very simple mathematics.

As far as the future is concerned there should not be too much more confusion. It is often difficult to tell just how long the effects of an Eclipse will last, however.

One thing that you must look out for is that in the very near future the planet Uranus will be exactly conjunct Jupiter, which governs your ascendant. This could bring about some rather difficult times in so far as the health is concerned. Since you did not give me the place of birth I am rather reluctant to try to be more specific. The next couple of months will bring some changes into your life, however.

Address your questions to Astro-Advice, Virginia Beach Sun, P.O. Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451. All questions will be answered as space permits but must include date, time and place of birth.

THE VOICE OF VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA

Women stood firm and midi died

By JAMES TURNER

Referred to as the "Edel of the fashion world," the midi died a slow death last month, much to the pleasure of Rose Hall's vice president and buyer, Ronald Komoroski.

"I hated it," he said, "and I was glad to see the American female consumer stand up and say they weren't going to stand by and get something pushed on them."

The fact that the midi died may ultimately improve fashions, he said. "I was very disappointed in the market, because there were fewer manufacturers for me to choose from. The ones who are gone were the marginal firms anyway."

What happened to the market, at best a very complicated situation, can be explained fairly simply if you consider fashions and the industry like any other business, he said.

Since the garment unions were the last to feel the effects of increased wage demands, the industry didn't realize they would have to hike their prices until about two years ago, he said.

And when they did, they got caught in a recession, tight money, and the first of the ever present consumer who refused to pay the price for new fashions, Komoroski said.

The result of the whole mess is that the quality of merchandise has gone down, and until very recently, the level of defective goods returned by Rose Hall was about eight per cent, the 24-year-old Pittsburgh native said.

"In Paris, the designers pushing the midi look knew they needed a new look, and the manufacturers in America grabbed at a straw. Unfortunately, they guessed wrong."

"They gambled everything on the midi taking off, and when they didn't, a lot of them went under," he said.

The remaining firms—some old and established, others just started within the year—those who are still swimming, he said, are learning how to work more efficiently.

All of which means that the American woman is getting a deal out of the whole thing. For those who can't afford to buy the expensive lines, she can get the less expensive items and still look just as good, he said.

But it doesn't make Komoroski's job as a buyer any easier. Just returned from a buying trip last week in New York, he said that buying goods is like a game.

"We went into one house and saw a design they had just brought out of the back. They had a girl there sketching it, and naturally everyone who came in went over to look."

"As we looked at it, she told us it was top secret and had just come off the design boards, not to tell anyone what we had seen, but how did we like it?"

"We left there and went to the next showing, and saw the same thing. That's what I mean. They steal from each other and then tell us it's their original idea," he said.

Though Komoroski said "game" might not be the right word, he doesn't think from the showroom angle the industry seems to go about fashions in a very efficient manner.

As a buyer, he said, he has to think of the store and everything else. That "everything else" includes the buyer, local variety, that is.

"My responsibility to the women is to get the best possible goods for them at the best possible price. Of course, there's fashion involved," he added.

"Take the midi, for example. I had to buy some of it even though I didn't like it. We carried about 10 per cent of our stock in midi's; we're getting them sold, but not very fast."

"The problem with them is that if you buy midi, you have to get another complete accessory line to compliment it. And most women can't or won't do it, either because they can't afford it or because they don't like it." That may have been its downfall.

What will replace it? "I don't know. You have to be a fool or an expert to attempt to forecast fashions. I'm neither," Komoroski said.

Showing in New York are a variety of dress and skirt lengths that are bound to please the shopper. "They run anywhere from two to four inches above the knee, at the knee, and just below the knee," he said.

Another new style is what's called the Gibson Girl Look. It has skirts that break just above the ankle, a great amount of lace and frill, and is shown against blouses with the old Gibson Girl shoulder and sleeve, again with lace everywhere, he said.

The Gaucho Look is about all that will remain of the midi look. "When I walked the streets in New York looking at what the women there were wearing, I saw a lot of the gaucho, and if the women in that city wear it, it's usually going to catch on," he said.

Komoroski says that what most women fail to realize is that the fashions they wear usually come from the couture houses.

The people in the garment district go uptown and buy an original, then bring it back and tear it apart at the seams. They knock it down, add a few things from other designs, make it wearable for most situations, and then put it out for us to look at, he said.

The key in buying is knowing where to go, since there are so many lines to choose from. Rose Hall has a resident buying office in New York, and each time Komoroski goes on a buying trip he stops by the Sophie E. Felts Company on Seventh Avenue and talks to the buyer in each department.

"After I find out what they suggest we look at, I get a listing of manufacturers and go out on the streets. We stay there from 9 a.m. to 5:30 or 6 in the evening for four days."

From the listings, compiled by Felts Company buyers who "work the market" each day, Komoroski said he gets an idea of what's being shown and is selling and goes from there.

"I have a responsibility to the store to get goods here that will sell and that are of high quality. Of course I have to see that we make money, but I don't buy something that will look bad on a customer."

"Even after I get back, if I think something won't look good on a woman, I tell her so and won't sell it to her because it's not fair."

What might help if a woman today is interested in fashion design would be to rummage around in the old attics for fashion magazines from the 20's or 30's.

"We went to see a friend in the Village who deals in old magazines. He told us the fashion designers are coming down and buying old copies of fashion magazines so they can get the detail on the dresses."

"If that gives you any idea about where we're going, then great. Because I'm afraid to guess," Komoroski said.

From mid to midi....

"You have to be a fool or an expert to forecast fashions."

Beach Hogs Affected By Cholera Quarantine

In the first three weeks of operations, the cooperative State-Federal effort to eradicate hog cholera in quarantined areas of Virginia and North Carolina has resulted in depopulation of 20 infected and 22 exposed herds of swine totaling 3200 head.

Several large herds recently found infected, however, will bring the total number depopulated to over 10,000 by the end of this week.

State and Federal indemnities are paid to farmers whose herds are depopulated to help reimburse losses. Animals are appraised at actual value for meat, feeding or breeding purposes. Indemnities are based on this appraisal subject to State and Federal limitations.

Coordinating eradication efforts in the two-State area is Dr. R. E. Omohundro, Assistant Director of the Animal Health Division, U.S. Department of Agriculture. The intensive program got underway on Sept. 8, 1970.

Over 130 State and Federal personnel are engaged in the eradication effort. Dr. Omohundro points out that these specially trained veterinarians and livestock inspectors are taking every precaution to contain the disease while working towards its elimination.

State and Federal quarantines remain in effect in three counties and four city areas of Virginia and in five counties of North Carolina. The Virginia Counties of Southampton, Isle of Wight, and Nansemond are quarantined, as are the Cities of Chesapeake, Portsmouth, Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

No feeder pigs or breeding stock may be moved interstate from an area under federal quarantine for hog cholera. Market hogs may be shipped directly to slaughter, but only after a permit has been obtained and the herd has been inspected. State quarantines impose similar restrictions on intrastate movement of swine.

The search for hog cholera by survey teams continues on a farm-by-farm basis in quarantine areas and adjacent counties. In most instances, multiple checks will be made, according to Dr. Omohundro, to preclude any possibility of sick herds going undetected.

Surry and Sussex Counties of Virginia and Currituck County, North Carolina were released from Federal and State quarantines last week following completion of surveys. None of these three counties had experienced recent outbreaks of hog cholera. Hog Cholera is an infectious, highly contagious virus disease which affects swine only. It does not affect people. It can be fatal; and in other instances it can appear in chronic form with low death losses over an extended period of time. Herds such as these are a constant source of danger to clean herds in the community.

Huffman appointed By Bank

First & Merchants National Bank has announced the appointment of William W. Huffman, trust officer, as a new business representative in the bank's Tidewater region.

In making the announcement, Nathaniel Beaman, III, senior trust officer of the Tidewater region, stated that Huffman, who has been engaged in the trust field since his retirement from the Navy, will be headquartered in Norfolk and concentrate his activities throughout the entire South Hampton Roads area in the development of trust new business.

Huffman was transferred to Norfolk from the bank's Staunton region. He makes his home in Virginia Beach with his wife, the former Amelia Lindebaum, and their three children.

FIRST FAMILY—Jesse Pugh, Larasan Realty salesman, turns keys to a new Windsor Oaks West home over to Marine Captain and Mrs. Jesse Scott and their children, the first family to move into this new section of the city. Developer of Windsor Oaks West is Clark-Whitehill Corporation. Within the next five years there will be about 1,000 single dwellings in the area.

Rudee Guard Station Sought

The city's request to the U.S. Coast Guard to locate a new station in the Rudee Inlet met with relative success Tuesday, Samuel W. Scott Jr. said.

Scott, city tourism development coordinator, along with Assistant City Manager David B. Norman and Police Sgt. Franklin R. Scarborough, talked with Rear Adm. Thomas R. Sargent III, assistant commandant in charge of Coast Guard Operations.

Scott said the meeting was "encouraging" and that he felt the chances of having a cutter located in the Inlet had increased.

Even if the cutter is not placed in the Inlet on a permanent basis, he said it could possibly be assigned there during the peak months of use. He said he expected to continue discussions of the assignment of a cutter on a local level with area Coast Guard officials.

The new Coast Guard station is needed, the city officials feel, because of ever-increasing private and commercial boating activity at Rudee Inlet.

Scott said offshore fishing

(from 15 to 60 miles out) from Virginia Beach has increased more than 300 per cent in the past five years.

"But," he says, "the boating activity we now have will be almost like nothing when compared to what we expect in a few years as Rudee Inlet is developed."

Sgt. Scarborough, who has headed the City Police Patrol Boat crew for the past two years, says about 75 boats a day have gone in and out of Rudee since the launching ramp was constructed in Owl Creek two years ago. Projections are that this average will increase up to 500 a day within five years.

Besides normal services with pleasure and fishing boat traffic, it is felt that a Coast Guard crew stationed in Rudee would be in better position to answer distress calls from any type vessel off the Virginia Beach coast. Scott says 360 passenger and cargo ships go by each month and Rudee Inlet would provide an easier route for a Coast Guard cutter to reach them when needed.

If Rear Admiral Sargent and other Coast Guard officials are receptive to the proposal, city-owned land might be made available for construction of necessary facilities.

Four local Men at Conference

Four representatives of Terry Corporation of Virginia are attending the International Apartment Conference now in progress in Washington D.C. The event is being sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders.

Horace A. Cistola and Frederick J. Napolitano, principals of Terry Corporation, are attending along with Louis Lucente, vice-president and general manager of Terry's residential division, and R. L. Thompson, residential production director.

Napolitano, a NAHB vice-president, will moderate a panel discussion at the conference on feasibility and market research programs.

Woman Manages Complex

Rhae W. Adams, President of The Virginia Beach Enterprises, Inc. announced the appointment of Mrs. Frances Derring as general manager of the White Heron Motel and adjacent properties.

The White Heron complex between Laskin Road and Linkhorn Bay, includes the White Heron Motel, the former Bay Harbour Club, the original Olympic Health Club, pool area, tennis courts and private marina. It was purchased on July 17, 1970 by Virginia Beach Enterprises.

Mrs. Derring who assumed her managerial position recently brings to the property an impressive background in hotel-motel operation both locally and in Florida.

The development of extensive plans for revamping and enhancing the $1,750,000 layout will be under the direction of Mrs. Derring, according to Adams, who stated the improvement program to be activated in the very near future will be the facilities to greater diversification in servicing the community and accommodating visitors.

The former Bay Harbour Club is already proving a welcomed facility for social, cultural and business functions, Mrs. Derring said, adding "that the dining room now under the management of George (Buddy) Barco is enjoying a new popularity."

Don't take drastic steps until answers are known Memory is oftentimes very short. It is a failing of human nature.

Nineteen years ago there was no beach at Virginia Beach. The boardwalk dropped off into eight feet or so of swirling Atlantic Ocean. The old Episcopal Church right on the oceanfront was about six inches away from slipping into oblivion. Those who invested in oceanfront property at that time were considered fools and those who held property of long standing were stuck with it. There was no market for property which undoubtedly would be slowly eaten away by the tides. There was no construction, no new hotels or other development along Atlantic Avenue. The investment houses would not risk loans. This situation did not happen overnight, of course. It had been happening day in, day out for many years. And by 1951 Virginia Beach was pathetic. The city at that time was the old city, the section which today is Virginia Beach Borough. It's only economy was the resort. Without the beach there was no resort.

Members of the General Assembly visited the beach that year, at the urging of concerned citizens, and were appalled at what they saw. They carried the message back to the 1952 session and were able to overcome the opposition of non-resort areas to establish an official group to possibly solve Virginia Beach's plight. Hence, the creation of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission.

The commission, composed of five members appointed by the governor, has been controversial ever since it came into being. The concerned citizens, even though they recognized the emergency that existed, were opposed to dumping the four-smelling dredged material onto the beach. Many a friendship fell at the wayside during those trying days for the method was not necessarily a proven one and the skeptics fought the commission.

The commission fought back. They fought not only their skeptical neighbors, but unconvinced legislators as well. They somehow managed to keep the funds coming through appropriations from the city, the State and the Federal government. This five-man commission was instrumental in bringing Virginia Beach to the point it is today.

Now it has been proposed that the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission be abolished. It is believed that the City Manager and his staff can absorb this work in their already hectic schedule and that the city's financial department can just as easily handle this money.

If such a step is taken it could possibly have adverse effects on the beach in years to come. Not because the City Manager or the City Treasurer isn't capable or willing to assume this responsibility but because it would defeat the one thing that has kept the commission effective-political immunity.

The Erosion Commission is politically appointed, but it is not politically involved. It is immune to the pressures of city politics and with the recent appointment of a Republican representative it is even more diverse in its views.

To absorb this commission into the inter-workings of the city could possibly, and we stress possibly, eventually make beach replenishment a political football. If this group had been municipally controlled in the early days the beach project would have been defeated before it began because of the controversy surrounding its effectiveness.

How well the city alone will fare in getting State and Federal funds is another point well worth considering. We must recognize the fact that State legislators would be more inclined to appropriate funds for the continued operations of a commission established by the State than they would to appropriate funds to an individual city.

The State Ports Authority controversy bears this out.

If the composition or method of appointment of the commission is the bone of contention, then change the representation and the method of appointment. But don't abolish the commission.

Members of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission have made invaluable contributions to the development of this resort city. They have done it voluntarily and unselfishly. And they have done a good job. No one can deny that. Find other ways of making appointments, change the rulings on insurance coverage, establish a more open system of bookkeeping but don't abolish the commission. It is badly needed.

Changes Reviewed

(NOTE: THIS IS THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF FOUR WEEKLY INFORMATIONAL ARTICLES OF THE REVISED CONSTITUTION PROVIDED BY VINEYARD FOR THE CONSTITUTION)

On Oct. 3, the people of Virginia will be asked to vote on constitutional amendments which will generally revise the Constitution of Virginia as the first time in 42 years. These amendments are the product of almost three years' effort, including approval of the amendments by two sessions of the General Assembly, and they have been endorsed by Gov. Linwood Holton and former Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr.

Thomas Jefferson often pointed out the importance of revising the Constitution about once a generation in order to meet the state's changing needs. Virginians have followed his advice, revising the Constitution five times since 1776, about once every 30 years—or as Mr. Jefferson said, about once a generation.

However, it has been more than 40 years since the Constitution was last revised, that

If you are perfectly content with the way the political scene is these days and if you are a rather conventional straight-down-the-line type of person, you won't enjoy Art Buchwald's "Sheep On the Runway" now running at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse.

But if you are a bit disgruntled about the overall world situation, take a dim view of some of the goings on in Washington, are occasionally considered out of step with the "mainstream," especially the Washington establishment, this play will tickle you right where it tickles.

It's a better-shelter romp, taking pot shots at just about every political figure, from the President on down, and making bare-faced fun of some of this country's contributions toward world peace.

The plot is insignificant, really, and not intended to be taken seriously. It's pure satire and must be enjoyed as such.

It all takes place in a fictional country known as Nonomura, obviously oriental, which is ruled by a push-over prince. The American ambassador to that country, bored with his assignment, invites a war-mongering political columnist over to see this insignificant little domain and in no time at all the columnist's sheets of "Communist infiltration" draw an onslaught of American "support."

Sleepy Nonomura is suddenly overrun with all types of Washington characters: a Pentagon general whose only wish is to unload a batch of war equipment from over-stocked stockpiles; an AID man who desperately tries to push some ridiculous and totally useless reports off on the poor, confused prince; and the exaggeratedly secretive CIA man who keeps his cool, despite the chaos going on around him.

Now, mixed in with this conglomeration of characters is the ambassador and his family... and they just have to be seen to be believed. Gene Adair as the ambassador is quite good (even though his resemblance to Winston Churchill is at first disconcerting) and his wife, Vi Ragan, is terrific as she calmly and primly goes about her business in face of total disaster. Their daughter is a rebel of the first order, even takes over the country for a short time until mama persuades her to give it back to the prince (he told you the plot is insignificant). Sallye Tillett is a lovely young actress and does well in the role of the daughter, but she lacks the fire needed to convince you she really could take over the country if she was so inspired.

The cast was good right down the line: John Wells is absolutely knocky as the insanely neurotic columnist; J. Michael Hunter as the ambassador's young aide lends just a touch of romance to this crazy group of characters and will undoubtedly be seen many times in young male lead roles; Peter Dixon is hilarious as the prince's top general who takes his turn at over-throwing the government, and Richard C. Frederick does well in his dual role of the butler and the CIA man.

The three scene-stealers, however, are Steven Feinstein as Prince Gov, James Rankin as the Pentagon general and Tom Morgan as "Smelling Aid." This trio never steps out of character and their antics make a mockery of the play. Feinstein's running-around-in-the-face-of-complete-collapse; Rankin's drunken display at the bar; Morgan's Peter Sellers-style bumbling... they all brought belly-laughs from Thursday night's small, but enthusiastic, audience.

Jack Fisher has done a fine job in directing this rambling bit of nonsense, but his cast seems adrift at times as they wander about the stage, apparently wondering what their next move will be. The sets, by Ralph McAllister, are most effective in their Middle East garbiness but the sound is far too loud in the shouting scenes to be even slightly realistic.

This play is not going to be among the Cavalier's top favorites. It's too old-fashioned and too far removed from the usual dinner-theater fare. But there are some out-of-step characters in this area who are going to enjoy "Sheep on the Runway." This reviewer happened to be one.

Not long ago in the big city of Moline, Texas, a four-day celebration was held honoring the lovely mule. This was a small event. Funds were collected on a nationwide basis. A life-size fiberglass statue of the lovely mule was dedicated. It was a big day for the mule and for the town of Moline. The memorial was dedicated to the memory of all mules who have such an important role in the pioneering of America. This is a fitting tribute to a noble beast.

Every major contribution to the growth of this great country should be rewarded by such recognition. Most everything and everyone has been covered by now—but not all.

No states, no national holiday, no special week, not even a small plaque or even a tiny celebration has honored one of the best known, firmly fixed and widely accepted corner stones of our country.

Our country, our government, yes, even our position in the free world owes a debt to one very important bit of our past and present. We should no longer fail to give the recognition due.

Let's start now. Build a marble monument, have a national holiday, set aside a special week, place a plaque in every government building, erect a tall statue in every park for the proper tribute to the very foundation of our country, —"THE BROKEN POLITICAL PROMISE."

We all know that the political promise is made just to be broken. No one really expects a politician to keep the promise made in search of the almighty vote needed to win. It's a good game and we all seem to enjoy it. The single endorsement of a political campaign is the promise made. Who can promise us the most-at no cost, of course. Which candidate will take care of all our needs, desires and pleasures without raising our taxes or depriving us of our full rights and liberties.

We don't expect action or results from our politicians but the promise makes us happy. This depressing every election time in our national heritage. We can get excited and deliriously happy when we hear good political promises.

If any honest politician made even a minor effort to keep any great portion of the promises made in order to get elected, he would be promptly impeached. More likely he would be run out of town on a rail or tarred and feathered to boot.

Just imagine, if you can, if all the roads, bridges, dams, schools, hospitals, salary increases, jobs and other things promised were ever fulfilled... we would be bankrupt overnight. The cost of keeping political promises is prohibitive. Everyone knows this.

No matter, the promise race goes on and on. It is all in fun. I think. It does present one minor problem, however. Over the long period of time our country has been around we have elected the best promises. The candidate with the biggest and best promises always seems to get elected.

Now, since someone who makes a promise and does not keep it is considered a liar, doesn't this make us a nation run by liars? No little fibbers but great big liars.

No wonder things seem to go from bad to worse. Oh well, I guess it could be somewhat worse. If we ever run out of liars, who would be our glorious leaders?

Let's be grateful for our wonderful promises. How about going all out and giving proper recognition to the fine history of the millions of broken political promises. How dull it would be without them.

We could even have an annual "Liar Award" with national TV and press coverage. The politician who over the country could select one from among these liars as the best example of the politician of the year. Let's make it a national holiday. This might give us more life to the annual fun and games we have when we elect our best batch of leaders.

Use is Questioned

The readers were in agreement last week that the city should develop its old city dump at Laskin and Holly Roads but were not necessarily in agreement about its use.

The question in last week's survey limited its use by asking "Should the city develop its old city dump at Laskin and Holly Roads into a city park and zoo?"

The readers voted unanimously in favor of developing the eye-sore at one of the resort's busiest intersections.

One man noted "Let's turn our attention toward the development in Virginia Beach of something besides more houses." To that reader we say thank you for the kind words about the Sun's new pictorial "In-Sight" and assure him that we do plan "to keep it up."

Another reader altered the question to read "Should the city develop its old city dump at Laskin and Holly Roads for the future, through use of 'solid fill' material generated by new construction projects or municipal activities?" An excellent suggestion.

And yet another reader voted in favor of the development but added that "It might also be considered for the Little Theatre complex, as you mentioned in an earlier editorial."

The city's amusement tax, which has been active in the form of an ordinance for several years but just enforced with respect to schools, has drawn considerable fire from concerned parents of school children.

A simple ordinance by the city can rescind the tax, the city would be in violation of a state ordinance prohibiting discriminatory taxation. Thus, a state law exempting the schools would be necessary.

The city is now considering asking the General Assembly to rescind that portion of the law affecting schools or exempting those groups. How wide-spread is the opposition to enforcement of the tax?

that time the developers and realtors will have to begin work.

The report is very protective about farm lands. "The quality of agricultural lands was not considered as a primary factor in the Kempville area, because the best agricultural lands have already been utilized for urban use."

Since agriculture is the second-largest income producer in Virginia Beach and acts as the area's "breadbasket," that land has to be preserved, Barrow said.

Then, if the urban developers use the best suited lands first and then follow through with the suitability phases, the city will be able to extend itself gradually and provide the necessary services.

But there are services that will have to be provided between 1970 and 1975.

The roadway system, according to the report, will require several additional improvements. Specifically, there are the widening of Providence Road to a four-lane divided facility between Kempville Road and the Chesapeake City area, the widening of Princess Anne Road into a similar roadway from Newlin Road through the intersection of Parliament Drive at Arrowhead.

Also, Baxter Road into a two-lane collector to connect Independence Boulevard with Princess Anne Road. "This collector should substantially relieve the through traffic flow on Edwin Drive."

The report also indicates that improved roadways are needed on: Parliament Drive, Greenwich Road, and that Holland, Indian River, and Newtown Roads be widened into four lane facilities.

In addition, the report says there exists a need for a transit system. It notes that the system should "provide adequate service between residential areas and principal employment centers" and that "improved commuter service would help to relieve unemployment and underemployment in poverty pocket areas in Virginia Beach by making jobs accessible."

It would also tend to relieve the traffic congestion that will ultimately strike the area during rush hours. The service should be in the nature of a park-and-ride regional bus service that can be complementary to a commuter system, the report says.

The report also divides the Community Services Plan into four sections: educational facilities, utilities and drainage, and social service facilities.

It estimates that two-thirds of the population growth in the borough will result from single family and townhouse development, and says this type of growth places the largest burden on elementary schools.

In order to handle the increased elementary population, 900-student facilities will be necessary on the College Park-Level Green site, and that a Lark Downs school will be needed adjacent to a junior high complex.

The report also recommends that a site be acquired and reserved in the Fairfield area to be constructed near the end of the 1970-75 planning period or early in the 1975-85 period.

The total number of students anticipated amounts to 2,250. As for junior high school and high school complexes, which are geared to handle an additional 920 and 915 students respectively, only one facility-a junior high-will be needed, that to be located in the South Plaza Trail-Independence Boulevard area.

If present plans are followed, the proposed Green Run Junior-senior complex will be sufficient to handle the load during the planning period.

As for parks, the department recommends that a users fee be collected for use of special facilities and that it be placed in a Municipal Open Space Acquisition Fund.

The fund would then be used to purchase specific areas and improve them as needed, including: Arrowhead Park, New Light-Homestead Park, Lark Downs Lagoon, Woodstock Lake and Gainsborough Park.

The Lagoon would ultimately be developed and used as a passive recreation site.

According to the report, a major area of concern is city sewer and water service, and that service should be based on relief of problem constituting hazards to the community health, promotion of economic development of lands with commercial and industrial potential, and demonstrated need of rural and undeveloped land for urban development.

The planning staff recommended that the lands to be considered as priority areas are those to be used for commercial and industrial purposes.

In addition, the staff also recommends that the city join with the State Water Control Board and State Health Department to force maintenance of minimum treatment standards by the Kempville Utilities company.

Presently, the Kempville Utilities is contributing to the pollution of the Elizabeth River, the report says, and constitutes a "considerable nuisance to the adjoining residential development."

Recommended priorities for city sewer line extensions are: Bellamy Manor; and the Sherry Park-McDonald Park area.

The report also recommended that any future developments utilize the underground wiring system and that present overhead wiring systems along Princess Anne Road and through the urban portion of Kempville Road be replaced by underground systems.

With respect to fire and police protection, the staff recommendation states the Kempville fire station is being hand pressed now to handle the calls and that a new station should be constructed within the five year period west of Interstate 64.

Police protection is being provided by the First Precinct at the Princess Anne Court-house and, according to the police department, should be adequate to meet the needs of the borough over the five year planning period.

Health facilities exist in the form of a temporary facility in the New Light area, but the staff recognized the need for an improved facility and suggests a permanent clinic-hospital, to be developed in the 1975-85 planning period.

The New Light area, along with the Queen City section of the borough, is also a focal point for the housing study.

"Deteriorated conditions, welfare cases, unemployment encountered in these areas, although not as widespread, are very similar to those of the Seaside area," the report says, and recommends that the various city departments concerned conduct studies of the area and develop "commensurate specific recommendations."

But despite the past number of recommendations, the fact remains that all of them are subject to the whim of the public and the attitude of the politicians.

If the city properly attacks the myriad of problems it will confront in the initial planning stage of actual expansion, then the plan for 1975-85 will flow smoothly.

But if the city stumbles or falters in its progress, it will severely hamper the following 10 year plan by delaying the timetable.

A bolishment of Erosion Group Awaits Reports

In a record four and one-half hour informal session, City Council Monday slowed a move to abolish the Erosion Commission until a financial question is resolved and was briefed on the development of a billboard policy.

Until the city can learn if it will lose a $50,000 state grant given the Erosion Commission each year, Council F. Reid Ervin's move to abolish that body has been stopped.

Last week Ervin proposed the state appointed body be abolished and the city take over the Erosion Commission's function of replenishing sand for the beach.

Ervin said the move would be made in an effort to consolidate operations and that it would make for a more efficient operation within the city.

Councilman J. Curtis Payne said that if the operation is continued on a separate basis, the bookkeeping should be coordinated with the city.

Ervin said the Erosion Commission can't oversee the operations like the city manager and his staff can.

Council was told that the signboard policy to request of the planning department was being completed, and that the ordinance to be presented will be written to cover the entire city and not just the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Last week, Ervin requested in a letter to City Manager Roger M. Scott that an amendment be made to section 3-5 of the City Code, which would prohibit signboards along the expressway except those on the premises identifying businesses.

Council was told by City Attorney J. Dale Binson that if the ordinance were enacted, the only signs could be brought into accordance with it would be through a gift, purchase, condemnation, or an abatement clause whereby the billboards would be ordered to conform to the code when contracts with advertisers expire.

Councilman Robert H. Cellis Jr. said that if the council has made a mistake, "We should admit it and go into condemnation."

In other matters, council was told that the Ferrell barrow pit being used by the E. V. Williams Co. was not in violation of the law, and that the Tallwood Civic League did not have a valid complaint about ordinance violations.

"Learned that several residents have complained about possible rate increases by the First Colony Telephone Company. Payne asked the city to enter into the hearings scheduled before the State Corporation Commission in Richmond October 27."

"Was given a report on the city's Drug Focus Committee by Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans, who noted that several important strides have been taken in resolving the drug problem in the city. Evans announced that there would be two public hearings by the committee, the first October 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the First Colonial High School and the second at Plaza Junior High School November 4 at 7:30 p.m."

"Was told that the city has agreed to supply the Dam Neck Naval facility with water through a 12 inch main to be laid from the Sandbridge water system to the south gate of the installation. The city will receive $65,000 for the hook-up."

Continuing improvements are making the Virginia Beach police Special Weapons

Range one of the finest such training facilities on the East Coast.

City Receives Grant To Improve Range

City officials were notified Wednesday by the Virginia Division of Justice and Crime Prevention of approval of their request for federal funds to finance further improvements of training facilities at the Virginia Beach police Special Weapons Range.

Division Director Richard M. Harris, in his letter of notification, stated the City will receive $9,931 in federal funds from the National Council on Criminal Justice for range improvements. Such monies were made available in fiscal year 1970 Action Grant funds provided for under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Capt. C.H. Payne, Inspections Aide to Police Chief Col. W.W. Davis, said, "These particular funds will be used for the purchase of a video tape recorder and play back system, various classroom equipment, night lighting for the range area, a public address system, and a K-9 Corps training equipment storage area, as well as similar improvements."

Payne indicated immediate steps will be taken for the acquiring of equipment needed for the improvements. He also indicated this is the first phase of a continuing project involving improvements during succeeding years.

In applying for the funds last July the City listed the various items which represent the improvements of top priority to bring the training area up to the standard to meet demands being placed upon it. The application estimated these improvements at nearly $15,327. Payne said the City will bear the responsibility of the nearly $5,400 required above the federal grant to complete the program.

In addition to being used for the training of law enforcement officers in the use of the various types of firearms, the Special Weapons Range is also the site of a building which houses indoor classroom facilities used in continual training of police officers, as well as the site of K-9 Corps training facilities.

The importance of the Special Weapons Range was outlined very pointedly in the City's application for federal funds. The application indicated that the facility in addition to be utilized in the training of Virginia Beach regular and auxiliary police officers is also being used by the Tidewater Police Academy at Old Dominion University, in Norfolk, Federal Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms Division Agents from Norfolk, Emporia, Newport News, and Salisbury, Md.; Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel police; and The Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Sgt. E. L. Jackson, president of Princess Anne F. O. P. Lodge # 8, indicates to us that a delegation of Lodge members will travel to Washington, D.C., next Wednesday to represent the resort city in a growing movement against attacks on police officers throughout the nation. The local delegation will include police Sgt.'s E. L. Jackson, M. M. Borden, Jr., and N. C. Morse, and officers S. B. Solorzano and W. H. Smith. Several thousand police officers from throughout United States are expected to gather at noon next Wednesday on the steps of the Capitol to protest the shooting of police officers by militant groups and to press for passage of legislation which would make the death penalty mandatory for persons convicted of such acts. The gathering at Washington is being urged by John J. Harrington, president, National Fraternal Order of Police.

Justices of the Peace James B. Loftin, Jr., George C. Queen, and Louis J. Bryant are preparing to go to Roanoke, next Tuesday and Wednesday to represent Virginia Beach at the 1970 convention of the State J.P.'s Association. Virginia Beach Chief of Police Col. W.W. Davis has been in Atlantic City, N.J., for the past six days attending a special conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

A delegation of 15 police officers from Virginia Beach are attending a special three day seminar at Old Dominion University in Norfolk. The seminar concerning narcotic and dangerous drugs is being conducted at the Tidewater Police Academy by Agents of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. This past week witnessed the addition of three more men to the Virginia Beach Police Department. They include William F. Parks, and eight year veteran of service with the Hampton, Va., Police Department who will be assigned to the East Police Precinct, and Donald J. Gregory and Ralph G. Sapp, who are scheduled to undergo special training at the Tidewater Police Academy. Men of the Davis Corcoran Volunteer Rescue Squad and 3rd Police Precinct this past week became exposed to one of the rather unusual services they may be called upon to perform from time to time. We understand Rescue Squadmen Bobby Hill, John Scanlon, and Butch Simmons, along with police officers Jack Gelland and C.L. Suggs, were dispatched to the Pembroke Apartments area to lend assistance to a woman who reportedly had suffered a heart attack. Our sources tell us the lady, however, had arrived at the moment of child birth. The men rallied to the situation and rushed the woman to the dispensary at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base just in time for the delivery of a baby boy at the entrance to the building. Our informant tells us this was the first such experience for officer Suggs.

Hunting Guide Is Available

Persons wanting more information on where and how to hunt in Virginia should get a copy of the "Virginia Hunters Guide," the Game Commission's Information Office reports.

The 24 page booklet includes descriptions of public and private hunting areas along with information on types of game found there and procedures for getting permits. Also listed are Virginia shooting preserves, bowhunting areas and a county by county breakdown of the past two years' big game kill. Maps show where public hunting areas are located and graphically portrays counties with damage stamp requirements or rifle and slug restrictions.

Copies may be obtained free from the Game Commission's Publication Office, P.O. Box 11104, Richmond, Virginia 23230.

It must be a long way to nowhere — it takes a lot of people a lifetime to get there.

Fish Fry Saturday

The Ocean Park Volunteer Fire and Rescue Unit will hold its annual fish fry dinner Saturday, between 1 and 7 p.m. at the fire station, which is located on Shore Drive three blocks west of the Lynnhaven Inlet Bridge. The entire family is invited to enjoy this fresh Lynnhaven seafood dinner. The donations are: adults, $1.50; children under twelve, $1.00.

Winners Announced

Winners of the Virginia Beach Salt Water Fishing Tournament have been named by the awards committee. Prizes were awarded for species catches but none were given in special awards category.

Winners and the species categories are: croaker and black drum, James C. Wright; blue fish and channel bass, Billy R. Spence; flounder, Wade Newcomb; roundhead, Robert Turner; gray trout, Meredith M. Sample; speckle trout, Robert L. Chambers; puppy drum, Jesse M. Smith; sheepshead, Bertha Belton; bay fish, Mearl J. Sawyer; and sand shark, C. A. Hughes.

The pompano category was a two-way tie with the winners listed as James G. Mehegan and Earnest E. Johnson.

Another tie, this one four-way and in the spot category, produced winners in Charles R. Belch, Violet McClaman, Frank Rowe, and Earnest A. Midgett. The tournament was restricted to the beach front piers.

Booklets Help Reduce Deaths

Virginia Beach residents this week participated in the national observance of Fire Prevention Week with the grim reminder that nine persons have perished in fires in the city in the last year.

Millon T. Holland, director of the city's Fire Prevention Bureau, points to the fact that the majority of persons who lost their lives in fires are young children and infirmed adults who became trapped in fires in their own homes and were unable to escape.

Holland places great importance on establishing a plan for all members of the family to reach safety in the event of a home fire.

Such a plan is clearly outlined in a booklet entitled "Operation EDITR," which stresses the importance of conducting exit drills in the home. The booklet outlines what steps should be followed in the event of discovery of fire in the home and familiarizing all members of the family with the safest routes to follow in the event of fire.

Similar steps are outlined in a pamphlet entitled "In case of fire ... Have you made your escape plan?" This material illustrates how persons might make use of material in the home to protect, and possibly save lives should fire strike the home.

Holland indicates research shows the major causes of fires include careless smoking, children playing with matches, defective electrical wiring and/or heating plants and the careless use of inflammable liquids.

Steps that might take in the home to prevent fires are outlined in an informative pamphlet entitled "You're Fire Safe Home," which spotlights the most prominent causes of residential fires and important points to check in preventing fires.

All of these booklets, and other information which could prove valuable in fire prevention, may be obtained by contacting the city's Fire Prevention Bureau at 427-4438.

The importance of fire prevention might best be understood in the annual toll taken by fires in the United States. The National Fire Protection Association, in their last annual report, showed that during 1969, 2,424,000 fires occurred throughout the nation which resulted in the loss of life, serious injury, and/or heavy property loss. Those fires accounted for 12,100 deaths, of which 6,500 were reported in fires in occupied homes, and property damage in excess of $2,415,000,000.

FBI Seeks Applicants

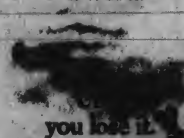

The FBI is presently considering for employment as Special Agents college graduates who have had post-college executive, supervisory or investigative experience.

Military officers, commissioned or non-commissioned, could possibly meet the experience required. Agent applicants must be between 23 and 41 years of age at the time of the filing of their application. Applicants must be 5'7" tall without shoes, having satisfactory vision and bearing, and be able to perform strenuous physical exertion, having no limitations which would interfere with their use of firearms or their participation in raids, dangerous assignments or defense tactics. They must be willing to serve in any part of the United States or Puerto Rico.

The starting salary for a Special Agent is approximately $13,500 including premium overtime pay. A military officer with three years of Government service if hired as a Special Agent would receive 20 working days of annual leave per year to start. The FBI also offers excellent sick leave, health insurance and life insurance benefits to Special Agents. Anyone interested in a challenging and rewarding position should contact the Norfolk Office of the FBI, Room 300, 870 North Military Highway, Norfolk, Va. 23505, telephone number 430-6700.

Very few people live in poverty by choice.

Virginia Beach citizens united last year and this in an effort to clean up and improve living conditions in Seatack. A little paint and a lot of elbow grease can really work wonders.

But that did not by any means solve all the housing problems in the city.

Virginia Beach does not actually have slum areas. But there are a number of poverty pockets. When poor areas are mentioned, usually the first reaction is Seatack. But what about Newtown Road? Holland Road? Bonney Road? And these are just a few. There are some really pitiful houses in rural areas of the city. The Department of Planning is currently mapping out plans to conduct a survey of inadequate housing.

One woman's immediate reaction to the problem was (and it's not too uncommon) "Why don't they go out and get themselves some decent jobs so they can afford a better place?"

Fine.

If you have an education. Or training. Or transportation. Sure the education is there. If you don't have to go to work at 16 to help support a family. Or have a baby. The Vocational-Technical High School now under construction will help in the future. But what about now?

There is a minimum housing code in the city that requires minimum standards, including indoor plumbing. But not all houses have it. The responsibility is placed on the owners. However, many of the residents don't own the houses they occupy.

Friendship Village now in the final stages of construction in Seatack offers privately owned rent supplement apartments with up to four bedrooms. On Carver Street, it will have 110 units. A commercially built, rent supplement apartment development, Bayside Arms, opened on Witchduck Road several years ago. However, only two-bedroom apartments were built, excluding large families.

There is no city-owned low-rent public housing in Virginia Beach.

In Memphis, Tenn., a group of private citizens have incorporated to buy dilapidated houses, invest the money to refurbish them, doing the work themselves on weekends. Then the houses are rented or sold back to people who need them at prices they can afford. Not only are living conditions improved, but the fire hazard is greatly decreased.

Not every citizen can live in a $30,000 home...or a $20,000 home...or a $10,000 home. But every resident is entitled to a home of which he can be proud.

State regent visits chapter Mrs. John Victor Buntington of Clifton, Va., state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, spoke to the Adam Thoroughgood Chapter DAR on DAR history and individual responsibility Tuesday evening.

The meeting was at the home of Mrs. George E. Abbott of Windward Shore Drive.

Disadvantaged kids to gain from school

Good Neighbor II is a new pre-school with the goal of preparing underprivileged children to better meet the challenge of first grade.

The school, which is getting under way this month at Gallies Episcopal Church, is completely supported by private donations. Classes are to meet on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays in classrooms at Gallies. The school day will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. through May.

According to Mrs. Carol Von Wallmenich, who has taught Head Start classes, (there will be six teaching alternate two-week sessions), "The design of the academic pre-school year is based on the rationale that children who are one or more years retarded in language, reading or mathematics must learn at a rate that exceeds the learning rate for the average child in order to catch up. Many children in disadvantaged situations, or children who learn at a slower rate of speed, are in crucial need of personalized pre-school instruction of this kind."

The curriculum is designed to ensure the child's receiving an amount of exposure, practice and correction sufficient to teach what is needed. Direct instruction, similar to that used in regular school, will be used as an alternative to the informal style of the traditional nursery.

Classes will be held in four rooms: a homeroom and three classrooms for special subjects. Homeroom activities will include such things as jigsaw puzzles, books, drawing and tracing materials, Cuisenaire rods and form boards as well as music and story telling. The children will also have their mid-morning snack there.

The entire project is being conducted on a volunteer basis with no cost to the children. The budget this year is about $100 because of the need to buy materials, but Mrs. Von Wallmenich said that next year it will be $400.

The six teachers have been trained in the Berleter-Engleman method of "direct verbal instruction" in language, reading and math.

The enrollment for the first group is limited to 20, all four-year-olds.

Consideration doesn't pay

It's all the federal government's fault.

Last Thursday all school children in Virginia Beach were requested to return cards which would be used in figuring the city's eligibility for impact funds--money (sometimes) given (hopefully) by the government to school systems for federal dependents.

Thursday was a beautiful day--at 6:30 when I got up. By 9:15 when I finally left for work for my 9 a.m. job I was ready to go back to bed and call it quits.

First of all, nobody mentioned the cards until the seven-year-old was going out the door. Then she announced that her teacher said she "had to bring it back" that day. Only she couldn't find it. Fortunately, or unfortunately, the other two had theirs. I finally convinced their sister that her teacher would still let her in the classroom without it.

I filled out the nine-year-old's card first. And she left. That left me with the six-year-old.

Just as I started to fill out his card, the bus came. Although I assured him I would take him to school, he started crying. Then I found out he wasn't worried about going to school--he wanted to go to my office instead.

However, after finishing the card, I shoved him into the car and off we went. My hair wasn't combed and I didn't have any makeup on, but I wasn't planning to be seen by anybody.

I didn't reckon with the six-year-old. He wouldn't get out of the car at school. I finally had to drag him in, still crying, by the hand and into the office. He just stood in the middle of the floor and cried then.

About that time a teacher he knew came along. She told him she needed some help pushing a television set to her room and asked him if he would like to help her. Naturally he stuck out his lower lip and shook his head. She said "please" and he finally, and reluctantly, went off with her.

Then I ran into another teacher who wanted to know how to get a story in the paper, so I told her. When I finally got home again (still no makeup or hair fixed) I discovered that third card in the bedroom.

So I filled that one out too, and dropped it off at the school--where I ran into another teacher. That's the trouble with having three kids.

My only consolation was that the principal thanked me for bringing in the last card. He didn't, however, thank me for the weepy six-year-old.

When I did get to the office, I looked for sympathy from a boss who also has a son in school. However, her reaction was a little different from what I expected. "What card? I never saw anything to fill out today."

Mrs. Jeremiah Denton, Jr. of Virginia Beach, right, and Mrs. Margie Fisher of Roanoke, immediate past president of Virginia Press Women, admire the award Mrs. Denton accepted on behalf of the POW-MIA wives who were named Woman Newsmakers of the Year at the recent VPW convention.

Mrs. Williamson (Boice Studio)

Gregg-Williamson wedding

Miss Linda Jean Gregg became the bride of Gary McCrea Williamson at 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3 in First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. John S. Lyles officiating.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ellison Gregg.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Williamson of E. Bayshore Drive.

Alfred E. Gregg, Jr. gave his sister in marriage. The bride wore a full-length gown with empire waistline. The skirt was pea de sole and the bodice was appliqued with Alençon lace and pearls.

Mrs. Herbert H. Laster of Chesapeake was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Russell V. Allen, another sister, and Mrs. David J. Doran, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. Williamson was his son's best man. Groomsmen were Charles H. Gregg of Suffolk, brother of the bride, David J. Doran of Framingham, Mass.; Robert L. Ingram Jr. of Virginia Beach and Edward Barnes of Norfolk.

Following a reception in the church social hall, the couple left on a southern wedding trip. They will live in Virginia Beach when they return.

Chapter meets next Tuesday

Xi Beta Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13 at the home of Mrs. V.R. Lester.

The program, "How to Be a Real Person," will be given by Mrs. Glen Cameron.

Select fruit trees with care

(Editor's note: This is another in the series on home horticulture by W.P. Jenkins, Virginia Tech extension horticulturist.)

A home fruit orchard may provide delicious fruit to give variety to your menu. The trees may also be used as attractive features of the landscape.

Most home gardeners have room for only a few trees so these must be selected with care. You must consider their ultimate size, their susceptibility to disease and insect problems, and the need for pollination.

The best way to secure the varieties you need is to order them from a reliable nursery. Consult your favorite garden magazine to find the addresses to which you may write for catalogs.

If you have a small yard in which to plant your fruit trees, consider dwarf pear or apple trees. The smallest sizes can be maintained at a height as low as six feet tall.

An ideal way to raise dwarf apple and pear trees is on a wire fence or trellis. This can be used as a border for your property, or to divide and separate different parts of the yard.

The trees may be trained in espalier forms and are especially attractive in late summer and fall when covered with colorful fruit. Ask the extension agent in your county, or send to Virginia Tech for the circular, "An Apple Fence." It gives all the details you need to raise fruit in this interesting manner.

Seckel pears which are resistant to fire blight. Except for fire blight, pears are not troubled seriously by insects or diseases, and can be grown with very little spraying.

Early maturing varieties of apples such as Lady Williams, Early Summer Rambo, and Grimes Golden are good. They ripen early and will be attacked less by insects than those which mature later.

With both apples and pears, you will need to plant at least two varieties to provide pollination. One variety alone will not set fruit and produce a satisfactory crop.

The sour cherry is another good fruit for the home garden. The trees are relatively small and do not take too much room in the back yard. Also, insects and diseases usually are not a serious problem so they can be raised with little or no spraying.

Montmorency is the best sour cherry variety. It pollinates itself so it can be planted alone. It requires very little pruning and will produce good crops with little care.

Sweet cherries are more difficult to grow but may also be included in the home fruit planting. The trees become quite large so plenty of space is needed. You must plant at least two varieties to provide pollination.

Peaches and plums require more spraying to control insects and diseases than the other fruits discussed here. Therefore, unless you are willing to spray them quite regularly during the summer, they should not be included in the home fruit planting.

Pap tests save lives

"When should I have my next Pap test?" is a question asked by many women.

"It's a victory when a woman asks that question," said Dr. Lloyd B. Burk, Jr., of Arlington, president of the American Cancer Society's Virginia Division. "It means she understands the importance of this simple, quick, painless diagnostic test for uterine cancer. She knows that one Pap test is not enough."

According to Dr. Burk, a Pap test should be part of an annual health checkup. However, he added, "Certain women fall into high risk groups for uterine cancer. It is vital for these women to have Pap tests more frequently. A woman's physician can tell her when it is necessary for her to repeat the test."

Named for its Greek-American creator, the late Dr. George N. Papanicolaou, the Pap test can identify uterine cervix cancer before its symptoms appear, when it is curable in almost 100 percent of cases. The Pap test is based on microscopic examination of cells present in vaginal fluids.

Uterine cancer was the leading cause of cancer death among American women in 1967. Since then the death rate has been slashed by 80 percent, thanks to the Pap test, early diagnosis and improved treatment.

"Deaths from uterine cancer could be drastically reduced," Dr. Burk said, "if—and it's a big if—women have Pap tests regularly. It is tragic that 13,000 American women will die this year of uterine cancer, most of them because of indifference, ignorance, and the negative attitude that anyone in good health doesn't need a checkup. Every adult woman needs to have a checkup—and a Pap test—regularly."

Dr. Burk explained that the Society has a number of activities under way in Virginia this fall to alert women to the importance of an annual Pap test. Radio and television stations, newspapers and outdoor advertising companies have been asked, as a public service, to contribute time and space to help remind women to have an annual Pap test.

In addition, local offices of the Cancer Society have a new film on uterine cancer entitled "It's Up To You," which is available for public showings. Copies of the leaflet, "Like To Look Your Best," which tells about uterine cancer and the Pap test, are also available from the Society's offices throughout the state.

Only one thing is needed now—transportation. The teachers plan to pick up the children at first. However, they say they need to make pre-class preparation plus clean up after the children too. The children will be from the Seaback-Cypress Avenue area. Anyone who would like to volunteer transportation may call Mrs. Jean Di Salvo at 340-2867.

Friends want friends

The Friends of the S.P.C.A. want more friends.

The Friends plan projects and fund raising things for the S.P.C.A. Members interested in helping may call Mrs. J. A. Beasley, Jr. at 429-2693. The group are currently planning to have a booth not only in the Women of Wesleyan Fair Market on Oct. 17 but also at the Pembroke Bazaar on Oct. 28-31. They are also seeking contributions of white elephant items and books for these projects. Mrs. Beasley said that if persons would call her, she would arrange to have donations picked up. Another Friends project is the annual Animal Fair in the spring.

Labels from Vets dog food are being collected by the group to provide seeing eye dogs for the blind.

State pres. is speaker

Mrs. James B. Roberts, state president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs will be guest speaker for the Ocean Park club at their birthday luncheon on Wednesday Oct. 14 at the Holiday Inn, Northampton Blvd.

Mrs. Roberts was recently appointed by Gov. Holton to serve on the commission for the constitutional amendments.

A Fruit Chive Dip is an easy and tasty way to liven low-calorie snacks.

Diet doesn't mean dull

The tape measure and the scale have shown you that it must be "thumbs-down" on calories.

Low in calorie count need not mean low in flavor. Dull diet foods that do not appeal visually and nutritionally contribute little or nothing to the diet. Arrange a platter of brilliantly colored (eat as much as you want) raw vegetables and dip them into a vivid orange and pineapple sauce. Do you question orange, pineapple and chives? The Mexicans have long enjoyed this great combination of flavor and color. The tart, sweet flavor of the dip adds interest to the raw vegetables. Serve it in between meals as a snack in order to prevent those hunger pangs so discouraging to dieters.

Diets can be dull indeed, but spices and herbs add flavor are packed in plastic cups and stored in the grocer's frozen food cabinet. Take them home and use them liberally on these diet foods to add flavor without calories. No work in preparation, so waiting to thaw, just use them liberally in all your cooking.

FRUIT CHIVE DIP FOR RAW VEGETABLES

(Makes about 4-1/2 cups)

- 1/4 cup cornstarch
- 2 cans (6 ounces each) frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed and undiluted
- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen concentrated pineapple juice, thawed and undiluted
- 2 cups water
- 2 lbs. frozen chopped chives

Combine cornstarch, fruit juices, water and chives. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Serve hot or cold. Surround with quartered radishes, sliced raw carrots, raw "cauliflowerets", green pepper squares, cucumber slices, tomato wedges, raw mushroom slices, celery sticks with forks for spearing and dunking.

Boat Captains Prove Beach Great for Fish

Virginia Beach is a great fishing resort. Or at least it has the potential of a great fishing resort.

And that's exactly what members of the Atlantic Charter Service, Inc. wanted to prove Tuesday when they hosted a fishing trip for various merchants, innkeepers, restaurateurs, and city dignitaries, the first of an annual event.

The ACS is made up specifically of charter and party boat captains located in the still-developing Rudee Inlet. And, as everyone knows, these men who depend on the ocean have had a rough time of it ever since they organized two years ago, what with being landlocked most of the time when the inlet channel filled in.

But the city has now stationed a dredge in the problem spot and it would appear that Rudee Inlet is on its way.

"This was our best season yet," commented Captain Ray

Captain Richardson (right) chats with Dick Cooper of The Aloha. In the background are Sonny Vaughan of the Seahorse Inn, Teada Stephens of Anchor Realty, Bill Campbell of the Windjammer and Burt Harrison of People's Bank of Virginia Beach.

Richardson of the Richie, "but we've still got a long way to go."

There were six captains, including Richardson, hosting Tuesday's outing, preparing line, hauling in fish and generally seeing to the comfort of their guests. All were embused over the season just ended and over finally having the inlet open.

"Even the fish cooperated," said Pee Wee Morris of the Berte C. "The blues should have been gone by the first of July but they stayed around through the entire month. And as long as there are blues, you're going to have fishermen."

The other four were Earl Paul of the Sea Robin II and the Sea Robin I; Earl Richardson of the Touche, J. T. Haley of the Jo-De and Robbie Robinson of the Mace.

Members of the group who couldn't make the trip are Roy Green, Judy B; John Pierce, Shady Lady II; Knute Knudson, Shady Lady I; Marshall Smith, Martha Ann; and Fred Tyler, Four T's.

Since Captain Paul's boat was the host craft, he was pretty much in charge of locating fish for his enthusiastic guests. There would have been plenty of jowl harrasmant from his crew of other captains if he had failed. But he didn't.

The heavy king mackerel lines were put over on the trip out and in no time at all a reel was singing with its catch. The group pushed innkeeper Director Jess Pilsen into the chair and cheered him on as he landed the first catch of the day. There was a long wait until the next one, but Bill Campbell of the Windjammer Motel stepped in to bring in that monster. All agreed that Pilsen had better luck but Campbell, never to be outdone, insisted his mackerel had "more charn". They were both beauties and whetted everyone's appetite for the fishing ahead.

Out near the Chesapeake Light, Captain Paul brought the Sea Robin II to a halt and all lines went over... it was sea bass country. And the sea bass were there all right. So were the sharks, both hammerheads and sand, and several spiced up the party by grabbing a line and running with it. When a fisherman began trotting along the deck, holding his line over the heads of the other guests, everyone knew he had a "playful" shark at the other end.

King mackerel were all over the place and were making passes at the squid bait, so on the return trip the group yelled for the mackerel gear again. Four lines were put over this time, but to no avail. The big fish weren't interested. The trip ended with some 140 sea bass, and one or two other similar fish, the largest probably in the pound to pound-and-a-half bracket.

It was a fun day. And educational. To those who had never made the trip out through Rudee Inlet, it was truly an eye-opener of what is available right at the resort for the visiting tourists and residents alike. All these captains need to do now is get this message across. They need to let the tourist know that Virginia Beach is a great fishing resort. All they ask is that the motels and restaurants drop the word now and then.

"After all, it would help everyone," commented Captain Paul. "Let a fisherman know what's available here and he's going to keep his family in Virginia Beach a while longer. And that's good for all of us."

Captain Robinson prepares bait.

PA Falls To Maury

You can't rollerskate in a buffalo herd and Virginia Beach high school grid teams found that it's very little easier playing football in Norfolk.

Princess Anne's unbeaten record and state ranking fell to the sidelines at Foreman Field Friday when Maury's Commodore disassembled the Cavaliers 23-14. PA's do-everything fullback, Jerry McGrath, could muster only 73 yards on 16 carries, a subpar performance for the stout senior who had guided the Cavaliers to three previous victories.

Across town at the new Metropolitan Stadium, Cox was fighting just to keep the score down while Lake Taylor was concentrating on manhandling the winless Falcons 28-6. It was a sad encounter for the Beach team in the first football game to be played in the stadium.

Two other games pitting Beach teams against each other found Bayside putting together a 14-0 homecoming win over Kellam while First Colonial was slamming Kempville by a 28-6 margin.

Maury, now 4-0, ran and passed for 368 yards while holding PA's once-powerful rushing game to only 77 yards. McGrath, PA's bread-and-butter running back, managed to fool the Commodore defense twice on punting situations and parlayed fourth down situations into first downs with gains of 13 and 38 yards.

Under the bright lights and before a large turnout at Met Stadium, Lake Taylor used Cox as an avenue to even their record at 2-2. The Falcons, whose offense could account for only 87 yards total, had to rely on safetyman Neal Huxford's 40-yard pass interception for its only scoreboard breakthrough. The affair left Cox with a 0-4 reading.

First Colonial took advantage of a pass interception by Mike Wareing and a one-yard plunge by Mike Branch to break a third-quarter 6-6 tie and go ahead of Kempville. It was only moments later that the Patriots downed Kempville's punter on the nine-yard line after he received a high center. Two plays later First Colonial added another score.

After a scoreless first Bayside quarter Tom Chipok tossed a 40-yard touchdown pass to Eddie McCullough in the third quarter to pave the way

Bayside's Eddie McCullough is brought down by a Kellam tackle after a 20-yard gain.

Squires Ready For Tournament Opener

Coach Al Bianchi's slick-shooting, fast-moving Virginia Squires, already given the "bat" in the ABA's eastern division by several basketball observers who saw the Virginians perform in the recent Kentucky Colonels Invitational, wrap up their pre-season schedule with two games in the upcoming Ned Doyle Charity Twinbill Tournament in Miami Beach, Fla.

The Squires, 3-1 after their first four starts, will go against their archrivals, the Carolina Cougars in the tourney's opener Sunday night, Oct. 11 at Miami Beach.

The Squires and Cougars tip off at 6 p.m., at the Miami Beach Auditorium with the host Floridians matching baskets against the Memphis Pros in the nightcap. Not including Monday's encounter against Carolina in Kannapolis, the Squires and Cougars had split in their first two starts.

Bianchi has been impressed with his team's gutsy defense and overall floor play. "We've been hitting the open man and hustling on the 'D'. What more can I ask?" remarked the happy coach.

Veteran cornerman, Frank Card expects to be ready for Saturday night's battle against Rick Barry and his New York Nets in New York.

Card has missed the team's last three games because of a scratched eyeball which he suffered in an intra-squad battle in Norfolk last week.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

Friday night Bayside plays at Deep Creek. Cox hosts First Colonial. Kellam hosts Indian River. Kempville hosts Maury and Princess Anne hosts Norview.

PREDICTIONS

Bayside over Deep Creek; First Colonial over Cox; Indian River over Kellam; Maury over Kempville; and Princess Anne over Norview.

"The happy I am when I'm straight is more beautiful than the happy I seemed to be when I was stoned."

The girl in the picture is named Chris. For over a year, she was on amphetamines, powerful drugs known as "speed." This is how she describes it:

"I think 'speed' is a lot worse than heroin. Kids have got to know about it, because they can fall so easily into taking it through the diet pill hassle, or needing something to help them study. You know, that's crazy. Because the combination of amphetamines and no sleep just blows your memory completely. There are whole sections of my life which I just can't remember. It got to be just 'do a little more, do a little more,' until that was all there was. And the 'crashing'... sometimes the 'crashing' is just really awful!

"For me to stop taking it, I had to feel that people were caring. And they were. I was really lucky. I was very close to two people that were really into amphetamines very deeply, and I loved them a lot. But as far as they were concerned, the only thing that they had was the 'meth,' and that was their life. And they're both dead now."

"Dexies," "bennies," "meth" are all called "speed" these days. And people who know "speed" know "speed" kills!

PREVENT UGLY WRINKLES.

The secret to getting away with less ironing is to prevent it in the first place. With today's new wrinkle-resistant fabrics, and today's new electric clothes dryer. Modern electric dryers have a lot of new wrinkles that keep permanent press and wash-and-wear clothes wrinkle free. When they come out of the dryer, they're ready to wear. Electric dryers cost less to buy, and have fewer moving parts to maintain. Buy a new electric dryer during the month of October and get Vepco's $15 installation allowance. Imagine laundry without ugly wrinkles! A powerful idea of tomorrow, today. Vepco

Byrd Cannot Attend Rally UCF Sets Balloons And Noise

The senatorial rally scheduled for Monday night will follow a question and answer format by the two candidates who have accepted, Republican Ray Garland and Democrat George Rawlings.

Senator Harry Byrd Jr., running as an independent, has advised that he has a conflicting engagement on that date, according to Mrs. Shirley Marlow, co-chairman of the rally. The other co-chairman is Mack Rawls, both representing the sponsoring Council of Civic Organizations.

"It is still hoped," Mrs. Marlow said, "that he will be able to re-schedule his appointments and attend this rally."

Also working on the event are Mrs. Jules Shon, Mrs. Mary Anne Moore and Mrs. Arthur Toner, co-ordinating for the League of Women Voters; O.M. Sawyer Jr. serving as liaison for the Virginia Beach Jaycees; and Robert Richards, executive secretary, directing the participation of the Education Association of Norfolk.

Each candidate will open with a 15-minute statement, followed by questions from the audience, which will be submitted to a panel composed of representatives of each of the sponsoring organizations.

The rally is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the Bayview Junior High School auditorium. This is one of few such informative events planned prior to the November 3 election and the public is urged to attend.

Hubert McLawhorn

McLawhorn Named

Randolph Bruce, president of Fountinhead Studios, has announced the appointment of Hubert McLawhorn as accounts supervisor.

McLawhorn has a diversified advertising background that spans every media and includes both national and international accounts. He began his career with The Daily Press, Inc. of Newport News. While employed there, he won the Virginia Press Association award for the best automotive campaign among daily newspapers. After six years he moved to Wright Advertising where he worked on more than 30 local and regional accounts.

In 1969 Chesapeake Advertising of Norfolk hired McLawhorn as account executive for its Animal Feed Supplements and Pet/Vet accounts, divisions of Borden Chemical. Here he also worked on two other Borden accounts.

McLawhorn and his new bride, Carol, reside in Norfolk.

City Gets Funds for Project

Funds totaling $1,777,756 to aid educationally disadvantaged children in the cities of Portsmouth, Newport News, Virginia Beach, and the town of Poquoson have been approved by the Federal Programs Office of the State Department of Education, the agency announced recently.

The allocations for instructional projects and supportive services are provided under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

Virginia Beach was allocated $476,883 for a project which will provide art, cultural enrichment, reading, mathematics and music for 1,698 children in kindergarten through grade eight. Attendance, guidance counseling, speech therapy, library, dental and medical services are included.

School Will Be Host Wed.

First Colonial High School will have its annual open house Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m. It will be held in conjunction with this year's initial meeting of the Parents' League, according to Dr. Howard Kahn, president of the league.

Following the meeting and announcements by Principal Carleton Boyer, the parents will follow their children's schedule for the school day. Though abbreviated in time, the teachers will have the opportunity to acquaint the parents with what is expected of the students in their classes.

This feature has proven very popular and worthwhile ever since the school was built. Those attending will be able to get better acquainted with the faculty and fellow parents at the reception following the scheduled agenda.

On October 14th the United Communities Fund Drive will kick-off with a release of helium filled balloons and a little noise making.

At noon Wednesday, October 14th every person driving at that time is asked to give a two second honk of their car horn... IF YOU GIVE A HOOT, GIVE A TOOT!

Boat operators will toot their whistles, church bells will ring and the Fund Campaign will be off to a rousing start.

The multicolored balloons will be released at exactly 12:00 noon on the 14th from Southern Shopping Center, Military Circle and Pembroke Mall. A release will also be made in Chesapeake.

The first ten persons retrieving three of these balloons to find headquarters will receive three tickets to a Squires basketball game.

Weekend Program Planned

The A.R.E., 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue, is planning a special weekend program, "The Holy Trail," on Oct. 17 and 18.

The program will highlight the recent trip through Europe of Elsie and Wilfred Sechrist last spring. Pictures will be by Sechrist with narration by his wife. Their trip included visits with sepiatists and parapsychologists in Russia.

The Oct. 17 program will begin at 8 p.m. and the Oct. 18 program at 3:30. The admission will be $1 per session with $.50 for students and servicemen.

Churches To Host Students

Two Virginia Beach churches will undertake something new to this city but not new to others during Christmas.

First Presbyterian Church and Gallie Episcopal Church will have a Christmas International House for 20 foreign students who have no place to go during the holidays. The ten male students will be housed in Gallie Church and the ten coeds will stay in the former First Presbyterian manse on 36th Street.

Breakfast and lunch will be fixed by the students in their residence. However, they will be guests of Virginia Beach residents at supper, in addition, local churches and civic groups are welcome to entertain them. On their first night in the city, they will be guests of Seakick Community Center. They will be here Dec. 19-23.

Groups wishing to entertain the students are asked to contact the churches as soon as possible. Doug Hubbard is chairman.

Lecture Series Starts Friday

Christopher Newport College of the College of William and Mary in Newport News will hold a reading and lecture series entitled "The Black Man in Contemporary America" under sponsorship of the Humanities Division of the College.

Dr. Herbert A. Marshall, will lecture on W.E.B. DuBois' "The Souls of Black Folk" Friday at 8 p.m. in Hall 110. An open discussion will follow and admission is free.

On November 3 Mrs. Elizabeth R. Jordan will discuss Ralph Ellison's novel "The Invisible Man" and on December 11 William Carroll will review "The Autobiography of Malcolm X".

All three lecturers are on the staff of Norfolk State College. A dramatic work or film is planned February 13 and the series will end with a panel discussion March 12.

HOW SAFE IS YOUR HOME?

This is National Fire Prevention Week, October 5th to 11th. The fire picture shown here is not newsworthy in that it happened some time ago. However, if this picture will cause just one person to contemplate what COULD happen to their home, belongings and loved ones, through carelessness, then we will be justified in having run this out dated picture on the front page of IN SIGHT. Check your home now for possible fire hazards and keep it safe all year long.

Young people provide volunteer services

CHARLOTTE BECKETT is 15 years old and a sophomore at First Colonial high school. She lives in North Virginia Beach with her parents, Colonel and MRS. W. R. BECKETT. Two days a week, after school, and on week ends she works as a volunteer at the SPCA. Cleaning cages, feeding, grooming and taking care of the animals and the building. CHARLOTTE says she enjoys the work because she loves animals and feels that she is helping them a little bit. Seeing her handle the homeless animals you can tell that she loves them. If more people loved animals as CHARLOTTE does there wouldn't be so many at the SPCA awaiting adoption.

YWCA ART CLASS

The IN SIGHT photographer went to LeKies Methodist Church last week to take pictures of a Hawaiian dance class sponsored by the Y W C A. The dance class had been cancelled but there was an art class in progress so instead of a dance class this week we bring you pictures of an art class. MRS. J. F. KAMPSEN, MRS. CLARENCE J. DONOVAN, MRS. R. O. SYKES and MRS. PETE PAPPAS learn the proper lay out of an artist pallet from instructor, ESTELLE DUPRE.

ELEANOR COOPER to the beginners course last week and is now sketching a flower arrangement, from a display, which she will then paint in oil.

MRS. JOHN F. FOSTER applies paints to her pallet in preparation for a painting session.

Instructor, ESTELLE DUPRE, gives MRS. PETE PAPPAS some pointers.

PORTRAIT OF A BUSY MAN

MILLER starts the days work before breakfast. There are approximately 75 cows on the MILLER farm and milking is the first chore of the day.

AMOS MILLER of North Landing Road, Princess Anne Borough, besides being a dairy farmer is also a member of the Princess Anne Volunteer Fire Department. He starts work at five AM every day to help his father, VALENTINE F. MILLER and his brother ELVIN work their 230 acre dairy farm.

AMOS MILLER and his family are Menonites and he and his wife, FRIEDGARD, and their two children, KAREN 4, and KENNETH 2, make their home on the farm, just a short distance up North Landing Road from his father's home.

FRIEDGARD was born in Germany and came to the United States six years ago to attend the wedding of a friend in Indiana. Before returning to Germany she visited friends in Virginia Beach where she and AMOS met and were married.

No more hand milking. Today the milking operation is all mechanized—even to the feed in the milking stall being piped directly from a silo.

With all the mechanization on a farm today there are still lots of back-breaking jobs to be done. Shoveling feed from a truck into the silo is one of them.

Even the milking machine and hoses are cleaned mechanically. Here AMOS hooks up the milk hoses for cleaning and sterilizing.

....all farmers are busy men

Know a busy man?

Throughout the city of Virginia Beach there are men and women who are making substantial contributions to their community and city and are never recognized beyond their immediate neighborhood.

It is the intention of IN SIGHT to focus attention on such individuals each week. If there is someone in your neighborhood who is heavily involved in community activities, whether it be little league, civic clubs or service organizations, let the IN SIGHT staff know about it. It can be a man or woman.

Outline briefly the persons activities and organizations, his address and phone number and mail it to IN SIGHT, P.O. Box 657, Virginia Beach, Va. 23451.

AMOS, right, and brother ELVIN, listen as their father, VALENTINE E. MILLER, outlines work to be done in the fields. The MILLER'S have just completed their corn harvest and the ground is now being readied for the next crop. Most of their 230 acres are used to grow corn for grain and ensilage for the cows.

Bogata missionary speaks to Galilee Women

Last week the women of Galilee Episcopal Church on Pacific Avenue were privileged to have as their guest speaker MRS. SUSAN REED.

MRS. REED is the wife of BISHOP DAVID BENSON REED of Bogota, Colombia. The church in Bogota is a mission of the Virginia Southern Diocese of the Episcopal Church.

MRS. REED arrived in the United States around the first part of September to enroll her daughter, MARY 14, in the ninth grade at Chatham Hall, Chatham, Va. During her visit to Virginia MRS. REED filled twenty speaking engagements around the state.

Before the Galilee meeting MRS. REED center was welcomed by REVEREND JOHN H. JORDAN, JR., MISS ANNE BROOKE, MRS. JOHN T. GOODE II and REVEREND WILLIAM BRAKE, JR., assistant pastor.

"The Diocese arranged for me to have a 1971 Ford to drive during my stay and it was a pleasure."

Homestead Civic League mixes business and pleasure

The Homestead Civic League held a special meeting last week at Woodstock School to discuss, among other things, the zoning of near by property. This meeting afforded an opportunity to present prizes to the winners of contests held during a recent deep sea fishing trip sponsored by the civic league. JOHN FLANAGAN was presented with a fishing rod for having caught the most fish. The presentation was made by ART RIDDELL and RONNIE ANGLIN, president and vice president, respectively. HOWARD SEYMOUR, who was not present for the photograph, received a fishing rod for catching the largest fish.

The large number of residents who attended the meeting of the Homestead Civic League attests to the civic and community interest of the residents of the area.

Garage sale season is on

MRS. DAVE CASWELL of Princess Anne Road, Kempville, and MR. CASWELL cleaned out their attic and found many items that were in good condition but that they would probably never use again. The prices were right so business was good, MRS. CASWELL said that this sale helped to get rid of a twenty-five year accumulation.

A fairly new innovation in the Tidewater area, the garage sale, which is probably an import from the west coast, is now getting to be quite popular with homeowners who clean out the garage and attic in the spring or fall. The past week end was beautiful and perfect for riding around garage shopping. The IN SIGHT photographer took in three such sales and bought a clock radio, in very good condition, for a small fraction of its original price.

At MRS. LAYTON HOUSE'S sale in Thalia Manor MRS. WARD KING was looking over a grill. MRS. HOUSE'S sale featured household items and clothing for which she had no further use. Shopping these sales is fun and you'd be surprised at some of the bargains a person can get. Try it.

At MRS. KENNETH G. IRONS sale in her garage on Bark Lane in Aragona the IN SIGHT photographer found MRS. SHAREN HARDING, and son, BRYAN, looking over an intercom system. MRS. IRONS explained that it would be good to have one in the baby's room to listen in on him. The IRONS are moving to Chicago and they have three children, a dog, a camper and two cars. They must get rid of some things--but they won't consider parting with the dog. MRS. IRONS had already sold a power mower, an air conditioner and a chain saw.

Strange Health Chart

QUESTION: In 1962 my husband and I went into business for ourselves. Six months later I became ill and had to undergo surgery. It has been a difficult seven years, and even now business is not good. What does the future hold?

ANSWER: Since you did not have your husband's time or birth, I have to work with your horoscope only. To begin with you have a very strange planet placement in your horoscope. The planet Neptune is stationed in the sixth house (governing the health). This placement of Neptune is quite confusing in so far as the health is concerned. I have seen literally hundreds of horoscopes with this configuration and in every case they had strange health situations arise that the doctors could not find the cause for. Neptune tends to cloud over everything and it is often impossible to properly diagnose your health condition. There have been several cases where the person has undergone surgery only to have the doctor tell them later that it was not necessary. Also, it is nearly impossible to recuperate properly when Neptune is in the house of the health.

As far as the future is concerned it would appear the worst is over for some time. The reason that you have been feeling better lately is that the Sun, by progression is moving to a very good aspect to the planet Saturn. This should stabilize the health and bring about a renewed vitality.

The planet Mars, which has been the cause of the surgery and many of your other troubles has now moved out of orb of any major aspect. For the past four years it has been afflicting the planet Pluto. We do not know too much about Pluto at this time, but it appears to have some effect on the subconscious activities of the mind. This could also include the recuperative powers of the mind. Prior to that it was in a strong aspect to the planet Mercury. This could cause nothing but worry and aggravation, since the planet Mercury governs the house of partnerships, your marriage must surely have suffered at that time.

As I stated earlier, I feel that the worst is over. Things should smooth out for you considerably and there should be a much more even time in the future. Finances should improve at the same time as well. I do not think you can expect to get rich all of a sudden, but there should be some improvement in a matter of months.

He's Maturing Quickly

QUESTION: I, like many I suppose, never thought I would be writing to your column. I am concerned about our son. We have never had any need to be concerned in the past but lately he seems to feel he is a failure at everything, and at only nine years old. Can you help us to understand what is happening? Signed A Believer.

ANSWER: There is really nothing to be concerned about. It does seem rather strange that at the age of nine he could feel he is a failure, but children mature rather quickly these days. I would not look toward his teacher for the cause of the trouble. He is simply going through a rather difficult time, astrologically, and when this passes he will pick up where he left off. The Moon rules the emotional nature and at this time the moon in his horoscope has moved, by progression, to a rather malefic aspect with the planet Venus (the feeling nature) and the planet Uranus. The nature of Uranus is such that he has acted rather irrationally at times I am sure, but this will pass quite quickly. His natal horoscope has some rather difficult aspects in it, such as the planet Saturn in conjunction with the ascendant. Saturn tends to restrict or depress the things with which he becomes involved. He will therefore be a somewhat serious person as he grows older, with periods of moodiness too, since the moon, the most changeable of the planets is stationed there also. Love is the answer. It always is, and criticism, or trying to make our children what we want them to be, only stifles their growth. If he does not snap out of it soon, get in touch again and I will be happy to rectify the chart for a more accurate analysis.

Could Be An Astrologer

QUESTION: As a student I am unsure of the course of my future and my career. Lately I have begun to investigate astrology, are there any good books on the subject? Signed Aquarian Cancer.

ANSWER: First, since I have reached the age of forty, I think that there should be a law against anyone being nineteen years old. It just doesn't seem fair. I am surprised that you know that you are an Aquarian, Cancer. Most of the letters I receive from people who feel they know what their rising sign is are so completely off that it is really often quite funny.

As far as the career that you could follow, I might suggest a career in astrology, since you are interested in it. This may sound strange at this time but in the future there will be a complete recognition of the science of astrology. Of course you will have to have a degree in something in order to do graduate work in the science and poor folks like me will not be acceptable. If you doubt what I say is true, you will perhaps be surprised to know that astrology is already being taught in no less than forty colleges and universities around the country. True, it is an adult educational program and extra-curricular, but taught there nevertheless.

Writing is one of the things you can do well. Venus, in your horoscope is located in the sign of Virgo, which indicates the meticulous investigator and writer. More on the vein of the scientist than if Venus were in the sign of Gemini, the other sign of writing. Gemini is more related to fiction than scientific writing.

There are several things you could do that would be quite rewarding. There is no need for you to be concerned with income. You have the sign of Sagittarius on the Midheaven (the point in the horoscope governing the station in life) and Jupiter (the great benefic) is located in the second house (ruling money). When you have a combination like this you cannot lose. Jupiter is the most expansive planet in the solar system and what it touches benefits tremendously. Since you have it stationed in the second house of money and it is the ruler of the career house it is quite clear that money will never be a problem. In addition to this, Jupiter is being well aspected by the planets Mercury and Pluto. It is true that we do not know too much about Pluto at this point, but one of the things we do know is that it magnifies anything, with which it comes in contact.

The sign of Sagittarius is the sign of science, philosophy, and all kinds of higher education. This indicates you would do well

Become City's Industrial Center

Money. It is essential to proper growth and expansion for any area. In this city money means tourism to many, but to city planners it means needed economic and industrial development.

Until 1963, the city of Virginia Beach consisted only of a tiny land mass fronting on a sandy strip of the Atlantic Ocean. And from that valuable strip, the new City of Virginia Beach has been deriving its major economic benefit, for tourism and its related businesses top the list as the money makers, followed by agriculture.

But more recently, city officials and planners have begun to realize the value and necessity of developing industrial sites throughout the city.

The latest planning report, the Kempsville Development Plan, may offer the best sites in the city for that industrial development.

There are two sites for industrial development within the Kempsville Borough, says the planning staff, and they are the Greenwich Industrial area and the Centerville Industrial-of-rice area. Couple these areas with a strong potential labor market, and ideal sites for expansion have been developed.

The Greenwich area, says the report, "is ideally suited to light industrial, office, warehousing and wholesaling operations." Already, 25 per cent of the designated area has been developed or is under consideration for development.

That leaves about 150 acres in the Greenwich area left, with every acre a choice site, according to the city and not without justification.

City planners point to seven reasons as their justification. They are:

- * A well developed highway network, including two interstates, and connections with the Hampton Roads and Chesapeake Bay Bridge tunnels.

- * Railroad access provided by the Norfolk and Southern Railway, which connects with the Norfolk and Western Railway.

- * Easy access - five minutes driving time - to the Norfolk Regional Airport.

- * Sewer and water bulk lines which crisscross at strategic points within the complex area as well as a power substation on Greenwich Road and a drainage system with two borrow pits for additional support.

- * That the area is in the geographical center of the metropolitan area, placing it nearer to the labor force residential area as well as the other industrial and financial core.

25-Year
Sentence
For Drugs

William A. Fisher was sentenced to 25 years in prison Wednesday after being found guilty by a Circuit Court jury of the charge of illegal sale of LSD.

Fisher, 39, of La Fonda Apartments on Lasdin Road, was arrested Aug. 28 during an all night round-up by police of persons in the city suspected of violating state narcotic control laws.

Officials had charged Fisher with transacting a sale of LSD on Aug. 13 at a location on Atlantic Avenue.

The jury returned its verdict guilty as charged with a recommended punishment of 25 years in prison at 4:17 p.m. The jury began deliberations at 3:27 p.m. following a trail which lasted 5 1/2 to 6 hours.

Defense Attorney Richard Bridges, upon hearing the jury's verdict, motioned to have the verdict set aside. However Judge Paul Ackiss overruled the motion and pronounced sentence.

Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans represented the City in prosecution of the case.

Planners Approve Apartments

Despite the protest of a member of Virginia Wesleyan College's board of trustees, the Planning Commission Tuesday approved a change of zoning application for construction of apartment units across from the school.

The application, filed by the E.V. Williams Co., called for a change of zoning from a residence suburban district to multiple family residence and general and limited commercial districts on land east of Baker Road and north and south of Moore's Pond Road.

Appearing before the commission for the college was Robert F. Boyd, who said the college chose its present site with the understanding that the complex would have buffer zones around it.

Boyd said that approval of the Williams application would be the end of a buffer to the east of the complex and would ultimately be an undesirable element in the area. He said that the "board asks you keep property in an educationally conducive environment" around the school.

Virginia Wesleyan's physical plant, which Boyd said was valued at $10 million, was designed to last several hundred years. This added to the cost of construction but it was felt necessary, he said.

To place 160 rental units across the street from the school will reduce its value when the units begin to deteriorate after a period of time, Boyd said.

But Boyd said the school's trustees were not opposed to construction of single family residences on the approved site. These, he contended, would continue to act as a buffer.

"We want to keep it as 'undense' as we can," Boyd said. Commission chairman Ben Wroten asked Boyd if the school had considered a stadium near the area and was told yes, at which point commissioner J. Harry Mote asked whether the lights from the stadium at night would be any worse on single homes than on apartment units.

"Besides," he said, "if people don't like the lights and they're renting they can give one month's notice and move out. Someone who owns them will have a harder time leaving."

The approval, which was unanimous, came after a 90-day deferral pending a study of the college area with respect to the Bayside Plan.

While Carrington was worried about the school situation, the commission hurried along the way three applications to operate nursery schools and day care centers in the city.

Applications were made and approved for use permits by Mrs. Mary Werner for the Arlington Village area, Loretta B. Willison and Carol Ann Pope for the Lakeview Park area and Mrs. Frances Filliol in the Pinewood Gardens area.

According to the applicants, each school has been told by the state that it can handle about 20 children.

The commission also approved change of zoning and use permit applications by Robert L. Wilson and Associates to construct 360 garden apartments on a site between the Virginia Electric and Power Company plant and Lasdin Village.

Attorney Thomas Broyles said the apartments were in the "luxury class" and would be three, two, and one bedroom efficiency type units.

Council Approval
as Significant

School Supt. E. E. Brickell told School Board members Tuesday that it is "tremendously significant" that the whole City Council voted in favor of the planned $10,400,000 bond referendum for schools and sites. It's a continuation of our co-operation with Council.

"My hope is that we can hold this vote some time in the first two weeks of December," said Brickell. The date of the referendum is set by Circuit Court.

Firemen Pay Tribute to Atwater

Garland M. Atwater Jr. Fireman of the Year 1968.

Final tribute was paid Wednesday to Assistant Fire Chief Garland Marvin Atwater, Jr., who died Saturday night as he was leaving a fire at Tourist Haven Motel, 15th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Hundreds of friends joined Atwater's family at Gallie Episcopal Church to honor him during final services conducted by Rev. John H. Jordan, Jr.

Atwater's flag-draped casket was placed atop a pumper-engine fire truck for the journey from the Maestas Funeral Home to Gallie Church, then to Eastern Shore Chapel Cemetery for burial. Fellow firemen from the Beach Borough Fire Department, who served as pallbearers during the service, rode on the truck flanking the casket.

The casket was carried into the chapel through a double line of firemen from the various fire departments of Virginia Beach. Members of the police honor guard dipped flags as the casket passed before them.

A host of City officials, including former Mayor Frank A. Dusch and Police Chief W.W. Davis, joined in the final tribute to Atwater. Those attending the service included members of the City Council, representa-

Little Theatre Opens Current Season Oct. 30

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre will open its current season with Robert Anderson's Broadway drama "I Never Sang for My Father."

The play, which has recently been made into a movie starring Melvyn Douglas, concerns the lack of understanding between a widowed middle-aged man and his elderly parents. This will be the first Tidewater showing.

It is the first little theatre production since May of 1969 when the group had to vacate the Courtyard Playhouse because the lease expired. They were unable to find a suitable home last fall and remained dark all season except for a production of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" at Virginia Beach Junior High School.

The current season became possible after Camp Pendleton made rehearsal space available and the White Heron Motel provided the facilities of the Bay Harbour Club, formerly a private club but now a public supper club.

It will, in fact, be the first dinner-theatre operation for the resort area. The closest similar operation is the Lake

Wright Playhouse on Northampton Boulevard at the Norfolk line.

"I Never Sang for My Father" will be presented October 30-31, November 6-7 and November 13-14. Buffet dinner will be served from 7 to 8 p.m. and curtain time will be 8:30 p.m. The lounge will be open.

The play is under the direction of Larry Williams with Mrs. Jean Washburn as producer and Herbert Harrell as technical director.

The four lead roles will be portrayed by John MacArthur as the father; Rebecca Russell as the mother; Foy Shaw as the son; and Beth Krueger as the daughter.

Other members of the cast include Dot Jones, Jane Wilkinson, Harrell, Scott Prentiss, Jim English and Dave Jones.

His Audience Adores Him

There are some who may consider Liberace a has-been entertainer. But they are sadly mistaken. The grinning little piano player and his candelabra are still very much around and his following is as devoted as ever. His appearance sponsored by WGB Saturday night at the Hampton Coliseum proved that.

Nearly 5,000 fans were on hand to greet their idol and if their age averaged 45 to 60 it really didn't matter. They had as much enthusiasm and verve as the youngsters following the Guess Who, Lead Zepplin or whoever. The audience wasn't made up of little old ladies. It was as masculine as feminine and they all welcomed the entertainer with open arms. They adored him.

This surprised this particular reviewer. Liberace has never been a favorite and, even after seeing him, still isn't a favorite but one thing he has in showmanship and an ability to win over his audience...even skeptical critics. He does it primarily with honesty.

"Would you like to see my jeweled watch? After all, you paid for it."

With this he walked down into the audience and faced a near-stampede as fans pressed to see his elaborate jewelry. But Liberace never lost his cool. "The time is three rubles past 10 diamonds," he quipped.

Even if the man cannot be appreciated as a pianist, and he is certainly not a first order pianist (four notes are not uncommon), he must be appreciated for his staging. His outfits are many, each more spectacular than the other. "Sometimes I don't believe them myself," he joked.

He whipped onto the stage to open the show in a floor-length fur coat with flowing sleeves and furry pom-pom buttons. It might have been sable and mink. Only his furrier knows for sure. It was lined in brilliant purple satin. He quickly removed the coat ("This thing's so hot, I'm about to die," he revealed) and revealed an orange velvet suit trimmed in orange sequins and a rhinestone tie.

And that was just the beginning. Perhaps the most interesting was the mirrored vest ("Five thousand little mirrors, all put on by hand...I got so tired!") he wore with his western outfit which cast reflections on the domed ceiling in time with the music. A built-in light show, so to speak. Certainly the most expensive was the one in which he closed the show. A beaded tuxedo, complete with tails, with diamond buttons that spelled out his name.

With all of this spectacular fashion the music was almost secondary. He had a number of good selections—his recorded "The Impossible Dream" and the Gershwin medley were exceptional—but the musical program was pretty run-of-the-mill.

In fact, if it had not been for the appearance of Miss Fay McKay, one of the most talented women ever seen in this area, the show might have become monotonous. But Miss McKay picked up the tempo, relieved Liberace for some 30 minutes or more, and practically walked away with the entire show. This remarkable woman must weigh a good 300 pounds but she moves like a skater on ice and belts out a song with unbelievable rhythm and gusto.

Miss McKay's rendition of "The Twelve Days of Christmas", in which she gradually becomes intoxicated from the various spirited gifts "my true love gave to me", was absolute entertainment. Never have I seen a funnier act. The audience loved her, wouldn't let her leave the stage until it was obviously time to turn the show back over to the master himself.

With the exception of Miss McKay's performance and some outstanding juggling by a 10 year old boy Liberace held the stage the entire time. He's an entertainer. There's no doubt about that. He has a most enjoyable show. And his audience adores him. Amazing.

Notice the attractive design in the planting. The small trees, including a crape myrtle, have been used to give some height to the landscaping pattern.

Notice the new Texaco Service Center on 22nd Street at the entrance to the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. The building was open for business last spring, but the grounds have just recently been completed.

There are other good features to this station that will merit your attention. Neat, dark green litter cans are placed in convenient spots. There are no ugly, flashing signs or waving banners to annoy the motorist. The manager is eager to do his part to make Virginia Beach a more attractive community in which to live. "Beauty is Good Business."

Developer Is speaker

Horace Cistola, a principal of the Terry Corporation of Virginia Builders and Developers in Virginia Beach, spoke recently at staff members of the Vocational Training Schools in Chesapeake.

He talked on the "Importance of Free Enterprise, and What It Means To The High School Student Today."

Cistola is greatly interested in the youth of today and the part they will play in the future of the homebuilding industry. In keeping with this interest, he was instrumental in organizing the Scholarship House for Tidewater Association of Home Builders several years ago when President of the organization.

22 years of Service Years Come to Close for CWO

Chief Warrant Officer Joseph Moore of 408 Lavender Lane, Virginia Beach, retired Sept. 21 from the U. S. Navy after 22 years of service.

The retirement ceremony took place aboard the attack carrier USS FORRESTAL (CVA-59), where CWO Moore has served as an Air Control Officer since July 1969.

Moore enlisted in the Navy in 1948 and served two years with Patrol Squadron FORTY-FIVE before attending Air Controlman's school. In addition to his most recent tour aboard FORRESTAL, he served two years there in 1961 and 1962. Moore said the six and one-half years from 1963 to 1969 as the most interesting in his Navy career. During that time he was one of two Navy men involved in the East coast testing and development of the Navy's new Automatic Carrier Landing System.

Astro Advice

In any branch of them. There is one additional factor. The sign stationed in the second house is Aries. Aries is the pioneer, the originator, the innovator, and for that reason I stated seriously, earlier, that you might become interested, and profitably so, in the science of astrology. You will do best in a pioneer type of research. Something new and bold.

In any event there is nothing to be concerned about. You are of the new generation of bright young people that we "old fogies" are pinning the hope for the future on. I wish it were possible to bring you to the realization that we have a very short time before it will be too late. I wish it were possible to begin an investigative group, outside of accepted scientific guidelines, comprised of people such as yourself, dedicated to finding a solution to the mess that we are in. There is one aspect in your horoscope which concerns me. I would like to discuss it but would have to have more information to rectify the exact birth time.

This promotion follows soon on the heels of the appointment of Gene Loving, formerly with WGH Radio, as station manager of WNOR-FM.

"These promotions support the increasing emphasis now being placed on FM broadcasting in the Tidewater area," Jernigan said.

Dissenting Votes Fail To Stop New Rock Church

The Rock Church received City Council's approval Monday for its use permit to construct a new church in Kempsville despite vigorous opposition from residents of Kempsville Colony.

The church, operated by the Reverend John Gimenez in conjunction with Proclaim, Inc., a drug rehabilitation center in Norfolk, also had three restrictions removed from its operation placed on it at a Planning Commission hearing last month.

At that hearing, residents told the commission they were afraid Mr. Gimenez would begin to use the church as another drug rehabilitation center and that they didn't want "addicts" in the neighborhood.

The restrictions placed on the church but removed by Council were that the church wouldn't be used to house people associated with or treated by Proclaim, that no busing of persons from Proclaim would be allowed and that the church wouldn't be used as an information center, rehabilitation center or as another Proclaim.

Gimenez told council his main purpose was "to build a church where people can worship." He said that the site was not nor had never been under consideration as a future Proclaim center.

But he did say that the addicts he treated at the center's farm might come to church there, since, after all, it was theirs, too.

Walter Alford, representing Kempsville Colony, said the group wasn't opposed to the church, but that to take church property, especially that which had a strong association with drugs, and put it right in the middle of a residential neighborhood and near a school was not right.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes said he had received letters from all of the ministers in Virginia Beach asking that no restrictions be placed.

When Alford objected to Rhodes' comparison of a Bible school and a rehabilitation center, Rhodes said "I think it's a beautiful comparison," and added that every church is engaged in rehabilitation of one sort or another.

On a motion by Councilman George Farrell to keep the entire planning commission recommendation, but amended by Councilman Robert H. Callis Jr. to strike the restrictions, the vote was 9-2, with Farrell and Vice Mayor Earl M. Tebault dissenting.

On the final motion to approve, only Tebault dissented. In other planning matters, Council:

*Approved an application for a change of zoning by Rudee Inlet Yacht Basin, Inc., to construct a 361 slip marina in the west end of Lake Rudee. The application received the support of the Innkeeper's Association.

*Approved an application by Dr. John Bensenhaver for a use permit to operate an animal hospital and kennel on the north side of First Colonial Road 300 feet east of Great Neck Road.

A Principal Discusses Tax On Schools

City amusement and food taxes now being levied on schools may be producing two new headaches for the schools, Cox High School principal James French said Monday. "But the law's the law and we'll have to live with it."

French said that the tax, which until this year was not enforced on schools, is producing several bookkeeping problems for his school and may eventually lead to reduced student activities at Cox.

French said that the school has an account for each event, but paying the tax to the city from the account is the problem. "We can determine how much to pay the city, but the problem is that we can't pay out of the regular account."

"What we have to do is transfer the tax money from one account to a special tax account, then write the check to the city," he said.

Of the 17 public schools in the city, only Cox reported its taxes and actually paid them last week. The bill for amusement taxes was $130.57; the food tax paid the city was $5.23.

"The problem is that we have to maintain accounts for not only the athletic events but also for all of the clubs and student organizations," French said.

The second problem, the most obvious one that won't be solved in the near future, is whether the tax on school events can be rescinded by the city. If it can't, French said the schools will have to absorb the five per cent amusement tax and one percent food tax.

Presently, the city is waiting an opinion from Virginia Attorney-General Andrew P. Miller on exemption of schools from the taxes' collection.

The city can rescind the ordinance which applies, but if it deletes schools from collection, it may be facing violation of a state law which prohibits discriminatory and unequal taxation.

However, if there is a specific state law which will allow exemption of schools, the city hopes it will have a solution to the problem. If no solution is forthcoming, the schools will continue absorbing the tax.

"We can't pass it on," French said. "We feel that if we increase any ticket sales that we will have gone past the saturation point. If we do pass it on, we'll only be hurting ourselves."

Check of Enrollment Planned

A survey of school enrollment at all levels from nursery school through college will be conducted in this area by interviewers of the Bureau of the Census during the week of Oct. 19, according to Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau's regional office in Charlotte.

Local interviewing will be part of a nationwide effort made annually to measure the Nation's school and college population. A similar survey in October 1969 showed total enrollment to be 59.9 million persons—33.8 million in elementary school, 14.6 million in secondary school, 3.3 million in kindergarten, 860,000 in nursery school, and 7.4 million in college.

The survey will be made along with the monthly national survey of employment and unemployment for the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor which furnishes a basic measure of national economic health.

Information collected in Census Bureau surveys can be used only to determine statistical totals, and facts about each person and family are kept confidential by law.

The interviewers who will visit households in this area are Mrs. Audrey L. Hayden of Windy Ridge Point.

ists or teachers in every school. However, her goal is to have a full time specialist in every school.

The program is two-fold: corrective and preventive. Students with reading problems are usually referred by their teachers. After a series of tests, individual reading "prescriptions" are made for the student. Those with severe reading problems are sent to the Center for Effective Learning.

Although Miss King termed "cured" as an inadequate word, she said that 20% of the students in the corrective reading program had been "cured"—that is, brought up to grade level in reading so they could function normally in class. This included students in grades four through twelve. There were 2,187 students enrolled in the program in 1969-70, 2,218 in 1968-69, 1,979 in 1967-68, and 370 in 1966-67.

In the preventive program, all first graders are tested for sight acuity for reading readiness. Corrective measures are prescribed for children lagging in large muscle control.

The department has two mobile reading laboratories to use in testing students and treating reading problems for which equipment is lacking in the schools.

Supt. Brickell announced plans for a series of seminars for principals to better develop an administrative attitude.

Effective Nov. 1, Philip E. Meekins, associate director of personnel since 1965, will be director of instructional personnel, filling the vacancy created by the death of Miss Louise Luford last June.

Meekins, a teacher and principal before coming to Virginia Beach from North Carolina, was principal of Thalia Elementary School and an elementary supervisor until 1966. He is currently vice president of the Virginia Association of School Personnel Administrators and is immediate past president of the Kempsville Ruritan.

"Our records and books have always been open to the public," he said. "It's the public's money and they have a right to know how it's being spent."

"We even distribute a report to the teachers each month telling them the financial status. The students also have a right to know where their money goes, so they see the books on those items as well," French said.

He added that when the students appeared before City Council October 5, they were very pleased that they were heard.

French said the experience of having students listened to by the "establishment" did a great deal in a positive manner towards improving student's attitudes about cities and municipal government.

But until a ruling is received from Virginia's chief legal officer, French, his students, and parents will have to continue paying the taxes on food and amusements at school sponsored events.

'Action' Means Action

Girl Scout troops of Area 4, Greater Tidewater Council, are kicking off "Action 70" with a clean-up campaign on the beachfront.

Activities will begin on Oct. 17 at 10 a.m. with Girl Scouts cleaning litter from the beach. Areas to be covered are the beaches from Rudee Inlet to Fort Story, Camp Linkhorn, Seashore State Park and Lynnhaven Inlet.

After the clean-up the girls will meet at Pacific Avenue and 32nd Street to hear Mayor Donald Rhodes speak. Also present will be Assistant Supt. of Sanitation, L. Cotton McClenney.

More than 30 troops with approximately 600 girls will be taking part in the clean-up. Any Girl Scout troops wishing to participate may contact Area 4 chairman, Eleanor Smouse, at 425-1567.

Tidewater Heart serves the people of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Chesapeake, Suffolk/Nansemond, Franklin/Southampton, and Smithfield/Isle of Wight.

Wheelchairs, hospital beds, and walkers are particularly in demand. Residents in the area who have convalescent aids not in use, and who are willing to donate them to the Association are asked to call Tidewater Heart Office at 622-9402.

Donations of such aids are tax deductible.

Local Boy Elected

Richard Marshall of Windsor Woods Elementary School has been elected president of the Tidewater Safety Patrol Congress.

The group is composed of representatives of Norfolk and Virginia Beach and made up of the various captains, lieutenants, sergeants and one patrol representative from each school.

The purpose is to exchange ideas about Safety Patrol operation and provide a means of training for the school safety patrol officers.

The Congress, under sponsorship of Tidewater Automobile Association, meets each month at the WTAR-TV auditorium in Norfolk.

All other officers were from Norfolk. They were Vice President, Jody Maxwell, Suburban Park; Secretary Debbie Daout, Easton; and Sergeant-at-Arms Bill Concord, Easton.

Trash Burning Is a 'No, No'

This is the time of year when residents of Virginia Beach, like those in nearly every other city, town and hamlet throughout United States, become engaged in activity which places them unknowingly in a position of breaking the law...that of disposing of leaves and other trash which have accumulated on their lawns.

Milton T. Holland, Chief of the city's Fire Prevention Bureau, points out that the disposing of leaves by burning them not only could be a violation of the law but also create a fire hazard.

Of main concern to Holland is the practice of piling large amounts of leaves, and/or other trash, in streets and burning them. Holland points out the City Code specifies that "it shall be unlawful for any person to burn or cause to be burned any substance of any kind on any of the streets of the city."

The City Code also specifies that anyone found guilty of violating this ordinance could be subjected to a fine of $1,000 and/or a sentence of one year in jail.

Holland indicates that the burning of leaves and/or trash on streets could result in damaging streets and thus create potential traffic hazards. This, according to Holland, results from the weakening of the road surface as a result of the great degree of heat concentrated on one area of the surfacing. This could melt the surfacing material and leave cracks or holes in the surface. Holland also suggests that when residents burn leaves or trash the material be placed in a container to safely confine the burning material and prevent ashes from blowing about and possibly result in property fires.

Another action which is of concern to Holland is the burning of large amounts of material in ditches along roadways. Holland points out such action could create possible traffic hazards because of smoke blowing across roadways and obscuring the vision of motorists.

Holland advises residents that when they have large amounts of trash to dispose of by burning or in the event of wanting to clear large land areas by burning, an inquiry be made of the Fire Prevention office as to what safety precautions should be taken and to determine whether or not a permit is required for such action.

Several changes of substance in revisions

NOTE: THIS IS THE SECOND OF A SERIES OF FOUR WEEKLY INFORMATIONAL ARTICLES ON THE REVISED CONSTITUTION PROVIDED BY VIRGINIANS FOR THE CONSTITUTION.

When the voters of Virginia go to the polls November 3 they will not only vote for congressional candidates, but on the first revisions in Virginia's Constitution in more than four decades.

There will be four questions on the ballot with which Virginians will vote on the revised Constitution. The first question deals with the main body of the Constitution; the second, third, and fourth deal with lotteries, general obligation bonds, and revenue bonds, respectively.

Although much of the change in the main body of the revised Constitution is simply a "housekeeping" nature—deleting obsolete passages such as those on dueling, and removing excessive and confusing detail such as the office hours of the State Corporation Commission, there are several changes of some substance.

As a direct result of the "housekeeping," the revised Constitution (18,000 words) is only about half the length of the present Constitution (35,000), and the language is much more readable. Thus, the revised Constitution is easily understood by the layman as well as the student of government.

One section almost untouched by this effort is the bill of Rights. George Mason's proud prose remains virtually intact. A new clause guaranteeing freedom from governmental discrimination has been added, as well as one outlining the duties that go along with the rights of citizenship.

There are several substantive changes which are significant:

- The poll tax has been repealed.
- The franchise article has been tightened to prevent vote fraud.
- Provision has been made for annual, instead of biennial, sessions of the General Assembly to deal more effectively with the press of the Commonwealth's business.
- Limits have been placed on the appointing powers of judges and a procedure has been established for the removal, retirement or censure of disbarred or unfit judges.

lished for the removal, retirement or censure of disbarred or unfit judges.

—Safeguards have been included for the first time against the establishment of regional governments. The people of each locality are guaranteed veto power over such governments.

The confusion in the education article on who has the final authority in school division boundary drawing has been cleared up by making the State Board of Education subject to the limitations imposed by the General Assembly, which is thus the final authority.

—For the first time, consumer protection is provided for in the revised document.

—The authority for tax relief for homeowners 65 and older is given the General Assembly.

—A new conservation article declares clean air, pure water, and a quality environment to be the Commonwealth's goal for its people.

The Carousel Lounge features a complete dinner menu featuring steaks prepared to your individual order and a variety of seafood prepared in a manner designed to satisfy the most critical taste. Sir Richard's and the Carousel Lounge remain open for your entertainment from 5 pm to 1 am.

Ron and Gary Jakeman, was the first to offer topless entertainers to the public in Virginia Beach.

Ron Jakeman says the Windmill continues to grow in popularity as a gathering place for resort city residents who are looking for a place to just relax and escape the pressures of the daily routine.

The feature attraction of the Windmill is "Rusty", a former New York Playboy Club "Bunny", who performs nightly from 8 p.m. til midnight from an elevated stage located in a corner of the restaurant.

The use of special lighting effects makes Rusty's performance one of the more unusual features offered in Virginia Beach for the "night people". As she performs her stage is illuminated by "pin spots", a strobe light, a black light, and a variety of light patterns from a slide projector. The use of the equipment, individually or in groupings, change

Carlton S. Abernathy, your host at Abby's, is well known to residents of the resort city since he has been at his present location for 11 years. Abby's is unique in that the restaurant offers a variety of features to those seeking relaxation.

Expansion over the years has resulted in the creation of several individual rooms in the restaurant's interior. This provides space for those who might just wish to relax and enjoy a meal as well as space for those who might care to dance.

A feature attraction of Abby's is Sally who performs her topless go-go routine daily during the luncheon period from noon til 2 p.m., and nightly from 9 p.m. til midnight.

Sally adds a more intimate touch to her performances while entertaining by mingling with patrons throughout the restaurant rather than working from a platform.

Virginia Beach "night life" will enter into another phase in two weeks...that of the "Dinner Theatre" when the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach opens a three week run at the Bay Harbour Room.

Until recently this location was operated as the Bay Harbour Club, a private facility, in conjunction with the White Heron Motel, on Laskin Road.

Jim English, Theatre president, says the first performance will feature "I Never Sang For My Father", by Robert Anderson. English says the script is well-suited to dinner-theatre presentation. It will be performed "in the round" with the audience seated around the cast, creating an air of intimacy.

Perhaps the best way to describe the script is one of an example of an adult generation gap. It centers around a 40 year old man who has never been able to communicate with his 80 year old father and the conflicts arising out of the situation. It is offered as a straight, dramatic production. The audience is brought into the midst of the performance by members of the cast actually conversing with them while delivering their lines.

The first performance is scheduled for the evenings of Oct. 30 and 31, with four more presentations scheduled Friday and Saturday nights of the two successive weekends.

Mrs. Frances Derring, White Heron manager, says the Little Theatre was offered facilities of the Bay Harbour Room as temporary quarters for this presentation, and that the future of such dinner-theatre offerings at this location depend to a great degree on public reception and response.

A buffet dinner will be available for those who wish to dine out while taking in their "night at the theatre" for the performance of "I Never Sang For My Father".

In discussing the future of the Bay Harbour Room Mrs. Derring says this remains somewhat undecided, from the standpoint of whether it will be opened as a public facility or revert to its previous private club status.

The locations described here by no means are the only ones offering diversion for "night people" in Virginia Beach.

The Bay Harbour Room, will premiere Dinner-Theatre presentations by Virginia Beach Little Theatre later this month.

sidents whose "night life" tastes are a bit more lively, a number of resort city locations offer an attraction which is growing in popularity... "topless go-go dancers". Two of the more popular such locations are the Windmill Restaurant and Abby's Oceana Restaurant.

the lighting of the stage and give the illusion of Rusty performing various and unusual movements.

Jakeman realizes that many residents of the city view their mid-day meal as a period to get-a-way from the daily grind as well as for a meal. He therefore has employed two additional topless dancers, identified only as "Phyllis" and "Anne", who entertain during the luncheon period from noon til 2 p.m.

Although the Windmill Restaurant does not offer dancing, the atmosphere is one of restful, softly lighted surroundings in which you can relax.

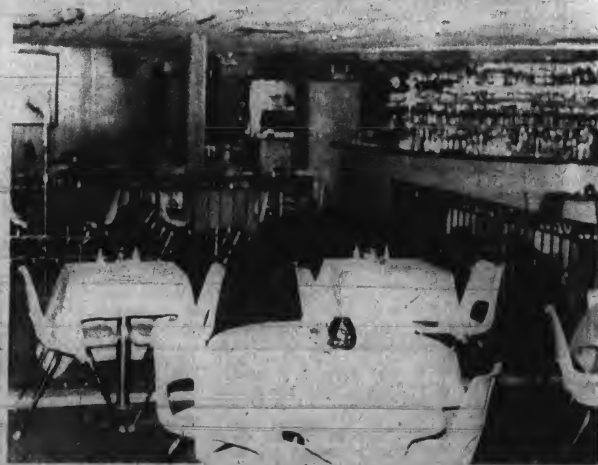

Gary Jakeman points out that varied menus are available for your dining pleasure. Special lunches are offered during mid-day while a complete dinner menu, with steak being the specialty of the house is offered during the evening hours.

Abby's Oceana Restaurant, 1701 Virginia Beach Boulevard, is fast becoming another of the favorite gathering places for those seeking entertainment.

While Virginia Beach has the reputation of being a favorite retreat for thousands of Summer vacationers, the resort city also offers attractions for the entertainment of its own residents. Even during the winter months.

This is apparent in the number of existing "night life" places still going strong even though Labor Day marked the close of the tourist season.

Activities still available in Virginia Beach for the "night people" include several locations where a couple can spend the evening dining and dancing. These include two favorite night spots near the resort strip in the Beach Borough.

Sir Richard's Rib House, 2014 Atlantic Avenue, caters to those whose liking leans toward supper club surroundings. Vic Sands, your host at Sir Richard's, greets you pleasantly at the door and escorts you to a table amid a softly lighted rustic-European atmosphere.

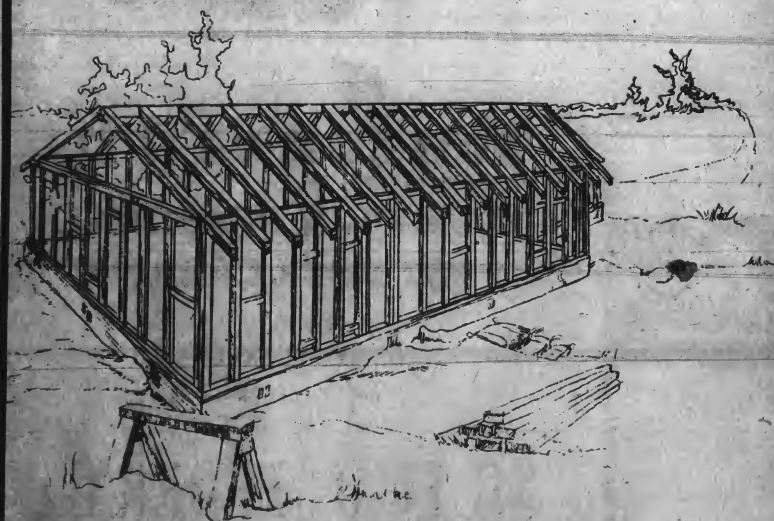

Sands says Sir Richard's offers a varied "A la Carte" dinner menu for your dining pleasure, which features prime ribs of beef au jus. A variety of mixed drinks are available to satisfy nearly all tastes.

They are merely descriptive examples of what can be found for entertainment in the resort city. There are many, many top-notch restaurants which offer the best in food but are not night spots, as such.

While this sampling of night life can in no way compare to "Great White Way" of New York City's Broadway, or similar attractions in other United States metropolitan regions, it does indicate that at least a number of business men as well as residents of the resort city are striving to bring sparkle to Virginia Beach after the many tourists visiting here in search of sand, sun, and sea pack their beach towels, suntan lotion, and bikinis and quietly steal away to their own back yards.

12th Antiques Showsale

Two unusual clocks restored

Two most unusual clocks will be displayed at the 12th Annual Antiques Showsale this month and one of them will be auctioned off.

The clocks, provided by Russell Williamson of the Clock Mart on Little Neck Road, will be part of his display at the showsale, sponsored Oct. 22-25 at the Civic Center by the Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach.

The clock that will be auctioned is known as a "transition" clock, according to Williamson. It has wooden movements, as did many clocks in the early 1800's, because of a shortage of brass. There was some brass available after 1816, but there was more after 1830. Williamson dates the clock as being made between 1820-30.

The clock, thanks to Williamson's efforts, is in working order. It was, according to the label inside, designed by Eli Terry and made by Seth Thomas. Both were noted clockmakers, and Williamson said this is the first clock he has seen with two names in the back.

The other clock, not for sale, is a hooded or canopy bracket clock such as was in style from 1720-1800. Made in the Netherlands, it is called a "start-klok." Above the face of the clock are three ships which "sail" as the pendulum swings.

The clock was acquired by M.E. Cruser in 1939 after the previous owner returned to the Netherlands. Williamson is returning it to running order. It was working several weeks ago, but the chains holding the weights disintegrated and Williamson is now replacing them.

Cruser has authenticated the age of the clock through research. It is a typical start-klok from the calendar on the face, handmade gears, style of the pinions and the figures on the dial. Start-kloks were made in the Netherlands in the 18th century and many were exported. Few are still made.

Williamson said there is a "generation gap" between present-day clock owners and the original owners of antique clocks. "Owners today just don't understand how these clocks work," he said. The result is often damage to the "works".

Williamson said that in restoring clocks that if there is any question about the condition of parts he replaces them.

He noted that in the past popular clock styles were often copied, and the clockmaker's name was left off. He added that copies were usually much cruder without as much care to details. Williamson is in the process of restoring a number, and variety, of old clocks.

Also on display at the showsale will be antique toys and a dress "of enviable design" that was worn in the 1850's by ancestors of a Virginia Beach resident. The "candle lady" from Williamsburg will return and occupy her regular corner in the foyer too.

Another foyer returnee will be the "furniture polish man" who will advise concerning the care of antiques.

Included in the show will be 45 antiques dealers from 10 states. Merchandise for purchase will include furniture, silver, crystal, china, brass, tin, jewelry, pictures and various accessories to complement the antiques.

Angie's Kitchen will again offer special Colonial style food plus homemade biscuits, soups, sandwiches and desserts. Crab soup made by a recipe sent to the Woman's Club by Mrs. Spiro Agnew and which proved popular when served two years ago will be offered for sale

Friday as a luncheon special. The Saturday special will be Amish Preaching Soup; Sunday special, chicken shortcake.

A 75-year-old medicine cabinet (doctor's) which, according to the donor, probably had a price tag near $500 when it was new, will be auctioned at the close of the show, 6 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 25.

Proceeds from the show will provide scholarships and will benefit mental health, Hospital House and other philanthropic projects. In the past shows have provided several thousand dollars in scholarships, $33,000 to mental health, $17,500 to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach for a chapel and $1,000 for Hospital House. There have been many contributions in smaller amounts to benefit other causes.

Tickets ($1) may be purchased in advance from members of the Princess Anne Woman's Club or may be purchased at the door during the show. Show hours will be 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. through Saturday and 1-6 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. G. L. Aldridge is general chairman of this year's show, with Mrs. A.R. Bunting as co-chairman.

Gun expert believes in starting young

Carol Wright met her husband at a rifle range. "I outshot him and he couldn't stand it."

What he didn't know at the time is that Carol is a small arms expert who has owned two gun shops. "I wanted to join the Navy, but my father wouldn't let me. So I took a beauticians course instead. I worked in a beauty shop and couldn't stand it."

That was when she took over her second gun shop. "I had two or three kids working for me. Once they got used to the idea (of working for a woman) I was one of the boys."

You can't judge a person by their looks because Carol is a petite and feminine brunet who looks like she would fit better in a kitchen than a rifle range.

In fact, her small size has given her some problems. She shot in military matches for three years in California. Lying prone, the kick from her rifle threw her backwards behind the firing line. In one match, a Marine decided he would solve the problem. He planted his feet behind hers to brace her. After about three shots she was still thrown backwards, and the Marine ("all 250 pounds of him") lost his footing and fell on top of her. "I'd rather slip."

Carol has been a dispatcher in the Virginia Beach Police Department for more than a year. Her duties include radio and teletype work, but she prefers the radio. She plans to enter the Law Enforcement course at Old Dominion University in January, even though the Virginia Beach Police Department does not use police women.

Carol became interested in guns while hunting with her father. She has definite feelings on the subject of children and firearms. Her son, a student at Kellam High School, (See 'Expert' p. 8)

Environment concerns district

J. P. Garrett of VPI Extension Service will explain the State Environmental Improvement Program to members of the Tidewater District, Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs next Tuesday.

The District will have its fall meeting at the Admiralty motel on Military Highway in Norfolk beginning at 10 a.m. and will include a luncheon. Mrs. J. F. Kitchen, civic development chairman, is in charge of the program.

Foundation goals explained

Mrs. Foster I. Gilbert, Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs chairman for mental health, spoke to the Cape Henry Woman's Club last Thursday.

She announced that the VFWC state project would be to establish the Virginia Mental Health Research and Education Foundation.

The purpose of the Foundation would be to provide the state "mental hygiene" institutions with financial assistance for innovative programs in personnel development and in research. The Foundation will provide a proper legal mechanism for receiving and administering research and personnel development support from philanthropic organizations and individuals, industries, voluntary agencies and associations. The project will be carried on for two years, by the VFWC.

Dr. Williams, director of the Mental Hygiene Center of Virginia Beach, told the members how the VFWC project would relate to our area.

Mrs. Philip Russo was chairman for this program. Hostesses were Mrs. Arthur B. James and Mrs. C. E. Upton, Jr. Table decorations were done by Mrs. B. R. Bonny, Mrs. Ray Halstead and Mrs. Willard P. Whitehurst.

COTILLION FOURSOME--Charles Litz, Patty Anne Merrell, Ann Kiley and Mike McGinnis, all of Cox High School, were on hand Saturday at the Cavalier Beach Club for the first Cotillion Dance of the season. The Black River Circus played to a standing room only crowd of high schoolers.

GETTING WITH IT--Em and Ron Davis were obviously enjoying the Luau the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club had at Fort Story Officer's Club last Friday night. The Luau is the last celebration (and consolation for abandoned husbands) before the Juniors begin serious work on their annual Follies.

THAT'S NOT THE LIMBO BILL and Marilyn Davis were doing at the Luau, but it was fun.

Lynnhaven Colony

Lynnhaven Colony Garden Club members heard a talk on Gardening and Cooking with Herbs given by Mrs. Floyd S. Sumner at their luncheon meeting held at the home of Mrs. Marrianna Saeed on Starfish Road. Mrs. E.W. Hansen was co-hostess.

Blue ribbon in flower weeks were won by Mrs. Hansen and Mrs. Saeed. Mrs. Saeed was awarded Mrs. C. Saeed and Mrs. K.C. Hansen.

McAllen's ALLEY

By Carolyn McAllen

Happy Birthday dear doggies

I have a normally kindhearted neighbor who would have gladly strangled a dog and puppy the other night--if they hadn't been so sick.

The neighbor's daughter was going to have her eighth birthday, and, though it was a school night, she wanted to celebrate her birthday on her birthday rather than on Saturday. So her mother decided that the easiest thing to do would be to load ten kids into her station wagon (this is easy?) and take them out for pizza, then return to the house for ice cream and cake.

The night before the party the neighborhood bridge club met, and the neighbor was describing the cake she had made for the next day. She said it was in the shape of a butterfly. The only problem, she said, was that the colors in the icing were a little brighter than she had planned--psychedelic, that is. Her daughter, of course, loved it that way.

So the gang gathered and took off from pizza, leaving the dog and five-month-old puppy behind. And the cake, which was on the dining room table.

I'm sure you've all guessed what happened already. When the group returned to the house, disaster reigned. The whole middle of the cake was gone.

But, the neighbor managed to salvage enough from the corners to give each of the kids "two crumbs and a candle." Then she added, "Thank goodness I bought two gallons of ice cream."

Rose Hall's Expert

BRIDAL LANE

By Bob Myatt

The former Bonnie Woodruff met Charles Wesley Crowden and over a period of time their relationship pointed toward marriage. Bonnie had been married before, but this was the first marriage for Wes and they chose to be married in a church ceremony.

When Bonnie came to Rose Hall and explained what she wanted to do, we assisted her in the choice of a lovely blue empire style formal with pleated straight line skirt and pleated capelet bodice. Her maid of honor wore a lavender and blue printed lace formal with a high neckline and short scalloped sleeves bordered in white.

For the altar, Bonnie had two standards of blue candles and two standards of palm froods as decorations. Simple, but elegant.

Bonnie and Wes' guest list included very closest friends and immediate family members. It was an extreme pleasure to assist these two nice people and their family prepare for such an important occasion and even more a pleasure to see a young lady plan everything with such taste and dignity.

50th ANNIVERSARY

What occasions could be more important than a wedding or a 50th anniversary. For either, a professional photographer is a must.

For a 50th anniversary party given in honor of the parents of a close friend of ours, a photographer was engaged for the occasion and a wonderful time was had by all. The tables were beautifully decorated, everyone dressed for the occasion and after the event the daughter who had given the party could hardly wait for the pictures. When she got them, her disappointment was total. She didn't have one picture that was centered correctly, nor did she have one of her mother and father that was not blurred or off center.

After a happy marriage of 50 years, a couple deserves everything "golden" including as many pictures as possible of the occasion. We can only add in this case—be sure your photographer is a highly qualified one for important occasions.

WEDDING GIFTS

People sometimes do not should not, carry wedding gifts to the reception. We have had many mothers greatly upset because so many gifts are brought to the reception which they must pack in their car to take home after the bride and groom have left for the honeymoon. Another responsibility they have (if the maid of honor does not help) is to pack up the wedding gown and other articles the bride leaves behind plus wedding cake and food.

An important thing to consider is that it is so easy to lose a valuable gift in this instance and the bride has no way of knowing. Consequently, no "thank you" note.

Suffice it to say, a wedding gift is better late than never. If you are a bit late sending a gift, just have it delivered to the home after the wedding. They are appreciated just as much.

Gifts of money are a custom among many people. In this case, the bride usually carries a white satin bag while she stands in the receiving line or it is handed to the best man or to the lady responsible for the guest book.

In the event a gift is sent late and will arrive after the wedding, it is sent to "Mr. and Mrs." at the couple's new address or to the bride's parents' address.

TIPS TO GUESTS

Guests should arrive at the church approximately 20 minutes before the ceremony. For a large formal wedding, three-quarters to a half-hour before the ceremony. Guests should not be any later than 15 minutes to five minutes before the ceremony.

Diamond Jim Brady loved coffee. His favorite restaurants kept a private supply of Guadeloupe and Brazils which he served to his guests. At a dinner party he once hid tiny diamond chips in the coffee cups of a bevy of showgirls who were helping him celebrate.

first bench shot at four. "He never took the rifle off the bench. He learned with a group at six. He shot his first ducks at nine. They're never too young. All kids should learn." This is the way to establish respect for firearms she believes.

And she does not believe in B-B guns. "Craig had three rifles and two shotguns before he had a B-B gun. They're the most dangerous," she says that too often parents buy B-B guns for their children then "because they think they're safe" turn the children loose without proper instruction. "The kid goes out and shoots the neighbors' cats and dogs or windows." She said she knew of one child who lost an eye because of a B-B. "The same rules apply for them as any other firearm."

Mrs. Wright is also a gunsmith. She now has one room of her home devoted to guns where she does light gunsmithing work and loads her own ammunition. She also has a rifle range in back behind the houses. Incidentally, the Wrights live in a rather sparsely-populated area near Creeds. She and her husband plan to stay here when he retires from the Navy.

Carol said her husband in guns don't share her interest in guns when they met, but now he does. "He had a .22 pistol, a 12-gauge shotgun and a 30-30 rifle and he thought that was all you needed."

The police, also make use of her knowledge of guns to help identify confiscated guns, find the serial numbers and tell whether they are commercial or homemade. "I went to court occasionally in San Diego for identification."

Although she now works odd hours (shifts change every four weeks and days off every 12) she says this doesn't bother her since she has always worked strange hours. She said she worked as much as 70 hours a week when she had a gun shop. "It's a fun job," she says of the Dispatching Department.

Of her interest in firearms she commented, "It's unusual, it's interesting—even more so since I'm a woman."

Are Wedding Bells Ringing?

If you are announcing an engagement or wedding, why not do it in the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN?

All weddings and engagements received will be used. However, photographs will not be returned by mail but may be picked up at the newspaper office.

Market includes sitters

The 35 members of Kappa Sigma Phi sorority of Virginia Wesleyan College will provide baby-sitting services at the second annual Women of Wesleyan Flea Market on October 17.

The local collegiate social-service sorority will have a booth to entertain the children who come to the Flea Market with their parents. Paula Lynn Evans of Virginia Beach, president, says that the sorority girls "will make-up the children to look like princesses and pirates." They will also have various homemade items, such as dolls, to sell.

The girls will also help the Women of Wesleyan with some of the booths.

Nearly 150 booths have been reserved by persons who will be selling various items at the Flea Market. The twin booths for persons selling items rent for $10. This rental fee goes to the Women of Wesleyan for library books. The profit from individual booths goes to the renter.

The Flea Market will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Twin-Drive-In theaters on Independence Boulevard at Holland Road.

Chesapeake Colony

The Chesapeake Colony Garden Club held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Lester R. Schmirch on Tarkhill Run.

An active year is planned by the club. The beautification project will be landscaping at Foundry Methodist Church and the entrance to the colony. A benefit bridge luncheon will be held at VEPCO on Nov. 5.

Members will continue to help with therapy at Kings Grant School, and with refreshments on special occasions at Lakeview Nursing Home. A petition against billboards was signed by members and sent to the City Council.

Blue ribbons for arrangements went to Mrs. H. L. Addison, Jr. and Mrs. David J. Day.

Bayside club hears Guy

The Junior Women's Club of Bayside had Del. Richard D. Guy as guest speaker at this month's regularly scheduled meeting. He spoke to the club on the proposed amendments to the state Constitution.

While the Greater Tidewater Fair was here, several members took the special education class from Old Donation Elementary School to a day of fun at Pungo.

Mushroom Duxelles is what the French chef calls finely chopped mushrooms, exquisitely seasoned, here used as rich flavor in a stuffing for fish steaks.

Duxelles by any other name would still be mushrooms

Have you discovered the virtues of duxelles? This is a mixture of chopped mushrooms and seasonings that has dozens of uses.

Layer a duxelles mixture between fish steaks, as shown in the photo and accompanying Duxelles Stuffed Fish Steaks recipe. Use it in stuffing baked chicken breasts and other poultry and meats. Or make a duxelles out of the stems of mushrooms and then stuff the caps with it. Equally good in other vegetables as well.

The 17th century French chef La Varenne is credited with developing the duxelles idea. Chefs using large quantities of mushroom caps find it a great use for the leftover stems. At home, the entire mushrooms are usually chopped in order to have sufficient quantity.

A dry duxelles is prepared classically by sauteeing chopped mushrooms with chopped onions and shallots in butter or oil and then garnishing with chopped parsley. Variations from there, according to how the duxelles will be used, may include adding bread crumbs, wine, stock, tomato sauce and other seasonings.

Master chefs consider the mushrooms a way of bringing special flavor—a gourmet touch—to just about any stuffing. As in the stuffed chicken recipe below, they will often add duxelles to rice and herbs. A duxelles normally makes up the stuffing for baked mushrooms, but this vegetable specialty becomes even more exciting when some cheese, chopped ham or other meat is added to the duxelles.

Fall begins another bumper season for fresh mushrooms. While this vegetable is available year around nowadays, the fall through late spring is the time of largest supplies—a good time to try these duxelles ideas from the test kitchen of the American Mushroom Institute.

DUXELLES STUFFED FISH STEAKS

2 (2 lbs. each) halibut or other fish steaks
2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ground white pepper
2 tsp. lemon juice
4 tbsp. butter or margarine, divided
1-2/3 cups Duxelles*

Sprinkle both sides of steaks with salt, white pepper and lemon juice. Place one steak in a buttered baking dish. Dot with 2 tablespoons of the butter. Spread Duxelles evenly over fish. Place remaining steak on Duxelles. Dot with remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated moderate oven (350 F.) 30 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Garnish with lemon slices and sauteed sliced mushrooms, if desired.
Yield: 8 portions

DUXELLES*

(Sauteed Chopped Mushrooms)
1 lb. fresh mushrooms
2 tsp. butter or margarine
3/4 cup finely chopped onions or shallots
1/2 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. ground black pepper
1/16 tsp. ground nutmeg

Rinse, pat dry and finely chop mushrooms (makes about 5-1/2 cups). Place in a clean cloth and twist tightly to extract as much liquid as possible. In a large skillet, heat butter. Add onions, salt, black pepper and nutmeg; saute 2 minutes or until onions are transparent. Add mushrooms and saute over high heat, stirring constantly about 5 to 8 minutes or until all moisture from mushrooms has evaporated. Cool thoroughly, cover and refrigerate until ready to use. Keeps for several weeks.
Yield: 1-2/3 cups Duxelles.

CHICKEN BREASTS STUFFED WITH DUXELLES

3 chicken breasts, split and boned
1 cup Duxelles*

4 tsp dry white wine, divided
1/2 tsp. tarragon leaves, crumbled
3/4 tsp. salt

1/8 tsp ground white pepper
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/4 lb. fresh mushrooms or 1 can (2 to 3 oz.) sliced mushrooms

Cut a pocket in each chicken breast; set aside. In a small bowl combine Duxelles with rice, egg, 2 tablespoons of the wine and tarragon; mix well. Stuff each chicken breast with about 2 heaping tablespoons of the mushroom and white pepper. Place in baking pan. Dot with butter. Sprinkle remaining 2 tablespoons wine over chicken. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 F.) 40 to 45 minutes or until done, basting occasionally with pan drippings. Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms (makes about 1-1/4 cups) or drain canned mushrooms. Add to pan 10 minutes before chicken is done. Serve mushrooms with chicken.

Bayside Remains Undefeated Fourth Week

Kempsville Coach Moon agonizes as his team loses.

Princess Anne, losing its own state ranking last week, surprised the state's third-ranked team Friday, sending Norview's hopes for an undefeated season down the drain.

The Cavaliers, once again led by ground-gobbling Jerry McGrath, managed to hold out long enough to escape with a 12-7 victory over the favored Pilots. PA's stout defense caused a Norview fumble on the Cavalier 10, stopping what could have been the winning touchdown with only 45 seconds left in the game.

In other Virginia Beach high school football action Friday, Bayside edged Deep Creek 17-14, First Colonial's Patriots stymied cross-town rival Cox by 31-8, Kellam fell to Indian River 36-6 and Maury whalloped Kempsville by an identical 36-6.

Princess Anne, which may have won back its state standing, relied entirely on its ground game to rout Norview. Quarterback Al Strange, the Cavalier's sophomore quarterback, was unsuccessful in his three pass attempts.

McGrath slashed Norview's highly touted defense for 92 yards. The game marked the first time in three games that the Pilot defense yielded a touchdown.

The state's 15th-ranked team, Bayside, had to resort to a 24-yard field goal by Bill Petree in the last second of the game to squeeze by tough Deep Creek.

Cox halfback Richard Mecure (23) latches on to a First Colonial runner during Friday night's action-filled game at Cox Stadium.

Petree's three-pointer was the first this year in Tidewater grid action.

The Marlin's two touchdowns came on runs of one and three yards by Lance Platz. But Deep Creek had its own heroics. Johnny Temple returned a Marlin kickoff 83 yards and teammate Tony Adams added a two-point conversion to knot the game at 14-14 before the tie-breaking field goal.

Bayside, now 4-0-1 for the year, had been picked as a break-even team by most pre-season polls. The Marlin's, managing only a 1-8 tally last year, currently are the Beach's only undefeated team.

Maury's unbeaten Commodores continued to run rough shot over Beach teams Friday, scoring touchdowns against Kempsville the first two times they touched the football.

Down 22-6 at the half, the Chiefs sprung a surprising spread formation on Maury in an attempt to get back into the game. The spread resembled a shotgun offense with the entire team lined up on one side of the center. The desperation formation worked for 58 yards the first time, but the Commodores quickly recovered, putting heavy pressure on Kempsville quarterback Billy Paschall.

The Chiefs put their only touchdown on the board after a series covering 63 yards. Don Hauck ran the ball in from the eight-yard line.

First Colonial upped its record to 3-2 with an easy 31-8 win over winless Cox. The Patriots assembled a 12-0 lead in the first quarter and were never seriously threatened. Mike Branch accounted for three First Colonial touchdowns while teammates Welton Caldwell and Steve Taylors contributed one each. The Falcons only offering was a seven-yard trip by Edward Byrd.

Kellam's battle with Indian River left them still looking for their first win this year. The Braves took advantage of Kellam's mistakes, intercepting four passes and recovering four fumbles.

Surprisingly enough, Kellam outgained Indian River 234 to 146, but the mistakes made the difference. Kellam's only bright spot was Charles Muldez who gained 65 yards for the Falcons and scored their only touchdown on a seven-yard run in the second quarter.

GAMES THIS WEEK:

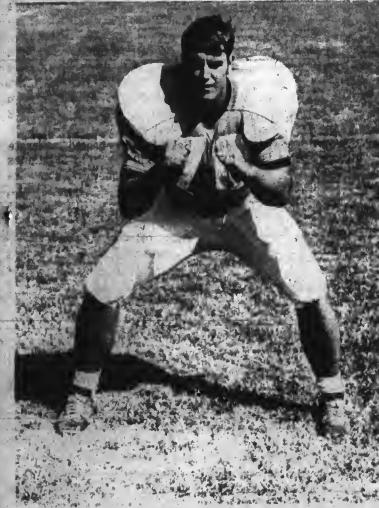

MAURY AT BAYSIDE
KEMPSVILLE AT COX
KELLAM AT PRINCESS ANNE

PREDICTIONS:

Charley Muldez carries the ball for Kellam for a short gain.

Witnesses To Meet

Brown

The Virginia Beach Convention Center will open its doors to the Jehovah's Witnesses fall assembly Friday through Oct. 18. Leora Brown, supervisor of Jehovah's Witnesses Virginia-Norfolk Circuit 26, stated that according to their last attendance a peak of 1500 can be expected to be present at the three-day ministerial training seminar which is sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

Local Witnesses and visitors are anxiously preparing to receive the advanced training offered at the assembly. Brown said that "the Witnesses, who stress the door to door type of ministry, now foresee that the 1970's are earmarked as the generation that will tell the outcome, both by observers of the world scene and more importantly, by the Bible itself."

The entire program will be an instructive one. Beginning 6:45 p.m. Friday, a model Ministry School will be conducted where five student assignments are given careful consideration by the counselor. Visitors will enjoy the scheduled demonstrations, discourses, experiences and Christian fellowship throughout Saturday and Sunday.

Commenting on why their children had so much parental respect Brown said, "children study with their parents at home and sit with them in the Kingdom Halls so all receive the same instruction. In this way all will know the Bible principles and what is required of each family member to implement them. Unwholesome influences are thus avoided and the family grows together spiritually."

Climaxing the training seminar Sunday October 18 at 3 p.m. will be the public discourse "WHO WILL CONQUER THE WORLD IN THE 1970's" by J. C. Howard, Jr., district director and supervisor. All sessions are open to the public.

Wesleyan Kempsville Plans 10 Grants

Virginia Wesleyan College has announced ten $1,000 "Tidewater Scholarships" for the fall of 1971.

Frank S. Badger, registrar and director of admission at Virginia Wesleyan announced the scholarship program at a recent dinner meeting of Tidewater area high school guidance counselors at the college.

Ten new Tidewater Scholarships of $1,000 each will be available each year. To be eligible for consideration for these scholarships the candidate must live in the Tidewater area; be a commuting student, rank in the upper ten percent of his or her graduating class, have a College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test total score of at least 1200 and receive a recommendation from his or her high school.

The student will be able to renew the scholarship each semester as long as he maintains a minimum average of 3.00 out of a possible 4.00 at Virginia Wesleyan. Information and application forms are available from Tidewater area high school guidance offices. There are 266 Tidewater area students enrolled at Virginia Wesleyan this year. The total fulltime enrollment this year is 626.

Virginia Wesleyan College is a four-year, church-related, coeducational, basically residential, liberal arts college located on a 300 acre campus astride the Norfolk-Virginia Beach line.

City Is Good Risk Says Scott

City Manager Roger M. Scott told City Council Monday that as a result of its excellent reputation as a low risk policy holder, it has received a rebate of $48,792 from its 1969 insurance policy.

Scott said the check received from the Kellam and Eaton Insurance Company is standard procedure for the city to follow. Each year the city pays a premium rate and to how well it does through to accidents determines the size of the rebate.

The policy for 1969 was written for $122,559. The rebate in 1968 was $7,200 on $124,000 policy while the rebate in 1969 was $21,500 on a 1968 $131,000 policy. Scott said the policy covered city vehicles, workmen's compensation and accidents.

In other items, Council: *Confirmed an agreement with the J.C. Wheat Co. to continue acting as the city's financial advisors. *Authorized the city manager to sign a mutual fire protection agreement with the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center, in which the parties agree to assist each other when the need arises for massive protection.

*Accepted a low bid of $138,673 on the municipal golf course club house from the Glauk Construction Co. of Norfolk. The bid was adjusted down from the original bid of $172,078 to meet the city's budgetary limit.

*Appropriated $105,731 as part of its funding for the city's Welfare Department. The state had asked the city to appropriate additional funds and may yet deduct it from other funds if the city does not meet its obligation.

areas. That regardless of the future plans, the area already developed is so small that any future growth would be compatible.

The study area is also located in the population center of the region and can draw on the entire labor supply pool in the region.

The second area, the land adjacent to the Centerville Temple from Kempville Road to Indian River Road, is also recommended for consideration.

The site, not as fully developed as the Greenwich site, also has the access ways provided by interstates and rail. But it does not have city water and sewer lines extending to the area. To overcome that problem, the planning staff says the city should construct the needed utilities to attract the businesses.

"The economic return accruing to the City of Virginia Beach from the construction and continued operation of heavy commercial operations can and will provide sufficient economic benefits to offset the cost of constructing these lines," the report says.

In addition, the increased development will offset any unemployment problems as well as civil service cutbacks caused by Department of Defense budget reductions, it says.

Add to these cutbacks of the already employed an additional annual new group of 5,500 people, as well as 4,190 unemployed, and the labor force grows tremendously.

"In summary," the report says, "these areas are ideally located for light industrial centers affording the occupants all of the prerequisites and industrial park should contain."

It notes that building materials, food distribution, and trucking and storage operations are best suited to take advantage of these areas. Coupled with a burgeoning borough growth of almost 30,000 residents by 1985, improved arterial roadways and well-placed educational complexes, the borough is destined to become industrial in its orientation, just as the Virginia Beach Borough is tourist-oriented.

The intent of the plan is best summed up with a minor phrase in the report: "This is a generalized pattern that is well-represented as the plan is updated."

That is the salvation for the city planner, as well as the area he's concerned with, 2nd for a borough as rapidly changing as the Kempville area; it's almost mandatory.

INSIDE THE THIRD REICH: Memoirs by Albert Speer. Translated by Richard and Clara Winston. New York, Macmillan, 1970. $12.50.

At the outset of their relationship, Albert Speer and Adolf Hitler met on the common ground of their interest in architecture. Speer was an architect by profession, Hitler fancied himself as one, and both men shared a taste for neoclassical architecture of a grandiose and aesthetically outrageous design.

Speer first fell under Hitler's spell at a meeting of professional men addressed by the future Führer in 1931; and he first came to Hitler's attention not long thereafter as the designer of backdrops for the Nazi rallies and pageants of Hitler's early years in power. Soon he became his favorite architect and planner for the rebuilding of Berlin and other cities. As the years passed the attraction between the two men deepened. "If Hitler had had any friends," Speer remarks toward the end of his memoirs, "I would certainly have been one of his close friends."

As architect of the new Chancellery in Berlin, the Nuremberg Stadium and many other mammoth structures, Speer has impressed Hitler by the dispatch with which he met or exceeded every schedule. He was, therefore, at the beginning of the war put in charge of the construction of armament factories. When Minister of Armaments Todt died in 1942, Speer, aged 36, became his successor.

A dynamic man with a brilliant and flexible mind, he almost invariably topped his production quotas; he was an indefatigable improviser and trouble-shooter who unsparingly rolled back bottlenecks and started up production in bombed-out plants in record time; above all, the greater the odds the better he worked.

Speer's memoirs begin slowly, but once he is past his career as an architect and enters upon his real life work as a master technocrat, it becomes clear that his book is far and away the most fascinating chronicle of the Third Reich that has so far appeared. This is so in spite of the fact that Speer is a pedestrian writer.

But what, above all, differentiates these memoirs from those of other members of the Third Reich elite is that Speer's work gives us an absolutely unique picture of Hitler as well as valuable insights into the workings of the Nazi state.

Candidates Confront Each Other But Few Witness It

The controversial campaign between two men—made its debut in Virginia Beach Monday night in a flurry of accusations and counter-accusations but few were there to see it.

The fact that incumbent Senator Harry F. Byrd Jr. didn't appear on the platform at Bay-side Junior High School made little difference to the Democrats' George Rawlings and Republican hopeful Ray Garland.

The debate, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Council of Civic Organizations and the League of Women Voters, reached a heated climax during a brief exchange between Rawlings and a woman in the audience after she defended Garland.

After the chairman quietened the audience, Rawlings said, "They can be disruptive, it doesn't matter. They (Republicans) know they are losing and know they are in trouble."

Earlier, Rawlings told the sparse crowd he was running against two Republicans—"one from Roanoke and the other from Winchester." Senator Byrd, running this year as an independent for the first time, is a native of Winchester.

The Fredericksburg Democrat told the audience that Byrd failed to appear because he was ashamed of his "sorry record." "This is not the kind of attention and consideration to give the voters of this state," Rawlings said.

Garland, a businessman-college instructor from Roanoke disavowed Byrd's allegiance to the GOP and added, "Frankly, we don't want him."

He said Rawlings' credibility gap is growing wider and wider. Pointing at his opponent, Garland said, "Here's a man who voted for Byrd in the last election. He's voted for all those Democrats we've tried to get rid of. It's this type of demagoguery that disqualifies George Rawlings for the senate."

Referring to an earlier statement by Rawlings, Garland said,

"The last Democrat who tried to make the system work nearly wrecked it. The people sent him back to the Pedernales."

After the opening burst at each other, the candidates set out to explain their platforms. Terming himself the "people's Democrat," Rawlings told the crowd he was mainly concerned about the average man. Calling for an end to the war in Vietnam, Rawlings said, "Resources spent for death in Southeast Asia should be spent for life in Southeast Virginia."

He blamed the current Republican administration for inflation, rising unemployment, poor consumer goods regulations and unfair taxes.

Garland, on the other hand, stressed future threats on the current system of government. He said he was concerned about "extremists who propose solutions outside the framework of our government." The GOP candidate said, "the way to shatter the appeal of the extremist groups is to make the system work."

Garland met with widespread applause when he told the audience, "I don't think this is so safe a world that we can take the country down the lane of unilateral disarmament."

Only an estimated 200—many of them students doing assigned themes—attended the rally.

Stolen Property Recovered

Virginia Beach police arrested two women this past weekend in connection with the theft of approximately $1,000 worth of merchandise from the Rose Hall Fashion Shop, Virginia Beach Blvd. last Wednesday night.

Officials identified the women Patricia Kay Jolley, 18, of Norfolk, who was taken into custody last Saturday, and Laura Ruth Kuus, 20, of Chesapeake, who was arrested Sunday. Investigators indicated both suspects have been charged with breaking and entering.

Det.'s H.J. Coffield, Jr., and R.F. Alliger, who were the investigating officers said that nearly 95% of the stolen merchandise consisting of wrist watches and clothing, was recovered with the arrests of the suspects.

Photographic Exhibit Proves Creativity of the Camera

The artist creates the world he wishes utilizing his own talents to mold and develop beauty or tragedy or loneliness or the mood or situation of life that most appeals to him.

A creative photographer can show us only reality, but by utilizing light, angles and his own delicate feel he can shape the starkness of that reality into artistry. The group of photographers presently exhibiting at Village Gallery are, indeed, artists in every sense of the word.

In this exhibit, which will continue through October, the photographers have shared with us many faces of life...the sentimentality of young love, the tragedy of lost souls, the wisdom of age, the beauty of untouched nature. Their work makes you feel. Truly feel.

Ronn Maratea is a master of stark reality. He doesn't glamorize, or soften or minimize life. He dramatizes its harshness, its coldness and makes it memorable. His vivid portrait of a young dope addict plunging a needle into her arm is a mental picture that stays with you. At first site you draw a sharp breath, are repelled by its brutality, then hypnotized by its tragedy, secretly wishing you had been spared its pain. But it is artistry and one that will undoubtedly come to mind many years from now.

There are many outstanding works by Maratea in this exhibit. A picture across the room will catch your eye, primarily because of its dramatic impact, and you know it must be another work by Maratea. His silhouette of the young lovers stands out among the beautiful but conventional bridal portraits; his kitten behind a ball of yarn has an ominous gleam in its eye; his portrait of Les Lively in his "Lion in Winter" role is theatre personified. This is a very talented artist.

Steven Waterman runs him a close second in this particular exhibit, utilizing much of the same techniques. His shot of the lonely bed epitomizes poverty and the various shots of the weathered fisherman are beautiful in their complicity of human emotions.

Polly Frye has done some excellent work, especially in her portrait of the freckled-face little leaguer (what a contrast in youth he makes against the agony of the young dope addict) and John Predlow's baby portrait will surely bring a smile to all who see it.

Jack Williams has some unbelievably creative pieces of natural scenes, sunsets over the lake, and that sort of thing; Richard Burton does Williamsburg scenes to perfection; and

Loneliness

Archie McDermid displays a man of the sea in such splendor that his face, especially his eyes, pull you to him.

There are quite a few of the usual bridal and individual portraits in this show, of course, and they are good but what really makes this particular photographic exhibit worthwhile is its variety of subjects and the artistry in which the photographer has developed them. It's a unique show.

The Vepco gas pig

This 70-pound device is for some reason—probably because it has bristles—called a pig.

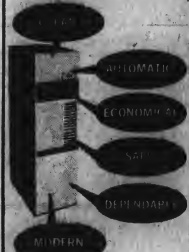

It's inserted in one end of a newly-installed natural gas pipe and compressed air is put behind it, forcing it down the pipe to the other end. In the process, the bristles remove rust scale and other foreign matter from inside the pipe.

The pig is a nice animal since it insures that you get no impurities with your natural gas.

A WEEKLY PICTORIAL

People, Places and Events - make news

MARY FOSTER 9 1/2, went on a camping trip last weekend with Girl Scout Troop 32. They camped at Dam Neck and Mary found a nice quiet spot near the lake to work on her "God's Eye".

Ed Love of Virginia Beach is the starting defensive left tackle for Chowan College's football team, which shares the Coastal Conference lead with a 3-0 record. The Braves' most recent victory was 43-0 over Worth Business College in Fayetteville, N.C., Oct. 3. They meet Ferrum at home Saturday at 8 p.m.

MRS. LEROY J. MILLER, JR. is shown in her kitchen taking pecan pies for the annual auction and bake sale that will be held at the Mennonite school in Kempsville Saturday, October 17th. All proceeds from the sale will go to the school. Mennonite ladies are known to be among the world's greatest cooks so the fat bearded IN SIGHT photographer is looking forward to the sale. The sale and auction will start at 10:00 AM and will last most all day, as so many items have been made and donated. The ladies have been busy for weeks sewing their beautiful quilts, comforters and spreads and other items. The men have also been busy with their handicrafts.

Among the interested parties touring the wilderness area in North Virginia Beach Saturday were MRS. DOROTHY ABIDL, representing the Environmental Committee of the League of Women Voters; MR. & MRS. ROBERT WILSON, he is president of the Bayview Civic League, Norfolk, representing Norfolk Federation of Civic Leagues; MRS. GORDON TYLER, representing the Virginia Beach Garden Club; BRUCE DOWLING, Executive Director, America The Beautiful Fund, Washington, D.C.; BOB DENNIS, president, Conservation Council of Virginia; JAMES DEAN, assistant editor, Wilderness Society, Washington, D.C. and LERMOND MILLER, COMMANDER (RETIRED) USN, an interested citizen.

Weekend weather perfect for girl scout outing

Girl Scout Troop 32 spent Friday, Saturday, and Sunday camping at Dam Neck. They picked a beautiful campsite in a grove of trees bordering a lake and were luckier than most campers—they had perfect weather all week end.

Why the Audi is the hottest selling car in Germany.

We don't mean to imply we're the largest selling car. What we do mean, though, is that in the first five months of this year, the new Audi 100 LS has had greater sales increases than any other German car.

Apparently the Audi must really have something. And what the Audi has is this:

Features that are more advanced than just about any other car in the world.

There's front-wheel drive so you can corner with the stability of a racing car.

There's rack-and-pinion steering, the most responsive system a car can have and the very same system used in racing cars.

The Audi has inboard front disc brakes for quick safe stops.

As for the engine, well, it gets 26 miles to the gallon and goes from 0 to 50 in a mere 8 seconds.

And the interior is very plush, extremely comfortable with room for five.

You'll be extremely impressed with the Audi.

PORTRAIT OF A BUSY MAN

Thomas Spradlin

When the IN SIGHT photographer visited THOMAS SPRADLIN in his office at the C & P Telephone Co. in downtown Norfolk the first thing he did was clear away the signs of a busy man -- a busy desk. (Men always want to clear their desk and the ladies want to fix their hair or face before having their pictures taken.)

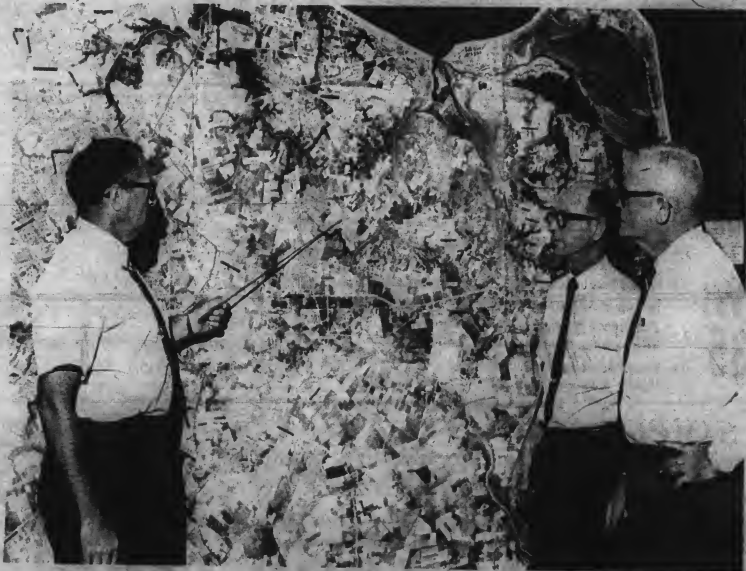

THOMAS R. SPRADLIN is a busy man. Besides being Commercial Supervisor Forecast and Development for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company he is also active in several organizations of which he is affiliated, among them are: Tidewater Association of Home Builders, Homebuilding Association of the Virginia Peninsula, Armed Forces Communication and Electronics Association, Chamber of Commerce, Social Economics Area Research Clearing House, United Community Fund (Has worked five years with the business group.), Boy Scouts of America (Assistant Scoutmaster Troop 65 and counselor for five merit badges.)

SPRADLIN is Assistant Superintendent of Adult Sunday School Department, Kings Grant Baptist Church and a member of the Teller's Committee. He is also a member of the Kingston Elementary School PTA and a coach of the Kings Grant Lions, 110 pound City League Football team.

He is also player agent for the Lynnhaven Bronco League.

MR. SPRADLIN points out, on a smaller map, the site of a new housing development to MR. BAILEY CONDREY, C & P Commercial Manager.

SPRADLIN discusses an area of new development on the huge aerial photo map in his office with two of his co workers GARLAND JONES and GEORGE BROOKS.

As Assistant Scoutmaster and merit badge counselor, SPRADLIN has counseled forty merit badges this year. Here he is shown working with his sons TOMMY 13, a Star scout, and DAVID 11, First Class and BRUCE ROBERTS 12, also a Star Scout, toward their first aid merit badges.

MRS. SPRADLIN, LILLIAN, a Girl Scout Leader, bakes delicious cookies so with the aroma coming from the kitchen Dad had to take time out from his merit badge counseling to try them as daughter DEBBIE 15, looks on, DEBBIE is a majorette at First Colonial High School.

Saturday mornings in football season will find coach THOMAS SPRADLIN on the field. Also two evenings a week are devoted to practice. Here he discusses the game with some of the Kings Grant Lions and coach JIM STANLEY.

Like we said, THOMAS R. SPRADLIN is a busy man. And he still found time to appear before thirty-nine groups this year with a slide presentation on the growth of this area.

Bill says his is a full service car wash, inside and out, and that he will give each car a personal inspection to be sure it's as clean as if the customer had done it himself. Bill says that the 'Worlds Largest Resort City' will now have the 'Worlds Cleanest Cars'.

Bill, who hails from New Bern, N.C., says that his main interests are water sports and girls and he knows that Virginia Beach has plenty of both so that is his reason for settling here.

PARTY FOR ABBY AND HIS 'CRUM BUMS'

MILTON REMINGTON ABBOT, 78 years young, known as ABBY to his friends, was feted at a cocktail and dinner party Friday nite at the Officers Club, Oceana. The party was in celebration of ABBY'S fifty-sixth anniversary as a tennis pro. ABBY, as his 'Crum Bums' or friends know, has been the pro at the Capes Beach & Cabanna Club for over thirteen years. Every year his good friends throw a party for him. This year they were joined by a group of tennis enthusiasts from the Bay Harbor Tennis Club.

Judging from the smiles, MRS. NANCY EUBANK, DOCTOR FRANK WELLS and DOCTOR LAWRENCE SMITH had an enjoyable evening at ABBY'S party.

MRS. J.W. CLEMENS and MRS. ENNIO OPALIO discuss MRS. CLEMENS recent trip to Florida. The CLEMENS returned Friday from Fort Lauderdale, Miami and Clearwater. In the background is DOCTOR LAWRENCE SMITH and his wife DOCTOR MARY LOU SMITH.

MR. and MRS. WILLIAM BRADT were in conversation with friends when the IN SIGHT photographer snapped this picture of them at the party honoring ABBY ABBOT.

NATURALIST AREA OR NEW SCHOOL?

There is a wilderness area of several hundred acres north of Shore Drive and West of Atlantic Avenue in which the flora and fauna have been likened, by some scientists, to that of the Dismal Swamp. Fifteen acres of the land, which was a part of Seashore State Park, has been leased to the city for $1.00 a year for the purpose of building a new elementary school. Many of the residents of the area feel that a school is not needed in the area and that the land should remain as is and a part of the park. Several organizations have taken up the fight to preserve the area. Last Saturday some of them invited some guests to tour the area with them.

Entering the area from 87th Street the hikers reach the top of a small hill---

---overlooking a sandy valley of scrub pines and dune grass.

Stopping to study the valley for a few moments-----

---the group then moves on into the interior.

Weird occurrences

QUESTION: I am one of your non-believers, but faithfully your column, I have two questions. One; in your last column you mentioned the things about weird occurrences in space program, etc. No one I know ever heard of such thing. Could you clarify that a bit? Also, I feel a tremendous urge to do creative work but am frustrated by the lack of financial support at every turn. Will I ever find place in society and be creative? Signed Seeker.

ANSWER: I have had the same reaction from several people about the "moon mysteries". It only proves how much of us are buried in our own worlds. We seldom see what is going on outside the sum of our limited interest. I have read the editor of the Sun if I could put together a special column dealing with this sort of thing and they have graciously agreed. You can look for it as soon as I can find time to get together.

Since you did not give an accurate birth time we are limited far as to the exactness of the timing of events, and even areas of the life which will be affected by the movement of the planets, but I will offer what help I can.

Depending on the time factor, which means some of the things could have already taken place, I would say that you in for some difficult times as far as your health is concerned. In fact, if you do not watch the health there is the possibility of surgery. Possibly in the near future. This is meant to frighten you, but it is a distinct possibility, could involve some kind of automobile accident or any of things which come under the dominion of the planet Mars, as a fire or accident. Caution is advised—not fear.

You have the problem of getting more money together than needed for the necessities due to the fact that the planet Venus (governing money) is in opposition to the planet Neptune, as I have stated several times before causes confusion and cloudiness. In relationship to money this is quite simple figure out. Also there is a rather difficult aspect between planet Venus and the planet Mars. This causes one to have struggle for financial success. So money is obviously a problem.

cannot accept that money has anything to do with creativity, ever. I once told a friend, a very wise friend, the same thing you feel. I said there was something creative I felt I had with my life. His response to me was, admittedly some what caustic: "If you feel that you have something creative to do you have the ability to do it, it will be impossible to keep hidden." At first I was quite put out with him, but later I covered he was right. If you can create you will have to keep it a secret. The world is dying because of a lack of creative people.

Work with retarded

QUESTION: I am studying to be an elementary school teacher, now in my last year of college. Will I be able to put my passion to use? Signed, MMS.

ANSWER: In exchange for answering your question, you would invite me to the wedding. That is the least you could since you may not know at this moment that it will come about before you begin your career. Yes, you do quite well as a school teacher, but you have so much to offer. It would be a shame to limit yourself to just that of education. You are one of those quiet, energetic people capable of giving a great deal of yourself to others, could do remarkable things in the field of mental retardation.

You have just begun doing research, using astrological principles, to attempt to find the best way to prevent, and then act, in the education of retarded children. They are really remarkable little people. The thing that they respond to is love. It is the only thing. In fact, that they do respond to you could work miracles in this field. Just a little of your time would bring you many personal rewards. Share of the blessings you have received.

Writing is possible

QUESTION: I have been working on my Master's for the past years. There is some hope of having it published. Could I be writing my career?

ANSWER: My advice to you is the same, in a way, that it is to young lady. What is needed now in the world is feeling, not intellectuality. There is a strong vein of this running through your horoscope.

Writing is relatively simple. Even I can do it, although not very well. It seems that the thing that really matters is if we have something to say that will be of value.

There is a new book on the market titled "Earth Day The Beginning". To quote some of the young people, "It's a mind bender". One of the things I have been shouting about is the fact dumping all this gas into the ocean is a terribly dangerous thing to do. Also I have stated that radiation is the most dangerous thing that man has ever faced. I have stated that the radiation level is one hundred times the safe level already and that are manufacturing some of the most horrible deformities seen. The thalidomide babies will appear to have been beheaded compared to what will come if someone does not stop this insane "testing". It may be too late.

The book, which is a compilation of addresses given by United States Senators, scientist (covering all disciplines) and just a people. It is made quite clear that we are quickly and bodily going away with ourselves. One of the most interesting, and to me, almost too painful to contemplate, facts, is in time the canisters holding our atomic waste would become radioactive and it would be impossible to keep this extremely radioactive radioactive emissions from seeping into the air, being very intelligent I also stated that I felt (based on astrological data) that radiation had the insidious ability to grow and growth could, and probably would, get out of control. I suppose I have to explain the meaning of "chain reaction". Earth Day has confirmed all those fears and many many more. I could go on and on with this but I suggest that you do the book yourself.

On this basis, assuming that there is a world to have a career could say that you can have a very successful career. The field that would be the most lucrative would be some research type program. Scientific investigation and writing is spelled out rather clearly and will offer some considerable success.

First Colony

City Joins Rate Increase Fight

By JAMES TURNER

"I'm testotally against it," says a Pungo physician of the proposed First Colony Telephone Company rate increases, "because we don't get good service now and I doubt if we'll get it in the future."

"This telephone has been a real headache with me," said Dr. L.L. Hancock, "but I'm tired of fighting it." This is not the first time Dr. Hancock has done battle with the company.

"I went to Richmond once and talked with people at the State Corporation Commission. They said they were surprised that I was complaining, that I was the first one who had ever said anything; I told them to make me the first, then," he said.

What promoted the doctor's complaint were what he considers to be extremely high rates for his service. On the average, Dr. Hancock has been paying First Colony $71.60 per month for the last ten months.

That sum is for a single private line and an extension from his office to his home about a mile away, and is based on a line charge computed according to the distance from the telephone exchange station in the Pungo area to the site of the instrument.

Thus, Dr. Hancock has been paying about $50 a month for local service, 10 per cent Federal tax, a 20 per cent city tax and any additional long distance calls. "But I only make between $5 and $10 worth of long distance calls a month," he said.

Dr. Hancock said he has never gotten decent service from the company, even when it was the now defunct Princess Anne Telephone Company, and is getting sick of the whole situation.

"I'm entitled to the same service people in the Beach Borough receive, and at the same rates. What makes me mad is that they say we're a city but they have a telephone service that's rural," he said.

Dr. Hancock is not alone in his objections to the proposed increases. Councilman J. Curtis Payne said he has received several calls about the increases, and it was at Payne's insistence that the city decided to step into the foray.

City Attorney J. Dale Bimson said the city has engaged the services of a specialist in rate services of Richmond attorney A. C. Epps, a specialist in rate increases and a partner in the firm of Christian, Barton, Parker, Epps and Brent. "We are intervening in behalf of the residents here," Bimson said, "but we decided to find a specialist in the field to handle the case." Bimson said he will appear with Epps as co-counsel in the case before the SCC Oct. 27 in Richmond.

Bimson added that Epps in turn has added the consultant firm of Haskins and Sellers of New York City to "work up a set of figures showing that the rates need not be that much."

Haskins and Sellers are specialists in the field of rate structures, Bimson said.

The intervention will constitute the first time the City has entered a First Colony rate case.

But the state manager of the telephone network, Conrad J. Logan, said the rates may actually be decreasing for residents of the old Princess Anne county area in the outlying areas of the Pungo exchange.

Logan said the company proposes to drop the line fee charges and increase the basic fee for residents of the Pungo area, one of the two First Colony exchanges in the city.

At present, the basic charge is $7 a month in addition to the $3 per mile line fee. Under the First Colony's proposal, the line fee would be dropped and the basic charge would be increased to $15 a month; the four-party rate would be $10 a month.

In the Princess Anne Exchange, consumers are not charged a line fee but a basic charge of $7 a month. Under the proposed rate scale, their bill for the basic charge would increase to $10 a month.

Logan said the company, which merged with the Princess Anne telephone company in 1966, serves about 2900 people in the Princess Anne and Pungo areas.

The rate increases are necessary, he said, in order to expand the company and provide continued good service to its customers.

"First Colony, like many utilities, is confronted with increasing costs of operation," he said, in addition to the prospect to facing a tight money market.

In the past, the company could get a two per cent interest loan from the Rural Electrification Authority of the federal government, making it easy to expand.

But that loan is no longer available to the company, and now First Colony is finding itself forced to turn to the money market, with its high interest rates, to seek capital to expand.

This hits you of short money. Logan said, to be able to do money markets, the only way to show that you have and growing capital. Most utilities necessary capital from its earnings forced to take a loan.

He said the rates generated increases will make possible the expansion of the service to other customers.

And although wasn't aware of case of Dr. Hancock, he expects that rates paid by Pungo area will be kept on the fringe.

Which may be Dr. Hancock, who go down to the fight, but I'm just going to Richmond again."

Pollution of Lake Smith Feared

A change of zoning application for land along the Lake Smith perimeter approved by the Planning Commission Oct. 13 is expected to receive strong opposition when it appears before City Council for final approval Monday.

Ellis C. Woodburn, president of the Lakeside Park Civic League, said Monday he will be representing about 800 residents living in the Lake Smith area who are against the change because of potential pollution of the water.

The application, filed by M. Bagley Walker and Charles L. Kaufman, requested a change of zoning from a rural residence district to a multiple family residence district.

The application had been deferred by the Planning Commission at its meeting Sept. 8 pending further information on the area.

Woodburn said the residents' contentions about the development is that it will pollute the lake and lead to erosion around the lake.

"The other item of interest in this case is that the City of Norfolk is opposed to this type of zoning around the lake because of pollution," he said.

The pollution will stem from the fact that there will be a heavy runoff from the apartments parking area directly into the lake, Woodburn said, and from the children and people who will be walking around Lake Smith's edge.

"We're not asking that the land not be developed, but we are asking that attention be given to when the area is developed."

Appearing before the commission Oct. 13, representative of Eastern Dominion University, who submitted testimony to the commission that the ecology of the lake would be destroyed.

A chilly clean-up

Eight-year-old Linda Criss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Criss, bundled up like a teddy bear before tackling the elements Saturday to do her part in the Girls Scouts' beach clean-up project. Several hundred girls braved the chilly weather to clean the beach from Rudee Inlet to Cape Henry. Linda, a member of Brownie Troop 37, is a third grader at Princess Anne Elementary School.

Group Fights Billboards

The Beautification Commission, Council of Garden Clubs, League of Women Voters and Jaycees have joined forces to seek the prohibition of billboards on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway, Northampton Blvd., Shore Drive, and General Booth Blvd.

Robert M. Stanton, former president of the Jaycees and chairman of the joint committee, said that the basic goal is for the City Council to adopt, as a city ordinance, paragraph 33-317.1 of the code of the Commonwealth of Virginia. A major provision of this law is the prohibition of billboards within 600 feet of an interstate highway.

Stanton said that while the roads of the beach being affected were not interstate highways, the committee felt the language of this law was fair and comprehensive and could be easily incorporated in a city ordinance.

Stanton said the committee will be making efforts to educate the citizens of Virginia Beach and will endeavor to impress the City Council with opposition to the erection of billboards on the roads in question.

In addition to Stanton, Mrs. P.S. Courson is serving as secretary, Col. Joseph Viner as treasurer, and Mrs. Arthur J. Winder, R. O. Koodykowitz, Mrs. Arthur Tozer, H. Jack Jennings Jr., William L. Shephard, Jr. and Roland Winter as committee members.

The four organizations have over 3,000 Beach residents as members. The Planning Commission and the planning department staff will present their recommendations on a proposed ordinance to Council at its Dec. 7 meeting.

It is expected that an ordinance applying to the entire city and not just to specific roadways will be presented at that time.

Governor Appoints Talbot

A 36-year-old Virginia Beach man has become the first person from this resort city ever appointed to the Hampton Roads Sanitation Commission.

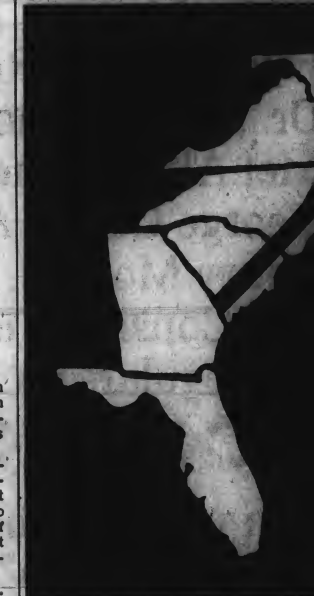

Governor Linwood Holton announced the appointment of Douglas W. Talbot to this post Wednesday afternoon. He also announced the reappointment of J. Clyde Morris of Newport News, chairman of the Commission.

Talbot succeeds Robert F. Ripley of Norfolk who was available for reappointment. The term will expire June 7, 1974. Talbot is senior partner in the firm of Talbot and Associates, engineers, land planners and surveyors. Before setting up his own firm he was director of public works for the City of Hopewell and for three years prior to that was city engineer for the City of Independence, Mo.

Among many professional and civic positions Talbot holds is membership on the Virginia Beach Committee of 100 and secretary of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders.

The commission is charged with overseeing the disposal of sewerage and other materials from the area cities, excluding Hampton and Newport News. They maintain several treatment plants located at several points throughout the south Hampton Roads area.

Coastal Corridor Highway Pushed

Some 500 persons gathered in Myrtle Beach to push the proposed coastal corridor highway through Virginia Beach area with Savannah, Ga. It is a large promotion the highway has had since it was recommended two years ago by Wilbur Smith and Associates, which contracted the transportation study for the Coastal Plains Regional Commission.

Lucius J. Kellam, chairman of the Chesapeake Tunnel Commission, spoke in favor of the highway. Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel will not optimum economic success until a Coastal highway, or equal, is completed.

The affluent tourist wants to come over provide him an opportunity through this Coastal Corridor. Our cities, counties and states need bonanza," Kellam said.

North Carolina Governor Robert W. Scott, the financing of the highway, told the group states—Virginia, Georgia and North and South were committed to a governmental partnership construction.

"The challenge at all levels of concern a few months must be on the decision-making Washington," he said. "The success or failure of the corridor rests on the continued interest and action such as you."

Spooks Spook Council

It's not that the City Council is superstitious at all. They just don't like the idea of real old hags out roaming the streets, influencing the younger monsters of this fair city.

So when the sun goes down Oct. 31, the law may be on the lookout for warlocks, Franksteins, witches and other sundry monsters of the night over the age of 14 or 15.

Apparently city councilmen are worried about the vandalism that always seems to accompany Halloween, and have asked if there's a possibility that an ordinance can be drawn up limiting the age, 13-years-old, of the tricksters or trespassers, depending on how fortunate you are.

In addition, councilmen have asked if it's possible to impose a curfew on the night's festivities.

In another move, Councilman Robert Callis asked about new ordinances that would stem the problem of young people wandering on the resort strip and becoming nuisances to visitors.

Callis said the young people know the law, and when they're told to move on by police, they take two steps and stop, since according to the law they've moved on.

He said that several times during the past summer season he's seen young people on the sidewalks in such numbers that the visitors have taken to the streets.

Callis asked what the possibilities were of drawing up an ordinance setting up another curfew, this one to be effective year 'round.

City Manager Roger M. Scott said he had received copies of several ordinances in effect in Carmel, Calif., and said they might be used in a study to draw up new ordinances pertaining to the city's youth problem.

Coed Gets Play Part

Darcy Ann Morrison, a Longwood College freshman from Virginia Beach, will take part in a two-act comedy scheduled for a three-day run at the college, beginning Thursday, Oct. 22.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Morrison of Byrne Brice Drive, Darcy is an art major working towards the bachelor of arts degree. She is a 1970 graduate of Kempsville High School.

Notice the beds of chrysanthemums planted on City property in various areas. The flowers were slow in coming into full bloom because of the recent drought, but they are now reaching their peak. The chrysanthemums at the City Hall complex are particularly handsome and lend bright patches of color to the wellkept grounds.

Notice the two triangular beds on Atlantic Avenue near the entrance to the Cavalier. The chrysanthemum plants were new this year and made a slow start because of the dry weather. They are just coming into bloom and are almost hidden by the healthy Santolima that edges the beds. In another year, however, they will develop earlier in the season and will present a colorful picture.

As you drive through our city you will see flower beds in various places. The Department of Streets and Highways has a very small crew to take care of these modest plantings. They manage to give us a touch of beauty with very little expenditure. Just think how much could be accomplished if more funds for planting and maintenance were available in the future.

Pony Express Needed

A citation for good work is always welcome...even when it's nearly four years late in arriving.

Mrs. T. Lewis Johnson of Oriole Drive was more than a bit surprised Saturday when she received a printed citation from The Christian Children's Fund in Richmond.

The document commended the Ladies Bible Class of First Presbyterian Church for their continuing sponsorship of the fund. It was signed February 14, 1967.

"I thought they must have a very lax office force to let a citation sit around for nearly four years," Mrs. Johnson said.

Then she noticed the postmark. It was mailed in Richmond February 1967.

Now where that citation has been for three years and eight months remains to be seen. Postal authorities didn't know.

Mrs. Johnson was hard-pressed to explain to the Fund officials in Richmond why the Ladies Bible Class had never acknowledged their honor.

"I wrote them Monday morning and told them there had been a slight delay," she laughed.

'Motivation' Changed His Life

Ken Newland comes on strong. He's young, graying and wears a Madison Avenue cut suit. He shakes your hand like he means it, smiles almost constantly and talks a blue streak. He is enthusiastic personified.

"You might say I'm fired up. I'm certainly fired up over what I've found and I can't wait to let other people in on it."

What Newland has "found" is motivation...family and home, physical, social, mental, financial and spiritual, motivation. At least that's the way he explains it. If it weren't for his conviction that this is the best thing that could possibly have happened to him, it might sound like so much double-talk.

But he's convinced that Success Motivation gave him a new lease on life and his enthusiasm is infectious.

This big change in Ken Newland's life started two years ago. He was a salesman with Zerox Company in Fort Worth,

Newland

Tex. He had a good job, plenty of responsibility, a home, a wife and family. For a 31-year-old he had it made.

But he was empty, discontented and bored to death with his work.

"I'm from Wilmington, N.C. and I decided I wanted to come back to the coast," he said. "I've always raced sailboats and I wanted to give up that suburban life and get back where I could sail again."

Newland was floundering. He didn't want to stay where he was but was afraid to let go of security.

Then along came Success Motivation, sort of self-improvement 15-week course. It's designed to reprogram a person's negative thinking.

"We are what we think," said Newland. "We can do anything in life we want to if we think positive about it and set goals for it."

Newland was so impressed with the course that he sold his home, moved his family to Virginia Beach and established Ken Newland and Associates for the purpose of carrying this message to other ambitious people.

The course is for companies as well as individuals, he explained. "Most companies use either fear or financial motivation. This new attitude motivation changes a person inside and out to make him more compatible with the company's goals."

Goals is apparently a key word with Newland: "Goals with no action is dreaming; action with no goals is confusion. Find a company or an individual with goals and an action plan and you'll find a success."

And that's what it's all about. Newland had to shake a lot of habits, or as he says "hang-ups", to get into this new career. He was educated in a military college and spent eight years in the Navy so logic was a basic part of his life. "And this really wasn't logical," he said. "There were 3,000 reasons why I shouldn't get involved in this thing and very few reasons why I should."

But he took the gamble and only time will tell whether or not motivation is of much concern to Virginia businessmen. He arrived here last Friday and set up residence in King's Grant at 3209 Queensberry Drive. Now, his next move is to follow through with that goal...find a sailboat to race.

Norman To Leave City Post Dec. 1

David L. Norman, assistant city manager of Virginia Beach for 28 months, has accepted a position as City Manager in Lynchburg effective December 1.

Norman, 32, has been City Manager Roger M. Scott's chief assistant, arriving shortly after Scott assumed his new position that year.

He has been chiefly responsible for the administrative reorganization and streamlining of the city's government, a fire protection study, and has worked on a code of ethics for city employees.

Presently, Norman is working on an automobile use study which will effect pool use of city vehicles, a five-year capital improvements study, a study into the city's insurance plan, and computerization of the city real estate assessment system.

Norman was city manager for Norton, N.C. for two years and of Norton for three years prior to acceptance of his position here.

His appointment was made public at a special session of the Lynchburg City Council October 15.

Norman is a graduate of the Florida State University with a master's degree in public administration.

Aldridge Retires

George L. Aldridge has retired after 22 years as president of the post control firm of Aldridge & Chambers, Inc.

When Aldridge and Lee Chambers organized the business in 1948 they bought $34,17 worth of insecticide and equipment and started selling pest control service part time. They generated some $2,000 in business that first year. Last year their sales were in the 6-figure bracket.

Aldridge started in agricultural pest control when he was a youngster on his father's farm in Kenston, N.C. He furthered this field in 1942 in structural and household pest control in the Norfolk Naval Shipyard when he took over the position of foreman of the sanitation department.

He retired from the shipyard in 1959 and semi-retired from his own firm in 1968. He will now continue as a consultant.

William M. "Bill" Gilbert Jr., who purchased one-third of the firm's stock in 1966 and Chambers have purchased Aldridge's interest in the company.

The employees recently held a dinner party at the Pine Tree Inn in honor of Aldridge.

Auditors Meet

The Tidewater Chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditors will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Virginia Restaurant in Hampton.

Robert S. Sutton, partner Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, will be guest speaker. His topic will be "The CPA Evaluates the Internal Audit and His Relationship with the Internal Auditor."

Active in civic and industry affairs, Maguire is a member of the Norfolk Life Underwriters Association and a member and board member of the Norfolk General Agents and Managers Association. In March of this year he was selected "Boss of the Year" by the Virginia Beach Jaycees' community services.

He is married to the former Nancy Hughes of Arlington, Va., and the couple has two children.

Maguire Is Gen. Agent

John B. Maguire has been appointed general agent of the Norfolk agency of Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., according to R. Martin, president and chief executive officer of the company.

A native of Boston, Mass., the new general agent has been manager for the company's office in Norfolk since March, 1969. Previously he had been engaged in sales and management for the Massachusetts Mutual's Washington-Jones agency which he joined in 1959.

Maguire, a graduate of George Washington University and an Air Force veteran, has twice been a member of Mass Mutual's President's Club, limited to agents who have sold a minimum of $1 million of the company's individual life insurance in a one year period.

His outstanding production record has also qualified him for the company's Leaders Club five times. He is a Chartered Life Underwriter having attained this professional designation in 1967.

Talbot to Represent U.S.

Douglas W. Talbot, senior partner of Talbot and Associates, Engineers, Planners and Surveyors, based in Virginia Beach has been chosen by the American Society of Civil Engineers as one of six American Engineers to represent the United States at its first joint meeting with the Institute of Civil Engineers of Great Britain to be held in Bermuda on Oct. 26-29.

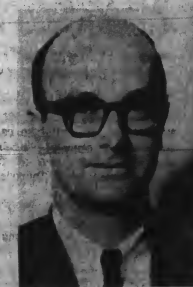

The topic of the joint meeting will be "The Engineer in the Community." Talbot will present a paper and sit on a panel to discuss "The Engineer's Place in the Political Scene" with Will Howe, a member of the Parliament. Talbot will discuss the role the engineer plays in appointed positions on commissions, boards, committees and as a member of the administration team in government, while Howe will discuss the elected role of the engineer in politics.

Talbot has addressed many national ASCE conferences on various engineering topics and has authored several technical journals, articles, and papers including a chapter in the Society's manual on Urban Planning. He has also served as Chairman of the Urban Planning and Development Division of ASCE, chaired its Committee on Municipal Engineering and several other committees.

Talbot has served in the municipal governments of Richmond, Va. as Assistant to the Chief Engineer; Independence, Mo. as City Engineer; and Hopewell, Va. as Director of Public Works before beginning a professional engineering firm in Virginia Beach.

Talbot, who is 35, lives in Alantown with his wife Dee, three daughters—Elizabeth 12, Marianne 11, Cynthia 7, and one son, Douglas, Jr. 4.

C&P Plans Open House

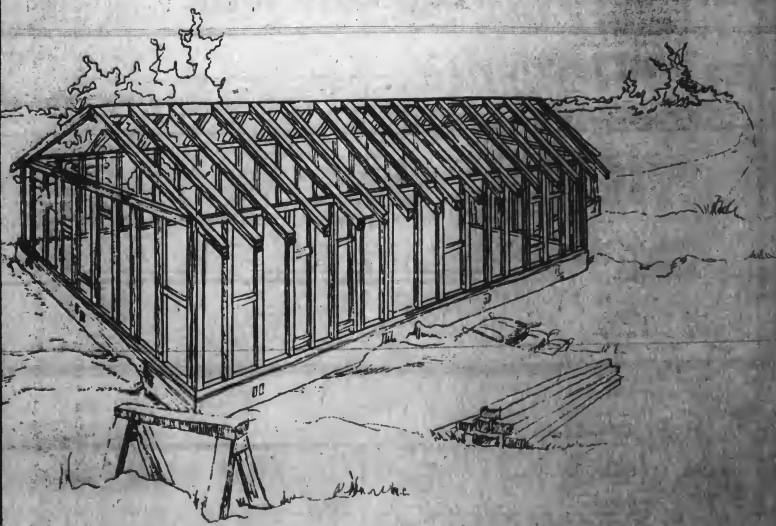

A number of interesting exhibits have been obtained for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company's open house today and Friday from 1 to 9 p.m.

There will be a trailer exhibit entitled "Progress Through Innovations" which will show the story of communications, telephone services for the handicapped and various demonstrations.

There will also be a laser demonstration, antique switchboard and other items of interest.

The new telephone offices are located at 280 Mustang Trail, across the highway from Chesapeake Colony.

Readers discuss park issue

To the Editor:
Reference question posed in this week's Sun concerning construction of elementary school on site in Seashore State Park.

Educationally, ecologically, environmentally, and let's face it, economically, what more logical setting could be found? Here, in nature's perfect setting, children, on the elementary school level, will be exposed to the many profound teachings of nature at work. In this day and age, when the ecology of our environment is upmost in our minds, these children, privileged to live in the area served by this proposed school, will learn the love and respect of nature from both an ecological standpoint and an environmental standpoint plus the interdependency of each on the other. They will glean a vast knowledge in the various features to be incorporated in this proposed school that will surely make them keenly aware of the world they live in, the air they breathe, the unique ecology of the very city in which they live!

To deny them this opportunity would, indeed, be very sad! Sincerely, Mrs. C. E. Hitchcock Jr.
President

To the Editor:
In the Sun Survey Column, issue of October 1970, a reader was asked to clarify his added comment to a question relative to election of members of the School Board and the Planning Commission.

Yes, City Council is presumed to be directly elected by the people, but this has not been so for the past Council and the one presently in office.

Perhaps one can live with the Council appointing (electing?) replacement of an incumbent who has died in office, if he must, perhaps due to a deliberately phrased charter, however, when the "law" is subject to an elected official being able to have a private "swearing in" prior to the effective date of the office being vacated, and then, for reasons beyond his control, he is not available to take such elected office at its moment of availability, it would appear questionable for this newly installed Council (or Commission) to appoint (elect?) a replacement of one who has never held office and a flouting of the desire of the electorate, even the man "elected" by the NEW Council (however well qualified otherwise) was chosen (as reported by the news media) primarily for not taking sides between members of his own party.

It is suggested that a Sun Survey be made as to whether the charter/laws be amended to require the election by the voters, to fill any vacant office. With further reference to the Sun Survey question as to election of members of the City Planning Commission and School Board, the past few days events bring this more forcibly to mind, where in the School Board asks for a "blank check" bond issue of 18.4 millions of dollars, and in effect, with the School Superintendent, is reported to imply that it is not necessary for the tax payers to know how they intend to spend this money and thus gained immediate approval by a compliant City Council, who having over-ridden the Planning Commission and the School Board Superintendent by approving zoning applications which make this bond issue request at least partially necessary.

To continue these inter-related subjects the City Council several months ago, in authorizing the City Manager to proceed with the re-appraisal of building structures (homes) said that the common ground by the recent land re-appraisal. When will this be done or is the present re-appraisal manager already reading the want ads?

Council is further reported as saying that the new bond issue will require an increase of 21 per cent in taxes. QUESTION: 21 per cent of what? (Before or after re-appraisal and at what tax rate per hundred?)

As one of many in this City, retired on a fixed income, faced with a possible tax increase of possible $100 or more, the phrase, "quality education", makes a sour taste in my mouth, particularly after paying an additional four per cent sales tax on food!

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell, Ph. D.

Freedom For The Few
Time was when this country could debate most of the important issues that faced us and the world. Our leaders, political, spiritual, scientific, industrial, creative, military, etc., could have the forum to express their side of the issues. The people could hear both sides and then take their time in making a decision as to which way the country should go. Those days of reason seem to be gone. Many of the forums are closed to all sides except the New Left and the super liberals. Where can the silent majority, the conservatives, the patriotic, and the older Americans go to have their views heard?

Most of the major press is closed to all but the "Elite Liberals." How many conservative commentators can you recall on T.V. lately? Can you even imagine a conservative being able to make a talk before a major University audience today? Have you read any real patriotic books or magazines recently?

With most of the forums open to them and closed to others, you would assume the New Left and super liberals would get right in and do a hard sell job to present the best case for their views possible. Such is not the case.

Some of the things our young people, and the egg heads who have been pumping their heads full of hogwash, are doing doesn't make much sense. In fact, many of their actions are down right hard to understand. For the life of me I can't understand what our country, and our society could have done to some of our young people, or the educators who push them on, that drives them to seek instant peace, instant solutions to all problems and love through the brutal tactics of violence, terror, destruction and disregard for law and social order.

The logic of solving anything or bringing about change by burning books, banks, buildings or flags escapes me. What can be gained in this country by desecrating our flag in public and flaunting the Vietnam flag is hard to see. Just how any cause can be served by shooting obscenities and insulting others is impossible for me to understand. It is hard for me to understand those who would use dissent to cover up disloyalty and then claim to be the exclusive patriots of our time.

What gives any group, no matter how large or small, the right to vent their hate against the ideas of others? It is one thing to disagree or even dislike but how can any group expect to let its prejudices run wild without repression? Can this new group of undisciplined young intellectual mid-gets seriously think the real Americans will quietly sit back and forever let them destroy everything in this country worth having without a fight?

How could one minority, no matter if it is black, white, red or what have you, believe it has the right to set up its own rules, laws or decide which of the existing ones it will defy? Could the New Left and its educator sponsors believe they can get away with stealing a whole nation just by having more gall than anyone else? How far can they think such a bluff will go? Hasn't it occurred to them what might happen when the real Americans decide they have had enough of this poppycock and decide to clean itself of such scum?

I don't understand how anyone with enough sense to come in out of the rain could seriously believe that you can cure our ills, and the country has more than a few feet now, by burning all the buildings down and destroying the whole system. What will replace what they destroy?

Not being one of the New Left, the elite liberals, the egg head educators or the very young either, I can't understand the way they think. I don't want to just lump all that bunch into one unpatriotic, communistic, stupid flock but it is hard not to.

Those people might know something I don't know. If they do, let them use the accepted forum and state their case. Let's get up and debate both sides, in an orderly fashion and let the public decide which way is best. It is time we all demanded some measure of rationality be restored to the process by which we decide issues.

Dear Editor:
It was with dismay and disbelief that I read your explanation of this week's Sun Survey. The important lesson at stake is the precedent set by dissipation of state land to a municipality for a public school and recreation area, especially since this construction would destroy our area which is ecologically unique, as well as historically important.

I leave in hand petitions signed individually by members of the Board of the Garden Club of Virginia and by the forty-four presidents of the member clubs. As Conservation Chairman for The Garden Club of Virginia I wish to protest the leasing of state land and the destruction of a beautiful natural area.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. Mayor F. Fogler
Conservation Chairman
The Garden Club of Virginia

To the Editor:
We are opposed to the Seashore State Park being used for any purpose other than a state park.

We do not believe it is a suitable place for a school. Very truly yours,
Mr. and Mrs. James L. Hatcher

Many voices make loud noise

Virginia Beach citizens are speaking out against pollution, are showing concern over this country's environmental crisis and are trying to preserve this city's ecological balance.

It is a healthy sign that Americans, private citizens, are banding together to try and bring some relief to the chaotic destruction of this country's natural resources. Future generations can be thankful for these concerned citizens, few though they might be compared to the mass of violators, for they will have taken the initial steps which, hopefully, will prevent civilization from polluting itself into oblivion.

Hundreds upon hundreds of these concerned citizens spoke out to this newspaper this week on the proposed school at North Virginia Beach which they fear will destroy the natural beauty of Seashore State Park as well as the natural protective dune barrier and will possibly pave the way for the State to lease other park property to municipalities rather than maintaining it for public enjoyment.

The opposition voiced on this issue extended far beyond the boundaries of North Virginia Beach. The citizenry of this city is concerned and it makes no difference whether or not they live on 87th Street or Kempsville or Pungo. They are all neighbors on this particular issue.

These people are not a few nature-conscious women trying to preserve the privacy offered by the park. They are not radical conservationists building a publicity-seeking crusade. If there has been anything learned during the dramatic response to this poll, it is that the citizens of Virginia Beach are deeply, and sincerely, concerned about the future of this city's great natural assets.

Their concern is not limited to the fifteen-acre site at Seashore State Park. They are equally concerned about the ecological imbalance which could possibly result from the massive dredging in the Lynnhaven River. They are concerned about the possible pollution of Lake Smith should townhouses be built in the area. They are concerned about many of today's issues effecting tomorrow's environment.

Officials last week ignored an invitation to tour the proposed school site. High-ranking officials from Washington took advantage of the tour but not one city representative was on hand. These residents deserve more attention than that. They are deeply concerned and are voicing their plea. And they have a right to be heard.

Last week's response was an experience

The Sun Survey question last week—"Do you think a school should be built on the donated 15 acres in Seashore State Park?"—apparently missed the boat. But it certainly didn't dampen the response. It was by far the largest response ever received on a question. The newspaper was deluged with questionnaires, telephone calls, letters and personal visits.

There were many petition-type submissions, with a number of names, and one school, Shelton Park Elementary School, polled its teaching staff. Some of the comments that accompanied the responses were quite interesting and are presented here to show how vehemently the readership feels about both sides of this issue:

The question, as posed, dealt with the school itself. The controversy, as several letters on this page explain, revolves around the State disposing of park property to a municipality. But regardless of the way the question was stated, the issue remained and when the smoke all cleared, the telephone almost rang and the office got quiet, the tally was 94 per cent against, 6 per cent in favor. Based on nearly 500 responses.

NO
Don't violate that land with anything!

"Don't destroy God's Beauty." "Lease the acreage of the Pendleton area." "Not on that particular tract."

"I don't think this is a wise move to get into the Seashore Park or encroach that close to a natural area."

"Parks are too precious to destroy any part of them." "Dunes take ages to rebuild" and "Doom to our natural dunes."

"The ecology is irreplaceable" and "The environment is too fragile to lose."

"The larger we keep our natural state parks, the smaller our jails must be."

YES
"Without a pool!" (The proposed school would include a pool.) "If there would be no clause in a contract whereby the government could set up a curriculum. The school should use natural resources of the park in developing a curriculum."

"If this is an acceptable location for a school and if the park authorities agree that adequate land will be left for the park."

"If the government does not retain any right of any kind when it 'gives' the land to the city. We need a school operated by

Poses a Question

To the Editor:
In the Sun Survey Column, issue of October 1970, a reader was asked to clarify his added comment to a question relative to election of members of the School Board and the Planning Commission.

Yes, City Council is presumed to be directly elected by the people, but this has not been so for the past Council and the one presently in office.

our school authorities, not by the Federal Government. It has enough restrictions on our schools already. So far as the location is concerned, I feel I am not in a position to judge how good it would be. Is it near enough to a heavily populated area to seem feasible, etc.? Yes, accept the land if there are no strings attached.

"Seems as though the school is merited. Can't think of other available land—especially gratis."

And so it went....

A reader has posed this week's question. It will be interesting to see if the citizens are as concerned about the selection of their councilmen as they are in the disposition of park property.

Virginia Voters Can 'Buy' All or Part of Revisions

NOTE: THIS IS THE THIRD IN A SERIES OF FOUR WEEKLY, INFORMATIONAL ARTICLES ON THE REVISED CONSTITUTION PROVIDED BY VIRGINIANS FOR THE CONSTITUTION.

Unlike Maryland and New York where voters were offered revised constitutions in one package, with no choice but to take it or leave it, Virginia's revised Constitution will be voted on in four separate proposals. The voters may choose any combination they like and still give the Commonwealth a workable Constitution.

On Nov. 3 Virginia voters will be able to indicate their choice on a ballot or voting machine which will list and describe each of the four proposals on the Constitution separately.

The first proposal deals with the main body of the revised Constitution. Although there are several substantive changes, most of the changes are in the nature of general housekeeping—deleting obsolete clauses like those on dueling and removing excessive and unnecessary detail. An example of the unnecessary detail is the Corporations Article in the present Constitution which includes such things as the office hours of the State Corporation Commission. This is much better left to statutory law.

Among the significant changes in the main body of the revised Constitution are annual sessions of the General Assembly, the authority for tax relief for homeowners over 65, a guarantee for the first time that the people of a locality can veto a regional government if they wish, a new conservation article, and an article on consumer protection for the first time.

Approval of the second proposal would remove the constitutional prohibition of lotteries. It would not itself permit lotteries, but would leave the decision up to the General Assembly.

The third proposal deals with general obligation bonds, which are backed by the full faith and credit of the Commonwealth. The present Constitution permits such bonds and limits them to a percentage of the assessed realty in the state. However, real estate taxes are reserved for localities, and thus the limit bears no relationship to the Commonwealth's ability to repay. The revised Constitution sets a limit based on a percentage of the state's income from retail sales tax and income tax revenues. Here there is a direct relationship to the Commonwealth's ability to repay the bonds.

These bonds could be issued only for capital outlay—college classrooms, mental health hospitals, etc.—not for operating expenses, and no bonds could be issued without the approval of the people in a referendum. The November 3 vote is not a bond issue vote. It simply sets up the machinery. A separate vote of the people would be required before any bonds could be issued. The revised Constitution also stipulates a sinking fund to pay the bonds off on a regular basis in a set time limit.

Virginia's Constitution was last revised in 1928 under Gov. Harry F. Byrd, Sr. At the time the general obligation bond limit was more than 16 percent of the 1970-72 budget.

The fourth and final proposal deals with revenue bonds, which are backed by the revenues produced by the project the bonds build. The present Constitution permits the issuance of revenue bonds after the approval by a majority of both houses of the General Assembly. This would not change under the revised Constitution.

What the fourth proposal would do, however, is permit the General Assembly, on two-thirds vote, to place the credit of the Commonwealth behind certain selected revenue bonds, such as those for college dormitories or park facilities, but not for bridge authority projects such as the Chesapeake Bay Bridge of highway authorities.

This would save the Commonwealth money in lower interest rates. First, however, the Governor would have to certify twice that the revenue from the project would be sufficient to pay off the bond. These bonds would be subject to the same overall limit as the general obligation bonds and to the same sinking fund repayment and time limit provisions.

Here, again, the bonds could only be used for capital outlay projects, and not for current operating expenses.

POLICE AT RALLY--Four members of Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge No. 8 joined other National F.O.P. officials in Washington, D.C., last week to urge legislation calling for stiff penalties for anyone wounding a police officer. Virginia Beach was represented by (left to right) officer S.B. Sciortino, dispatcher C.C. Rogers, Sgt. E.L. Jackson and officer W.H. Smith, Jr., as thousands of F.O.P. representatives gathered on the steps of the Capitol in the program.

Hey, Senator!

What about me? You know, since they lowered the voting age, I'll be eligible to vote in a short while. Well, what the heck, it's still not often that I get to see a real live Senator opening his campaign headquarters before my bedtime. It's a good thing you don't like to kiss babies, Senator Byrd. Besides, I'm not a baby anymore, I'm a grownup. Well, almost grown up.

Witness Places Woody Aboard Jones' Craft

Robert Lee Woody, charged with the murder of Samuel Willard Jones, was seen on Jones' 28-foot sailing trimaran on the day Jones was last seen alive, a witness said Friday in Municipal Court.

M. A. Martinette, Jr., during a preliminary hearing, identified Woody as the man he saw on the craft, September 4 as it passed his Inlet Road home moving towards Lynnhaven Inlet.

Woody, 32, and Fayette Tillman, Jr., 39, both of Norfolk, have been bound over to a Circuit Court grand jury on murder charges in connection with Jones' death.

The bodies of Jones, 52, and his 49 year old wife, Jane, bound together by a short length of boat anchor chain, were found floating in Chesapeake Bay a short distance off Little Creek on September 8.

Police arrested Woody for the murder of Jones at his Norfolk home that night. Tillman was also charged with Jones' murder when he surrendered to police the following day.

The Jones couple were last seen alive four days before their bodies were discovered when they reportedly took two prospective buyers for a trial run on their sailboat.

Officer L. H. Stevens, a member of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel police force, testified that about 2 a.m. September 5, two men crawled onto the bridge-tunnel from rocks of the span's third island wearing life jackets and carrying a suitcase. Stevens said the men told him a small sailboat they had just purchased had crashed onto the island rocks and asked him to drive them to the South Plaza of the bridge-tunnel system.

Stevens identified Woody and Tillman as these men, saying he obtained their names from their drivers license.

Stevens said he left the men at the Plaza office, while they waited for a taxi which had been summoned for them, and returned to the third island. He looked around the area for signs of a boat but failed to see anything, he said.

Officials have said the wreckage of the Jones' trimaran was discovered about day break that same morning.

Mrs. Elsie Ireland, of Honey Grove Road in Aragona Village, testified that she and her husband, Ellis, found the bodies, floating partially submerged on September 8 as they were returning from a fishing trip along the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

The Jones' 19 year old son,

Sammuel W. Jones, Jr., identified photos of debris as being the wreckage of his father's sail boat. Young Jones also identified two life preservers, which officer Stevens said looked like the type worn by Woody and Tillman when they crawled onto the bridge-tunnel, as coming from his father's trimaran.

Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans in summarizing his prosecution evidence in the preliminary hearing pointed to the bodies of Jones and his wife being bound together by a length of boat chain, which came from their trimaran, when they were found by Mrs. Ireland; a report from the State Medical Examiners office which indicated the couple had been strangled to death, he with a short length of parachute cord, she with a boat pennant and two handkerchiefs; the testimony of Martinette saying he saw a negro man, whom he identified as Woody, walking on the deck of Jones sailboat while the vessel was being navigated by a white man; and the identification by Samuel Jones, Jr., of two life preservers identified as the type being worn by Woody and Tillman when found by bridge-tunnel police officer Stevens as coming from his parents sail boat.

Defense Attorney's W. Edward Hudgins, Jr., representing Woody and James A. Gorry, III, representing Tillman, moved for a dismissal of the charges on grounds that sufficient evidence had not been presented to show that the murder of Jones had occurred within the jurisdiction of the Virginia Beach police department and courts.

Judge P.B. White overruled the motion ruling that enough evidence had been presented to constitute probable cause in the charging of Woody and Tillman. He forwarded the case to a Circuit Court grand jury scheduled to meet tomorrow.

Woody and Tillman were remanded to custody of the City Jail in lieu of payment of bonds of $25,000 pending the outcome of further legal proceedings.

FELLOW VIRGINIANS. I NEED YOUR HELP

“My dear fellow Virginians. As you know, I am seeking re-election to the U. S. Senate as an independent candidate.

Here is why I chose that unprecedented and difficult path.

Last February 21, a small group obtained control of the Democratic State Central Committee and imposed a new oath on candidates running for the U. S. Senate.

That new oath would have required me to pledge my support to whomever the Democratic National Convention might choose as its nominee for President in 1972.

No one knows who the convention will select in 1972. No one knows what that man's principles or policies will be.

I could not sign such an oath, and I would not sign such an oath.

The only oath that I am willing to take is to the 4,600,000 fellow Virginians whom I represent.

I have seen too much blind political partisanship in the government and in Congress. I submit this kind of partisanship is one reason that our country is in such deep trouble today.

So it seemed logical to me that I should submit my record to all the people of Virginia as an independent.

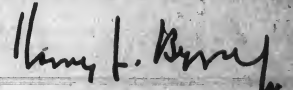

I realize full well that my course is a difficult and unprecedented one. But I welcome the opportunity to take my Senate record directly to all the people of Virginia.

I am independent in my position, but I am completely dependent on the people of Virginia themselves in my fight for re-election.

I need your help. Only with the help, support and activity of the individual citizen can we succeed on November 3rd.

If we—you and I—are successful on November 3rd, the people of Virginia will make American political history.”

Fire report recommendations call for many changes

By LES LEHIGH

Men of the Virginia Beach fire departments both paid and volunteer firemen, have expressed mixed emotions over the contents of a study for revising the report city's fire protection service.

Recommendations of the "Municipal Fire Protection Study", a 168-page report compiled for the city by the National Loss Control Service Corporation, were discussed briefly by firemen during Monday night's regular monthly meeting of the City's Fire Council.

It was the consensus of these men, many of whom had been interviewed last April by NATLSCO representatives during their on-scene inspection of the city's fire protection service, that while many of the recommendations contained within the report have already been requested by the Fire Council, and met with their approval, a number of other recommendations were questionable as to their true value to the resort city.

Floyd E. Waterfield, Jr., attending the Fire Council meeting in his capacity as chief of the Creeds Volunteer Fire Department but who is also Pungo City Councilman, told the group that it was the general attitude among the councilmen that the city should delay final action in any revisions of the city's present firemen of the various departments have had the opportunity to review the recommendations and express their feelings.

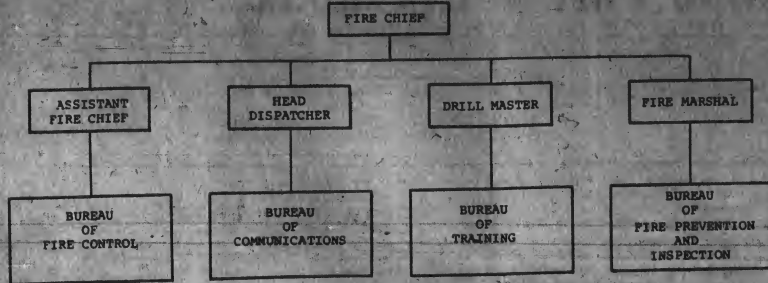

Members of the Fire Council agreed that each department would make an extensive study of the "Fire Protection Study" recommendations and express their feelings during next month's regularly scheduled Fire Council meeting. At this time the Fire Council would appoint a committee to represent the firemen of the City and present their recommendations regarding proposals outlined in the "Fire Protection Study" to City Council.

Although most of the recommendations in the study are of concern primarily to the firemen they should also be of concern to the residents of Virginia Beach.

The NATLSCO recommendations state "the organization of the fire service in Virginia Beach, consisting of one full paid fire department and thirteen volunteer fire companies, is no longer able to provide adequate fire protection throughout the City".

It further states that "while the response of volunteer fire fighters to fires during the evening and on weekends is excellent, daytime response when volunteers are at their normal places of employment is extremely deficient in many parts of the city. A great need exists for full paid firefighters in five of the volunteer stations during these hours of poor response . . . Oceana, Plaza, Chesapeake Beach, Kempsville and Courthouse."

The value of volunteer firemen is noted, however, in the statement "volunteer fire fighters should be converted to paid-on-call fire fighters and reimbursed by the city for their services."

Perhaps one of the most far-reaching proposals contained in the study is the recommendation that "a need exists for a single overall Fire Chief in Virginia Beach. To provide competent professional command at all structural fires, a number of lower echelon chiefs, as well as volunteer chiefs, are needed."

In line with this proposal the study calls for a creation of "a unified fire department for the entire City, organized as a separate city agency at the divisional level in accord with the 'Proposed Plan of Organization for the City Government, dated October 1969'. This new agency should be titled the Division of Fire Protection and be headed by a Fire Chief reporting directly to the city manager. All existing fire companies, both paid and volunteer, are to be a part of the Bureau of Fire Control within the Division of Fire Protection. Within the Division of Fire Protection, create three additional bureaus entitled the Bureau of Communications, Bureau of Training, and Bureau of Fire Prevention and Inspection."

Regarding the recommended Bureau of Communications it is further recommended to "streamline the organization of Radio Communications placing the department under supervision of the Fire Chief, as opposed to the City Manager, add additional dispatchers and improve dispatching procedures such as providing each fire fighter with a radio and standby battery powered pack."

In proposing creation of a Bureau of Training, the study also calls for appointing "a full time Drill Master to administer and conduct the training program, to develop a training manual, and maintain proper records to assure unified training of fire fighters in standardized fire fighting methods and teamwork between fire companies."

Another important revision contained in the study concerns the proposed creation of a Bureau of Fire Prevention and Inspection. This would entail creating "a new bureau of fire prevention and inspection within the Division of Fire Protection to replace the Office of Fire Inspector" as well as placing "this bureau 'under command of a fire marshal' and also 'assign to this bureau a deputy fire marshal and seven fire inspectors.' Creation of the new bureau would also call for transferring 'the functions of the arson investigators to the police department."

This proposed transfer has already been drawn comment from M.T. Holland, chief of the city's Fire Prevention Bureau where such operations are presently carried out.

Holland said that, although he thinks "it's a good report on the basis of contents, I don't think it should be accepted as a package." Holland added he is "greatly opposed to moving arson investigations into the police department. I feel this would be better established and more qualified if we had an arson squad set up under the Fire Marshalls Office." Holland said he did agree with recommendations regarding his office that "we're understaffed and need more men."

The study also states that "an immediate need exists for the construction of a number of new fire stations in the City and calls for the consolidation and/or closing of several existing stations."

This would involve the construction of five new fire stations within the City during the next four years. These proposals are outlined in the study as follows: "erect a temporary one-day station at Sandbridge, and form a new volunteer fire company (to be completed during 1971); construct a new three-bay station near Independence Boulevard and Donahoe Road, relocate men and equipment from present Thalia station and close Thalia (to be completed during 1971); construct a new three-bay station near Indian River Road and Providence Road, form new volunteer fire company to be completed during 1972; construct new three-bay station near Moxey Drive and Virginia Beach Boulevard, consolidate and close London Bridge, Oceana and Seaboard stations (to be completed during 1973); and construct a new three-bay station near Northampton Boulevard and Diamond Springs Road, consolidate and close Chesapeake Beach and Davis Corner stations."

The survey team which visited Virginia Beach in compiling the "Municipal Fire Protection Study" did not overlook the operation of the Rescue Squads operated in conjunction with various fire departments within the resort city.

Regarding these units the study recommended that "the rescue and ambulance service presently provided by many of the volunteer fire companies appears to be functioning well. Due to the specialized nature of this service and the high cost to the City which would result if the entire expense of these operations were to be assumed, no material changes are recommended at this time. These services should continue to be financed largely through public subscriptions and contributions and manned by members of the volunteer fire companies."

All persons associated with the study are quick to point out that these recommendations are proposals for improving the city's fire protection service and that a full evaluation of their findings must be made from the standpoint of feasibility and practicality for the City of Virginia Beach before they are adopted in part or in whole.

Gassing 'error in judgement'

Police Chief Co. W.W. Davis, following a lengthy investigation into circumstances surrounding the use of tear gas by Auxiliary Police Sgt. C.L. Colvard to disperse a crowd at a high school football game, states Colvard "erred in judgement" but that "other persons involved are not totally without blame."

The incident occurred at Cox Stadium October 9, near the end of the game between Cox and First Colonial high schools when, according to Chief Davis' investigation Colvard was summoned by a spectator to remove a group of about 15 people from stadium stands following complaints of their interfering with the opposing teams cheering section.

Davis said his investigation, which included meeting with the 134-man Auxiliary Police unit commanded by Aux. Chief W.T. McFarland, showed that the incident was preceded by "fights, a smoke bomb explosion, and evidence of roaming groups of students which contributed to a general feeling of discontent and uneasiness among many of the spectators."

The investigation showed that when Colvard requested the group to return to their teams' stand "the group left the stands and, in passing behind the north end-zone and a rope barrier, hesitated and began chanting. When Sgt. Colvard instructed them to continue moving, they moved very slowly, continuing chanting, waving their arms and making gestures. Sgt. Colvard misinterpreted these gestures as a threat to his personal safety and, in what we consider was a brief moment of misjudgment, sprayed the apparent leader of the group with a liquid tear gas from an aerosol canister similar to that used by the regular police, the vapors of which affected the group as a whole."

"The effects of the tear gas lasted approximately 7 minutes and resulted in no permanent injury or damage."

"In considering the entire incident, it is felt that Sgt. Colvard, having served his community without compensation for a period of three years, with no prior complaints, merely committed an error in judgement. It should not be overlooked that the other persons involved are not totally without blame. Their conduct was not commendable nor considerable of other spectators or lawful authority."

"These factors are frequently not considered by a great many people in incidents of this nature, whereas acts of a law enforcement officer, under stress of the moment, are closely scrutinized."

"It is the opinion of this office that Sgt. Colvard recognizes his error and should be allowed to continue his service to the community, with this reprimand being placed in his file."

Members of the Auxiliary Police unit not only give of their time to serving the community as an important aid to the City's regular police officers without compensation, but are required to pay for their own equipment necessary in performing their duty with the city paying cost of their shirts and trousers, badges, and hat shields.

4 Caught 1 Sought

Four suspects have been apprehended and another is being sought in connection with two armed robberies early yesterday.

Police Det. Sgt. E. F. Busby said two adults and two juveniles were apprehended in connection with the armed robbery of the Waystate Motel in the 400 block of S. Military Highway, in which $71 was reportedly taken from the night clerk at gun point, within an hour after commission of the crime.

The adult suspects were identified as Gary W. Smith, 21 of Providence Road, and Donald E. Keller, 19 of Chesapeake.

A search continues for a suspect in the armed robbery of John F. Forbes, 80, of Norfolk. Officials quote Forbes with saying he picked up a fare in his taxi in Norfolk and was directed to a location in the 200 block of Grayson Road, Virginia Beach. Arriving at the destination, according to police investigators, his male fare held a shotgun on Forbes and demanded he hand over his cash receipts. The bandit reportedly fled with $13.

Kingan Is Honor Grad

Airman Robert C. Kingan, son of Mrs. Margaret L. Hunter of Virginia Ave. has graduated with honors at Keesler AFB, Miss., from the technical training course for U.S. Air Force air traffic controllers.

Airman Kingan, who was trained in airport traffic control, is being assigned to Bergstrom AFB, Tex. He will serve with a unit of the Air Force Communications Service which provides global communications and air traffic control for the USAF.

The airman, a 1968 graduate of First Colonial High School, attended Old Dominion University, Norfolk, Va. His father, retired U.S. Navy Senior Chief Petty Officer William C. Kingan, resides in Brockton, Mass.

Car May Provide Answers

Virginia Beach police have reported the locating of the car belonging to Ralph W. Young of the Eastern Shore, whose body was found Sept. 10 in a drainage ditch in Accretale.

Det. W. D. Haden, II, investigating Young's death along with Det. Sgt. M. Zello, indicated Young's 1969 Buick Electra hardtop was found Saturday morning in a water filled quarry at Inverness, Fla.

The auto was discovered by three young men while scuba diving in waters of the quarry. Officials at Inverness have raised the car and impounded it for Virginia Beach police. Haden, along with Sgt. C. E. Carlson, Sr., of the Virginia Beach police Identification Division, and State Police Investigator J. T. Oliver left for Inverness Tuesday morning for processing of the car for any clues which lead to the identity of those responsible for Young's death.

Haden and Zello have said before that the auto could play an important role in their investigation of Young's death.

Young, 51, described as a travelling salesman, earlier was reportedly last seen alive on Sept. 5 leaving his Northampton County home at Cape Charles.

An autopsy report from the State Medical Examiner's Office indicated Young's body had been in the ditch where it was found three to six days before it was discovered. The report also said that he died of multiple stab wounds of the chest and neck, and that he had been beaten over the head with a blunt instrument.

NEW SUIT--Det. J.G. Malesky models "utility suit" being purchased for members of the Virginia Beach police department for use when working on assignments requiring concealment in wooded, or similar, regions. The suit is designed not only to protect them from the elements but to make them readily recognizable as police officers by others who might become involved in the operation.

An investigation has been launched into the cause of the fire, which has been classified as being of a suspicious nature in origin, that severely damaged this structure last Saturday afternoon. The building in the 4900 block of Virginia Beach Blvd, formerly housed "Gibson's Hamburger Stand". Volunteers from the Davis Corner and Thalia Fire Departments devoted three hours to extinguishing the flames.

District looks at EIP

The Tidewater District, Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs, voted Tuesday to take care of its own first before sending any more World Gardening funds overseas.

The District will send a recommendation to the state federation that World Gardening funds be allocated for American Indians, whom the women feel, are as much in need of help as people overseas. World Gardening projects in the past have included sending seeds and agricultural tools to underdeveloped countries.

J. C. Garrett, landscape improvement specialist at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, explained the new Environmental Improvement Program established by Sears, Roebuck and Co., who already sponsor the HANDS (Home and Neighborhood Development Sponsors) contest for garden clubs, and the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc.

Garrett warned the women to move slowly in selecting and planning projects.

"Things didn't get this way overnight. Minority groups have been talking about conservation for years."

Of the new program, he commented, "I hope it extends beyond those things we're so used to seeing. Sometimes people lose their sense of balance—they work for the money rather than improvement." Virginia has an allocation of $1,500 in prize money of a total of $42,000 which will be divided among 49 states and the District of Columbia.

"Projects," said Garrett, "should not be limited just to plantings. Certain areas need to be preserved. There's a need for people to become aware of what is taking place in local and state governments. Appear before a government body. Go well prepared. Don't go as an agitation group but as a constructive group. There's a big difference."

He added that in weighing possible projects, the clubs should ask themselves how many will profit by it and how many will enjoy it.

"Cooperation, not coordination," warned Garrett, "Little words make a big difference. No group wants to be coordinated by another. We've almost forgotten how to cooperate. Any project of any scope is usually three years to get underway. "It's easy to get into the trend of going it alone. There are very few projects small enough for one group to accomplish anything."

Garrett also advised that clubs consider the maintenance of any project they undertake before starting it. "It's foolish for any lay group to undertake a project and agree to maintain it. If it's a public project and the government won't agree to match funds and maintain it, then look hard at it before undertaking it."

Garrett defined "environment" as "everything around us including people."

Divisions in the EIP include: Air and water pollution, landscape design, anti-litter, civic beautification, historic preservation, conservation, horticulture, roadside development and the other related activities.

In other action, the District welcomed two new Virginia Beach member clubs—Broad Bay Garden Club and Princess Anne Plaza Garden Club.

District representatives also voted to endorse Mrs. Frank Tonkin of Portsmouth for the office of historian of the Virginia Federation.

Follies beneficiary

Class fills educational gap

By EM DAVIS

For two decades the Virginia Beach Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club has presented the Virginia Beach Follies to raise money for community improvement projects such as the Virginia Beach Library and Camp Civitan. The current major project has united its membership in a feeling of concern for retarded children.

Two years ago the club learned that there wasn't a facility for these children in our area, and they had to travel to Norfolk to take advantage of classes offered by the Tidewater Association for Retarded Children often spending three hours a day on a bus going to and from school.

Through the efforts of the Virginia Beach Juniors, and in particular Mrs. Betty Lloyd Gallup, a kindergarten class was started at Galilee Episcopal Church in September 1968. A competent teacher, Mrs. Jane Garrison, was hired, and people throughout the Beach offered their services, money, and talents to make the class a success.

Other organizations send donations and training aids for the class. Women volunteered their time to assist the teacher in the classroom. A dancing instructor offered her services one day a week, as did an artist, a swimming instructor, and a speech therapist.

In January of 1970 TARC assumed the financial responsibility of the class, thus enabling the Virginia Beach Juniors to make plans for a second class. Wycliffe Presbyterian Church opened its doors to the second class, and one of its own members, Mrs. Anne Jackson, offered to teach the class. Work started immediately installing a fence and playground equipment, making teaching aids and ordering supplies. In September the second class was in operation.

As the club members receive reports on the success of the classes, they are elated and more determined in their efforts in behalf of these children. As they prepare for the 1970 Follies, Beach Playmates, they are endeavoring to make it the most successful fund raising project ever.

Follies dates are Nov. 20 and 21 at the Civic Center.

Mrs. D.W. Fauber and Buck Wright look over some of his preserves.

Buck's preserves gain renown

"My wife won't even come in the kitchen," says Buck Wright. "She says it's my job."

His "job" consists of cooking and canning preserves for the Virginia Beach United Methodist Church bazaar each year. His reputation has grown along with the demand for his preserves.

"I love to cook," claims Wright. "I cook breakfast almost every morning. I was raised on a farm in South Carolina and helped around the kitchen."

"She doesn't like to make preserves," he added about his wife.

Wright, who has been making preserves for the bazaar five or six years now, is retired after 47 years with Railway Express. However, he is now working parttime at Simmons Photocentric. He also says he enjoys girl watching in the summer. "I stay on the beach a lot."

Wright is also treasurer of the church and enjoys working around the church.

"I try to keep busy at something," he said. "I have a lot of friends."

Keeping busy is something he's always done too. He recalls taking apart a grandfather clock as a boy in Winsboro, S. C., because "he wanted to see what was inside."

Wright claims that his preserve recipe is easy—"sugar, pears and a little patience," in addition to pear preserves, he will also have damson and fig for sale at the church bazaar on Nov. 4.

The bazaar will open at 10 a.m. at the church, 207 18th Street, and will stay open through lunch and dinner (both will be served at the church) and conclude with an auction after supper.

Booths will include gifts, Christmas, Country Store, White Elephant, Kitchen Korner and Toys.

Mini flower school is Wed.

A mini-flower show school will be sponsored by the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs Inc. next Wednesday, Oct. 28, with an emphasis on interclub judging and exhibiting.

The school, which will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Thalia United Methodist Church, will be taught by Accredited Flower Show Judges. Mrs. Wayne I. Grunden will speak on "Exhibiting Artistic Designs," Mrs. David Stormont Sr. on "Judging Floral Designs," Mrs. George Hamilton, "Exhibiting and Judging Horticulture," and Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, "Procedures and Ethics for Interclub Judging."

Cost of the day is $1. Participants are asked to bring a sandwich, dessert and beverages will be provided.

Pound for pound girls are dirtier

For years I have smiled smugly as I watched Boy Scouts return from camping trips with their loads of dirty clothes and bedding for their waiting mothers to wash. Now I know how the other half lives.

Only it was a Girl Scout instead of a Boy Scout. If anyone would like to argue the point, I would be willing to bet that pound for pound in accumulated dirt, the Girl Scouts would come out dirtier.

My Scout missed the first day and night of the three-day trip, so I have the results of only two days and one night to judge from. I washed what I thought were her green corduroy pants and they turned out to be gold. Incidentally, I wouldn't even put her clothes in the washer with the rest of the family's. Her towel and wash cloth I washed and bleached twice, but I still couldn't convince myself that they were clean.

She almost missed the trip; I should have quit while I was ahead. She stayed home from school the Friday they were to leave with flu. However, she was in shape Saturday to join the others, so I drove her to the campsite.

The amount of "gear" she needed was incredible. We borrowed a sleeping bag and found a large plastic bag to stow everything in. She had to have dishes. She also "volunteered" my 12-quart soup pot. She needed a knife (at least we had one left over from Brownies), a compass (which I don't think she ever took out of the box), a dunk bag, which all the stores were out of. Finally her father found one in downtown Norfolk. He said later if he had known what it was he'd have made it for her himself. She had to have a flashlight, a raincoat and a robe (last year's was outgrown).

What she forgot, though, and remembered half way out there were her camera and Scout handbook. I refused to turn around.

Finding the campsite was a major problem. The guard at the gate at Dawn Neck said to look behind the rifle range. What he didn't mention was that there is a rifle range and a rifle club range. I didn't think too much about looking behind the club range because they were shooting. The club is a likely spot. And I couldn't find the house. I went back to the gate and found out it was in the residential area where I had been turning around each time.

Anyway, when the Scouts returned Sunday, one of the mothers asked the leader what kind of time they had. Her answer was, "Just look at me." I was a little surprised. "I'll say one thing. It was different."

Puppet show pays back library

Frances and Gene Reiber began making puppets some 10 years ago as a project for their oldest son's birthday.

They will present "Hanzel and Gretel" as a special Halloween performance for children at Windsor Woods Library at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 31.

"Our children like the library, and we wanted to do something for it," said Mrs. Reiber, herself a former children's librarian.

Her husband is in the Navy and they have been in the area "off and on for nine years."

Their hobby "has grown to about 30 puppets now. "When you do a new show you usually have to make a new character." Some of the hand puppets were made by them and some were purchased.

The shows are presented in a red wooden theatre the Reibers built themselves. They have a repertoire "includes about 10 plays. "They're done in a simple way," said Mrs. Reiber, sort of a cottage craft. "She said her two older boys are "interested in staging and building bigger and better theatres."

The Reibers have five children, 17, 14, 9, 4, and there are seven library cards in the family.

All children in the Windsor Woods Library area are invited to see the show to get in the Halloween mood.

FLOWER GIRLS UNIMPORTANT?

Who says? And certainly not unimportant are they when they understand the significance of a wedding and are as excited as Patricia Davis when she prepared for the all important occasion as Flower Girl in her sister, Dianna's wedding to Quinton Jones.

Patricia was so excited she could hardly wait for the big day to approach, says she found it hard to sleep and compared the event with Christmas.

She wore a lovely white gown with a voluminous hoop skirt, looked like a living doll and almost took the spotlight away from the bride.

She was so intent on carrying out her part to perfection she went a step farther. She listened attentively when the best man and maid of honor were briefed the night of the rehearsal regarding the respective wedding rings and on the day of the wedding, just before she preceded the bride down the aisle, she turned and handed Dianna a "gold" wedding band which she had taken off her very largest doll!

She wanted to make sure her sister didn't get to the altar and not have a ring! We can certainly understand why Dianna says she will keep that ring forever and also understand the unrestrained tears flowing down her cheeks as she walked down the aisle.

WHERE'S GRANDMA?

Grandmother was dressed in her lovely costume, excited because this was the wedding of her first grandchild but calmly sitting on the couch waiting for the limousine to arrive for the bride.

When it arrived, everyone rushed for their respective vehicles with bride and father in the limousine. They were extremely happy that they arrived at the church with time enough for ushering in the grandmother and mothers so the processional could be exactly on time. Naturally, grandmother was first, but where was she? Oh my gosh, we forgot Grandma!

We understand the speed limit was exceeded more than just a little but there stood Grandma on the steps in front of the home patiently waiting for someone to come back for her. She didn't appear unduly distressed (maybe it was positive thinking) and she was unshaken down the aisle in style and enjoyed every minute of the ceremony - which wasn't too late getting started.

THE BRIDE CUTS THE CAKE

Many people have been asking us why they never got to see the wedding cake at some reception; that by the time they got through the receiving line to take a look at the cake it had been massacred! We will explain and hope that all brides will take a word of advice.

There is a wedding cake at every reception. When it is TIME for dessert, the bride and groom cut the first slice together and eat a bite. The remainder of the cake is then cut and served by a waiter of a friend.

It is entirely up to the bride and groom as to WHEN they will cut the cake. If your photographer insists that you cut the cake before the receiving line is formed just remind him that he has been retained for your wedding and reception to take appropriate pictures as the events occur and you would prefer not to do things out of sequence.

Always take into consideration that your guests are at your reception to celebrate your marriage and everyone delights in watching "the bride cut the cake."

Daughter born

When you're not like yourself, Lydia Pinkham understands

All of a sudden you might feel you're ch. ging-not a good feeling. You're tired, edgy, out of sorts and that's not you. Lydia Pinkham understands.

A long time ago, when ladies couldn't be as frank as we can today, Lydia Pinkham recognized the problem and set about finding a remedy. She knew it was not natural for women to have to suffer with what was obviously a natural process.

So she turned to nature for a remedy. She developed a marvelous compound of medicinal roots and herbs that turned the trick for the women she knew. Because it is a natural answer to your natural problems, it can turn the trick for you, too. Try Lydia Pinkham's root and herb remedy to help you feel better, more like yourself.

Black magic adds to recipe

To taste the fascinating cuisine of Brazil is to taste a luscious mixture of culinary contributions: primitive Indian, Portuguese and, in the colorful region of Bahia, West African.

In a curious way, the West African religions, that came to Brazil had a strong effect on the country's cooking. Although most of the slaves became nominal Christians, many continued to follow their older religions. One of the most important ceremonies was the preparation on ritual meals to feed their gods. This was an amiable kind of sacrifice since most of the food went to feed the faithful after the gods had eaten, but the cooks had to be priestesses who approached their tasks with meticulous piety. Everything had to be perfectly prepared or the gods might be displeased.

Macumba is the name of the black magic cult in Bahia that continues this tradition. From Bahia comes Crema de Abacate, a dessert that's both light and rich. Served with cups of dark mellow Brazilian Coffee, it climaxes a dinner in a manner fit for the gods.

Brutal defeat ruins Bayside's chances at district contest

For the first half of Friday's game with Maury, Bayside clung to their dreams of an upset over the state's number one football power. But the Marlins were injected into reality in the second half and not only watched their upset plans fade, but also their unbeaten record.

Down at the half by only 20-13, Bayside fell victim to a brutal running and passing attack by the Commodores in the second half and finally ended up on the short end of a 42-13 reading.

More than 6,000 fans sat in the 50-degree weather and 25 mph winds while Maury accumulated 458 yards en route to the fifth Commodore victory of the year. They used the pass and the run with equal precision, scoring all but one touchdown from more than 30 yards out.

Bayside's only breakthroughs of the evening came on three- and eight-yard jumps by Lloyd Bohn. The Marlins, undaunted by the Commodore's top billing, scored on their first possession of the game, covering 60 yards in 11 plays.

Despite the lopsided score, the Eastern District contest was still within reach of the surprising Marlins until the fourth quarter when Maury latched another 16 points on the scoreboard.

Bayside's loss left Virginia Beach without an undefeated high school team and paved the way for what well might be an undefeated season for the Commodores.

In other Beach grid action Friday, Princess Anne slashed winless Kellam 24-0 and Kempville suppressed Cox 26-20.

The Cavaliers' Jerry McGrath scored two touchdowns en route to a 150-yard night. The Princess Anne defense ensured a shutout late in the final period when they stopped the Knights on the Cavalier five-yard line.

PA scored 12 points in each half for the homecoming victory—their fourth win of the season. The Cavaliers ran for 200 yards and quarterback Al Strange added another 210 yards on 10 passes.

Fine defensive work by Joe Pulley set up a third-down scoring situation for Princess Anne. After Pulley's interception, the Cavaliers were in Kellam's end zone in five plays.

At Cox Stadium in a game of the also-rans, Kempville added its second victory of the season courtesy the still-winless Falcons. The game was a milestone for Cox, however, marking their first three touchdowns game this year.

The Falcons went into the fourth quarter with a slim 14-13 edge on runs by Buddy Byrd. But the Chiefs latched on a 13-point final quarter to subdue the Falcons.

Kempville's Julius Hurdle ran for 111 yards and three touchdowns and was Coach Tracy Moon's leading palmer. Danny Weinbrecht accounted for 105 yards in 17 tries for Cox. Byrd picked up another 91 yards for the Falcons.

Squires Peninsula Opener Is Tonight

The first of what figures to be many heated battles with arch border rival, Carolina, takes place tonight at plush Hampton Roads Coliseum when the Virginia Squires meet the Cougars at 8 o'clock.

It will be the regional Squires' Midkiff on the Peninsula and many pre-game festivities are planned, including the Lady Mayor of Hampton tossing up the first ball, bands and pretty cheerleaders.

At halftime, one lucky fan will be picked from the stands to shoot at the baskets from seats on the floor. Winners will come away with big prizes.

Squires' Moe

After their Hampton opener, the Squires will close out their initial week of the 1970-71 season by hosting the new Memphis Frogs back in Norfolk at Old Dominion University gym at 8 p.m., Saturday.

The Squires and Cougars are hardly strangers even at this early stage of the infant season. The two teams met four times in pre-season games, each club winning a pair.

The four were all hard fought with the Squires getting the first laugh, winning by 30 big points in their opening head-knocker in Salem, Va. After that, the Cougars got sweet revenge, winning the next two, but the Squires also got the last laugh, winning the big finale, 129-114, at Miami Beach.

The Squires have jumped out to a fine start to date. They won their first two games, defeating Pittsburgh at home, 139-116, and the Nets at New York, 103-88. They played Kentucky at Louisville, Wednesday night.

Charlie Scott, the Squires' prize rookie from North Carolina, has been outstanding. In his first two starts, Scott hit 29 points each night, and did it effortlessly. In fact, Scott played but 17 minutes against Pittsburgh. Squires' coach Al Bianchi quipped later, "I played the best 'D' on Charlie all night. I kept him on the bench."

Other Squires' starters besides Charlie Scott figure to be Doug Moe at a corner spot, George Carter at forward, Larry Brown at guard and 6-11 "Jumbo" Jim Eakins at center. Eakins and Carter, both veterans, have played very well in the early going.

Neil Johnson, the four-year NBA veteran, has been a pleasant surprise for Bianchi. "We got Neil basically for a strong rebounder and good defense play, but he's scored a few points in the first two games." (He zipped in 19 in the opener and added 16 more against the Nets). "This is like icing on the cake," added Bianchi.

There are plenty of good seats on sale now at the Hampton Roads Coliseum for tonight's second opener. Seats there are $6, $5.50, $4.50 and $3. Military personnel and children under 12 can get a dollar off on all seats.

EVERYBODY LOVES A WINNER--Cathy Merritt got congratulations from everyone Friday night after being named Homecoming Queen at Princess Anne High School. The presentation of high school royalty came during the halftime of the PA-Kellam football game.

Squires get first choice third time

The Virginia Squires pulled off an unheard of move in professional sports today when club president, Earl M. Foreman announced that the Squires have received another first round draft choice for next season.

The first round college draft pick, the third for the Squires for next spring, was acquired in the recent Rick Barry trade.

The Squires sent the high-scoring Barry to the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association this past September. In return, the Virginia team will receive the Nets' No. 1 draft choice for either 1971 or 1972.

The Squires already are assured of their own first round pick for 1971 and they also get Kentucky's first choice. That was made possible when the Squires traded Warren Armstrong to the Colonels after last season.

"This is really something unique in pro sports," happily declared Foreman. "Not only do we get our own first round pick but Kentucky's and New York's as well. And, more important, there is a tremendous crop of college talent coming."

Foreman disclosed that the Squires could take their pick of either taking New York's first round pick after this season or taking the following season's instead.

Career Planning Starts Early

"There's nothing like first-hand information," believes Miss Elisabeth Pedersen, guidance counselor at Plaza Junior High School who is also Career Week coordinator there. She said that parents, especially those moving into Virginia from other states, do not realize that the eighth grade is counted as part of high school and that students in the eighth and ninth grade must plan for their future in order to take the courses they need for college or a career.

Career Week will be kicked off Monday, Oct. 26 when School Supt. E. Brickell will speak to the students on "It's Your Future—Prepare for It."

On Thursday representatives from some 40 businesses and industries will visit the school and talk with students. The 40 were invited on the basis of a survey of career interests of students. Each student will visit three half hour sessions then either see a fourth or revisit one of special interest. This will be from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Following the sessions, the representatives will have a reception given in their honor in the cafeteria.

Tuesday and Wednesday there will be Career Week displays in the classrooms and Commons, and careers will be discussed.

Law May Postpone Referendum

Voting on the School Board's proposed $14.8 million school bond referendum may have to be delayed, Mayor Donald H. Rhodes told City Council Monday.

Rhodes said he had received information that the voting machines must remain locked for 30 days following an election. Since a general election will be held Nov. 3, the soonest the school bond vote could be held would be Dec. 4.

Rhodes said that Electoral Secretary John B. James said that it would not be possible to get the machines ready for the vote in December. He said a major problem was with the new residency requirement, which allows six-month residents to vote in the upcoming election.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell has said he would like to have a vote on the issue as soon as possible, but that he would need about 30 days to campaign for a positive vote prior to the balloting.

The bond issue is to be used to fund three new elementary schools, one high school and 14 new gymnasiums at existing schools, all to be built within the next three years. The date of the referendum, to be set by the senior Circuit Court judge, will probably not be before January, 1971.

Payments For Hogs Increased

Maximum Federal indemnity payments for grade sows and gilts have been raised from $50 to $100 per head for swine destroyed in connection with hog cholera eradication efforts.

The change in U. S. Department of Agriculture's indemnity regulations was announced locally by Dr. Grant E. Blake, Assistant Coordinator for the State-Federal Eradication Task Force headquartered in Suffolk.

Dr. Blake explained that the increased indemnity for grade sows and gilts will only be paid to swine producers whose hogs are destroyed subsequent to the effective date of Oct. 13, 1970.

Under Federal indemnity regulations, hogs destroyed because of cholera are appraised at their actual value for meat, feeding or breeding purposes.

Federal share of the indemnity is 50 percent of appraised value subject to certain maximum limitations. These limits are $50 for grade animals and $100 for registered purebred animals. The maximum indemnity for grade sows and gilts has been raised from $50 to $100 under the changed regulations.

The State share of indemnity is also 50 percent of appraised value, and each State has its own limitations on maximum payment per head. Virginia will pay up to $40 for grade and $50 for registered purebred animals. North Carolina will pay up to $25 for grade and $100 for purebred registered animals.

Since the current State-Federal effort to eradicate hog cholera in Virginia and North Carolina commenced on Sept. 8, some 24 infected and 26 exposed herds have been depopulated in the quarantined areas of swine.

Dr. Blake pointed out that indemnities are intended to compensate owners as nearly as possible for actual losses.

Ervin Dissatisfied with Jury

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes has appointed Councilman Robert B. Cromwell Jr. and Mrs. Robert F. Johnson to the city's advertising jury, comprising appointments to that special body.

The committee, charged with selecting an advertising agency to handle the city's $250,000 advertising account, will view advertising presentations following a review of applications by agencies.

Thus far, 13 agencies have submitted applications for the account.

Cromwell will represent the City Council on the eight-member ad hoc committee, while Mrs. Johnson will represent the citizens in general and add a women's viewpoint, Rhodes said.

But Rhodes' appointments drew fire from Councilman F. Reid Ervin, who had earlier voiced concern at the lack of advertising expertise demonstrated by the committee's makeup.

"I'm still disappointed that we didn't get someone on the committee with an advertising background," he said. But Cromwell assured Ervin that he would not spare any effort to call as much information and knowledge about advertising from others not on the committee.

Other appointments to the special jury include: R. Bradshaw Pulley, representing the Chamber of Commerce's Committee of 100; Richard Kline of the Virginia Beach Development Council; Charles W. Gardner of the Innkeeper's Association; Alfred W. Craft Jr. of the Industrial Development Authority; A. J. DeBellis, director of the city's Economic Development Department; and Frank L. Cressy, the city's public information officer.

In another matter pertaining to the advertising contract, Councilman George R. Ferrell said he felt the agency should accept the city's contract and not charge a fee.

"All of that ($250,000) should go into the ad," Ferrell said. "The work should be done at no cost to the city."

Ferrell also asked that serious consideration be given to selecting an agency that has done prior work for municipalities.

But Ervin said the work received would be just what the city paid for, indicating that if no fee were paid, the agency wouldn't be as motivated to produce high caliber material.

Wheat Pool Will Benefit Farmers

"Domestic utilization of wheat in human nutrition and industry can be encouraged by the recently enacted Research and Promotion Act," Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin declared today.

"The prospect is quite promising that research can develop new products and greater utilization of wheat," Secretary Hardin stated. "Many other farm commodities are seeing the fruits of an effective research and promotion program, and this self-help effort by the wheat industry is in the same spirit."

The Congressional measure (HR 3543) could provide more than $4 million for research on new uses for wheat and market development.

It authorizes the Secretary to enter into agreements with farm organizations representing wheat producer interests, such as the newly-formed National Wheat Institute, to carry out research and promotion. The institute is a non-profit organization representing a cooperative effort among wheat producer groups to increase domestic wheat usage. The institute incorporates the requirements outlined by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for eligibility to receive contracts under the program.

Financing of the program will come from proceeds of the 1969 Wheat Export Certificate Pool not claimed by eligible farmers. The $4.2 million pool is the result of legislation passed several years ago that provides for excess collections of export certificates to be distributed pro rata among wheat producers.

Wheat exporters are required to buy export certificates for any lot of wheat exported whenever the U. S. price exceeds the world price, an export subsidy is paid to the exporter to make the wheat competitive in world markets. The world market price for the 1968 crop of wheat was at times higher than the U. S. price and an export certificate pool of slightly over $4.2 million was accumulated.

County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices will notify eligible wheat producers of their pro rata share of the pool. Producers may elect to receive their share or leave it to finance the Research and Promotion Program. They will have until December 24, 1970 to notify their county ASCS office whether they elect to receive the payment.

Farmers Elect Committeemen

In the recent ASC Committeemen election Virginia Beach farmers elected a total of twenty community committeemen and alternates in a mail election conducted in September, according to Chris Krahenbill, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

ASC committee members assist the County ASC Committee in administering farm programs in Virginia Beach such as wheat acreage allotments, feed grain bases, and agricultural conservation cost-sharing measures. They also help keep local producers informed of farm program provisions and regulations.

In addition the newly elected ASC community committeemen have an important responsibility in filling vacancies on the County ASC Committee and determining the chairman and vice-chairman for the coming year, Krahenbill said.

The new ASC community committeemen convened the 25th of September in the Virginia Beach ASCS office in a meeting that was open to the public. They elected one County Committeeman to serve a three-year term and two alternates to serve one-year terms. After the vacancies were filled, the community committeemen determined which of the three regular members of the County ASC Committee will serve as Chairman and Vice-chairman.

Each of the four ASC community committees are made up of three members and two alternates, who serve for a one-year period. The candidate in each ASC community who received the largest number of votes is the committee chairman. Second highest is vice-chairman; third is regular committee member; fourth and fifth in the number of votes received are first and second alternates.

Following is a list showing ASC county and community committeemen in Virginia Beach, listed in the order of chairman, vice-chairman, regular member, first alternate and second alternate: Kempville Community-A. C. Brown, H. L. Jackson, J. Hershberger, R. P. Midgett and R. H. DeFord, Jr.; Seaboard Community-A. Dawley, C. P. Brown, C. E. Upton, III, N. W. Shirley and T. M. Malbon. Pungo Community-Deane Flanagan, Winston Henley, G. L. Freeman, E. L. Vaughan and J. T. Morris. Blackwater Community-W. H. Gilbert, Joe Pease, R. L. Frost and J. J. Contos.

Pollution Clamp Down

Rear Admiral E. C. Allen, Jr., Commander of the Fifth Coast Guard District, has ordered all Fifth Coast Guard District units to seek public assistance in the sighting and reporting of oil spills.

Admiral Allen sent a message to Coast Guard units responsible for surveillance of oil and hazardous chemical spills instructing them to recruit citizens to help in the sighting and reporting of oil spills.

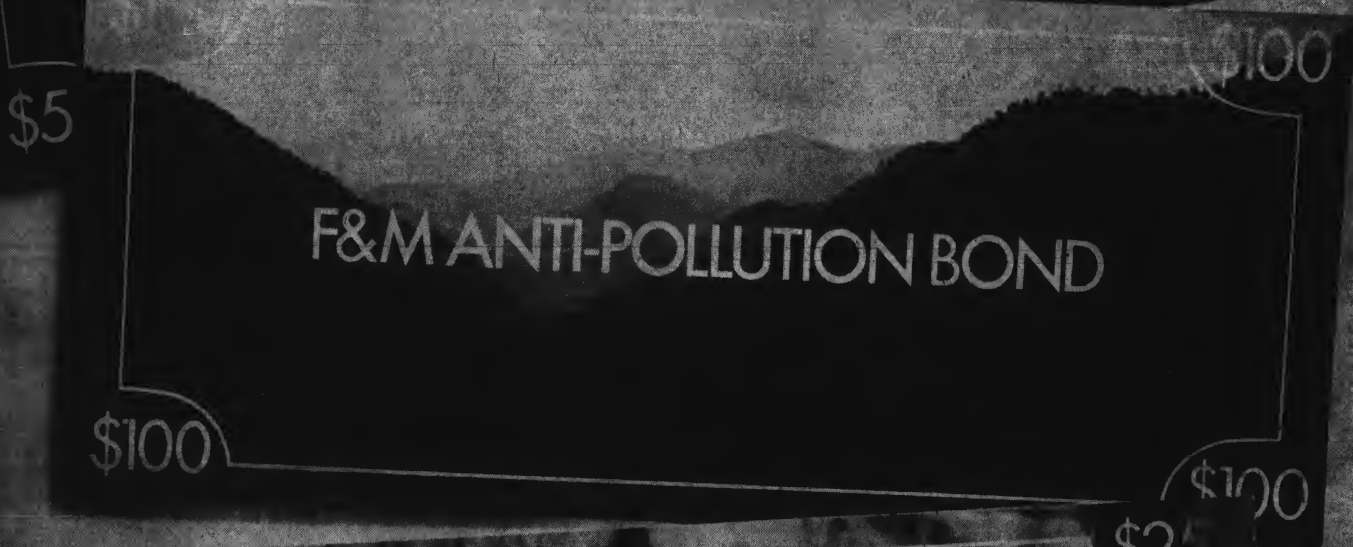

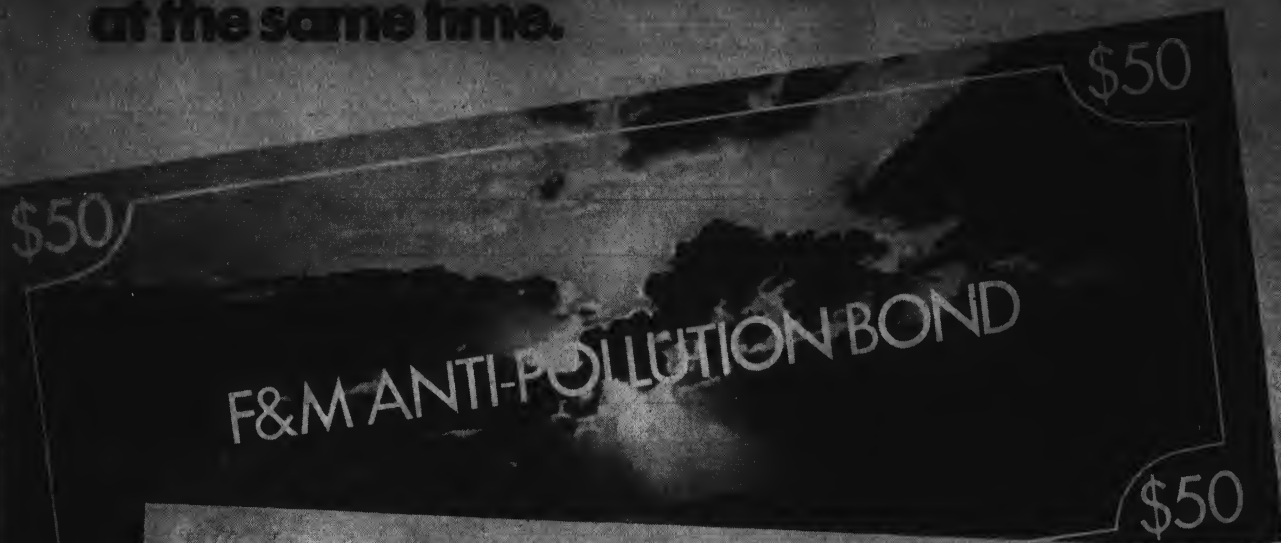

Commenting on the problem of oil pollution Admiral Allen said, "Early notice of pollution incidents will help pinpoint responsibility and in many cases may enable us to initiate control or containment measures to minimize harmful effects. There is no question that the public is concerned with the protection of the environment. Helping the Coast Guard is one way they can translate their concern into action."

The Coast Guard feels that public assistance is important in building the best surveillance system possible. Airline pilots, local fire and police agencies, ocean and inland waterway pilots; anyone, in fact, who sights an oil spill should notify the Coast Guard immediately.

Persons reporting spills should give the location of the spill, the time of the sighting; the size of the spill in area; and the existing sea, wind, and tide conditions. If the type of oil is known, it would be helpful. Notification should be made to Commanding, Fifth Coast Guard District, 431 Crawford St., Portsmouth, Va. 23705. Telephone (703) 393-9611 or the nearest Coast Guard unit.

If the source of the pollution is known, it should also be reported. No penalty will be assessed until a vessel or person is given notice of a spill.

Now you can fight inflation and pollution at the same time.

One of the most popular things at the Mennonite Bake and Auction sale was the home made applebutter. MRS. C.M. MAST made the applebutter and canned it for sale. MR. J.H. YODER helped stoke the fire. After the applebutter was sold out people were still coming to buy it. Next year make sure you get yours early. More pictures on pages 12 and 13.

Why the Audi is the hottest selling car in Germany.

We don't mean to imply we're the largest selling car. What we do mean, though, is that in the first five months of this year, the new Audi 100 LS has had greater sales increases than any other German car.

Apparently the Audi must really have something. And what the Audi has is this:

Features that are more advanced than just about any other car in the world.

There's front-wheel drive so you can corner with the stability of a racing car.

There's rack-and-pinion steering, the most responsive system a car can have and the very same system used in racing cars.

The Audi has inboard front disc brakes for quick safe stops.

As for the engine, well, it gets 26 miles to the gallon and goes from 0 to 50 in a mere 8 seconds.

And the interior is very plush, extremely comfortable with room for five.

You'll be extremely impressed with the Audi.

ASTRO-ADVICE

By Raymond Williams noted Virginia Beach
astrologer

Four minutes—big difference

QUESTION: Would you give me a general idea about my future? I am contented in my home life and job. I have one child—will there be any more? Also, am I Aries or Taurus? Signed ENH.

ANSWER: You gave us a birth time of around 9 a.m. Since only four minutes of time changes the degree of the sign rising by one degree, it is impossible to determine, with any amount of accuracy, just what degree of the sign you have on the ascendant. I think it is probably the early degrees of Gemini, but can not be sure. When we do not have the birth time accurately it is impossible to give any definite time for the aspects to bring the events promised by the progressed horoscope into the life. Four minutes off and the event which will come into the life will be off one year. Eight minutes and we are off two years, so doing a column like this and trying to pin-point timing of events, without rectification, is very unprofessional. I know. I think the educative value is sufficient to justify being called inaccurate, because the events did not materialize when I stated that I thought they would. The reader reaction backs up this belief enough to satisfy me.

Now considering the above, let me rush in where angels fear to tread. I would say that you are not as content as your letter indicated. The planet Saturn is stationed over the planet Mercury just now, and it is the nature of Saturn to depress and stifle. This would indicate that you are not "feeling" too well about something. Also, about 1965, something happened in relationship to your home and I suspect that it still bothers you. Over the next few years, and if I had the exact time of birth I would be willing to pin-point the time, you will have some serious problems in relationship to your health. The Sun, by progression will move into an opposition to the planet Mars. This is usually an indication of health problems, and since Mars is located in the house of health at birth (I suppose), the health could very well suffer. This is not meant to frighten you, but rather to advise you to watch the health closer than you normally would.

There are some rather good aspects taking place at the same time. Mars, at this time, will be making a good aspect to the planet Jupiter (the great benefic) in the house of inheritance. This could very well bring some unexpected loot into the family coffers. Before this the Sun, by progression, will make a difficult aspect to the planet Moon. This is surely going to effect the home. It seems to be a period of mental difficulty or worry on your part. I don't want to try to pin-point the time on this event, since we have an incorrect birth time. In fact, it is foolish for me to have made the forecast that I have made. If you would like, you can feel free to tell me how wrong I am. I promise I will publish the letter.

Take yourself in hand

QUESTION: Could you please tell me if my future holds anything of interest for me. I work hard but everything falls apart. Sometimes I feel I will lose my mind. I am very lonely, will I ever meet anyone right for me? Signed MJH.

ANSWER: The most pronounced aspect of your horoscope is the fact that Neptune is stationed in the fourth house (governing the home). The nature of Neptune is such that it creates confusion and uncertainty. In relationship to your home life this is quite obvious. A good description of the nature of Neptune is isolation or loneliness.

The planet Mars is conjunct the planet Venus. Mars is the strongest energy force in the horoscope and Venus is the affectional nature. Combined, you present a picture of an extremely affectionate person. These two planets are also in very good relationship to Saturn, the planet of stability and Jupiter (the great benefic). This means, simply, that you will have all that life has to offer, one day.

Considering this, let's look at what is taking place in the horoscope now. Why are you so lonely and depressed? What are the aspects that are causing you this despair? The answer is that there is nothing in the chart at this time to give you the energy to do anything. There are no major aspects in the chart at the present. It is at these times, when nothing is happening, that we are likely to get into the doldrums. We permit our appearance to suffer, our personality becomes a dreary chore. If you will take yourself in hand—get a new hair-do, start a light exercise program, check your diet and do an overhaul of your wardrobe, you will be delighted to discover that within a year the fire of life will be rekindled and this smoldering discontent will be turned into a blaze of energy. Things are on the move for you.

Recently I did a horoscope for a young lady who was experiencing this same lack of interest. She had permitted herself to become quite depressed. On the advice of friends she came all the way from Richmond to have me do her horoscope. Happily she is following my advice and things have taken a very good turn for her.

You, too, have some very interesting experiences ahead of you. Be prepared physically, mentally and emotionally, so that you can take advantage of the exciting period, which is sure to come in the near future.

You may travel soon

QUESTION: I am divorced and caring for my aged mother. I have had to give up my life to be with her. I feel that I am slowly dying. Do you see any improvement in my life in the near future? Signed G.P.

ANSWER: Again no correct birth time. We could be so much more accurate if we had the correct time of birth. It is vital to a comprehensive analysis of the horoscope.

This much, I think I can say with some feeling of accuracy, however. Mars, by the process called progression, has been opposing the planet Neptune, which is stationed in the sign of Cancer at birth. This is the thing that probably brought about the divorce, since Cancer rules the home.

Mars is the great energy planet, and in opposition can only mean a great deal of conflict in the area of the home. Specifically, in opposition to Neptune, would produce the feeling of hopelessness, you mentioned.

There has been a good aspect between the progressed Sun and the natal position. You can be grateful that this was taking place, because things would have been considerably worse had you not been receiving the redeeming influences from

City Advertising Contract

Agencies Level 'Unprofessional' Charge

Three Virginia Beach Advertising agencies Wednesday charged that the City is "totally in error" in its attempt to select an agency to handle the city's $204,000 advertising account for the next two or three years.

The agencies heads of Media 1 Advertising, Capital Advertising and Argus Advertising, said in a press conference at the White Heron Motel that the city was acting in an unprofessional manner when it eliminated the local agencies from competition for the city account.

"The city is taking a flexible creative industry and making it into a fat, sluggish extension of bureaucratic control," they said in a joint release.

The group charged that the city has in the past attempted to do business with local firms, but in this case no true Virginia Beach firms are being allowed to make presentations.

The agencies selected to make presentations by a special advertising selection jury are Ballard, Lawler, and Little of Norfolk, Martin and Wolts of Richmond, and Brand and Edmonds Associates also of Richmond.

It was learned, however, that Laura Lamb Advertising Agency of Virginia Beach has joined with Martin and Wolts as a consultant to that firm to make a presentation before the committee. Mrs. Lamb, who operates a one-woman agency, has held the city's account since 1959.

Argus Advertising president Donald G. Wizeman Jr., said that what the agencies are objecting to is the fact that the city is not allowing the beach agencies to make even a courtesy presentation.

Wizeman said the committee selected the three agencies not on the basis of creativity but on the size of the agencies' billing and the number of personnel employed.

Wizeman and the other media heads, William P. Gaspar of Capital and James M. Johnson of Media 1, listed 19 points as a basis for their opposition to the city's move.

Major points of criticism that:

"The city has no one member who can be considered an authority on advertising. "The questionnaire sent to the 17 agencies who showed interest in the contract was biased to exclude smaller agencies; 14 agencies responded.

"Two of the non-city agencies selected are in violation of a stipulation that the agency selected would not handle any account of another 'political jurisdiction' within a radius of 200 miles.

Martin and Wolts handles part of the State of Virginia account and the Virginia State Parks Authority account while Ballard, Lawler and Little handles the city of Hampton tour account.

The firms feel that the agencies had made a pre-arranged deal with city officials for the account in avoiding the proximity situation.

"The selection of agencies is based on the billing and not on creativity.

"About $10,000 in taxes will be lost if the account leaves the city, in addition to what they term 'ride-along' business (tolling) the same amount.

"Some people will say that this is just our grapes on our part. Well, we agree it is in part, but we think there is something that is a little more fermented somewhere in this governmental trash barrel," Wizeman said.

"We think the people of Virginia Beach should know what's being done with their $204,000 and render their own decision," he said. "Maybe our sour grapes will prevent a reoccurrence of such a contradictory practice."

Advertising has never been business that could be measured in terms of dollars and cents, Wizeman said. "They want to take all the flesh and stir out of a creative business and make it a harsh operation that just

Surfing Group Opposes Bid Sale of Pendleton

The Virginia Surfing Association has termed "redundant" a recommendation by Governor A. Linwood Holton's Management Study Committee that the Camp Pendleton area be sold to the highest bidder.

"We strongly oppose the recommendation made that Camp Pendleton, after its abolition, be sold to the highest bidder," said VSA chairman H. Jack Jennings Jr.

He said that the state price tag of $1 million placed on the 450-acre tract is alarming.

"It implies that someone is already laying the groundwork for a possible sale of 450 acres of beautiful land," he said.

The VSA is apprehensive that the Pendleton site may end up as a maze of hot-dog stands, concrete and wall-to-wall motels, he said.

Jennings said the VSA endorsed the action by City Councilman F. Reid Ervin when he called for the opposition to the city's sale to the highest bidder. Ervin asked that consideration be given to maintaining the park in perpetuity for the use of the citizens.

"Such a facility, operated by either the state or the city under a lease from the state, could provide a variety of attractions and add greatly to our tourist trade," Ervin said.

He also advocated reservation of land at the site for another golf course and a surfing park.

Jennings said the VSA would like to see a professional planning group such as the city's planning department study the situation and produce recommendations on the use, eliminating the possibility of private ownership.

The land, Jennings said, is suited for use as community college site, for a sports complex, a mental health facility, a horseracing track, a state or city park and zoo, as well as a surfing and swimming park on the oceanfront.

Jennings said he hopes the silent majority of citizens, who are stockholders in the Camp Pendleton area, will not sit idly by and let someone attempt to take the land away for a profit making purpose.

The Governor liked what he saw when he attended the East Coast surfing Championships here in August, Jennings said, and at that time said if the experiment was successful there was a possibility a full-time surfing park could be set up there.

"We think the experiment was a tremendous success," he said. "and we hope the people won't let this go by without a fight."

Hanbury Is Asst.

George F. Hanbury II, a 28-year-old administrative assistant to Norfolk's city manager, has been named the new assistant to Virginia Beach's city manager, effective November 16.

Hanbury will assume David L. Norman's duties when Norman leaves to become Lynchburg's city manager the first part of November.

Hanbury, who served with Norfolk for 29 months, was graduated from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute with a bachelor's degree in public administration, with a concentration in municipal governments and administration.

He was also an evening professor at Old Dominion University for one year, where he taught public administration. Hanbury has completed some graduate work at George Washington University in governmental administration.

He is a member of the International City Management Association and the American Society of Public Administration.

Along with his wife Diana and their son George L. III Hanbury lives in the 7800 block of Woodall Road in Norfolk.

Drug Meets Start

The Drug Focus Committee of Virginia Beach has completed plans for a series of public meetings. It hopes will be instrumental in the fight against drug abuse in the city.

The first session was held last night at First Colonial High School. The second is to be at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 4, at Plaza Junior High School.

Youth and parents are encouraged to attend and participate in the discussions.

Public response will determine the scheduling of meetings in other sections of the city, Drug Focus Committee Chairman Mrs. Doris E. said.

Mrs. Young added that the Drug Focus Committee hopes the "frank dialogue" expected at the meetings will help get to the "why" of drug abuse, the scope of the problem in the city, and ideas on rehabilitation. All interested citizens are invited to address the meetings. However, it is requested that those desiring to do so send a post card to City Clerk Richard J. Webber, who also is a member of the Drug Focus Committee, at the Municipal Center, Virginia Beach.

It is expected that all 19 members of the Drug Focus Committee will be present at the meetings. Also, councilmen and other city officials, representatives of churches, civic clubs and Parent-Teacher Associations are requested to attend.

Panel for seniors set

The Guidance Department of First Colonial High School will sponsor a panel for seniors and their parents on general college information November 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Four general areas will be discussed: admission requirements, financial aid, the two-year private junior college, community college and college majors.

A question and answer period will follow the presentation. The panel will consist of Mrs. Harriet Reed, dean of admissions for women, The College of William and Mary; admissions; Kent Schultz, coordinator of special projects and activities for the State Council of Higher Education of Virginia; financial aid; Dr. Harold McGee, provost, Tidewater Community College; the two-year college; and Dr. Stanley Pliska, dean of general studies, Old Dominion University, college majors.

Seniors and their parents are urged to attend.

Look, Ma. They Made It!

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre has fought an obstacle course to have a 1970-71 season but now Friday night they will, indeed, open with "I Never Sang for My Father". The group was homeless for an entire season after the Courtyard Playhouse property was sold and they lost their lease. Last fall local theatre remained dark, with the exception of a special Shakespearean play presented for the schools.

The theatre people have been struggling for some months to build their own theatre building. The property is available on 24th Street and Barbenton, it has been cleared and prepared but there have been no funds. A fund drive came up sadly lacking and a request to the city is still pending.

A few months ago the first breakthrough came. A warehouse at Camp Pendleton would be made available for rehearsal if a place to perform could be located. The warehouse offer was quickly grabbed and some of the theatre leaders set about finding a "theatre" of sorts.

Many possibilities were searched before a solution was found. The White Heron, only recently purchased by Virginia Beach Enterprises, headed by Rhea Adams, would make available its Bay Harbour Room. This was previously a private club and since closing in that capacity it has been used only for private parties or meetings. It will eventually be converted into a supper club.

With this much good luck behind them, the Little Theatre die-hards launched into the production of the Robert Anderson drama.

The "rehearsal hall," welcome though it was, proved to be an obstacle course in its own right. It is filled with military supplies and provisions, has no heat and is the size of a barn. A tiny spot in the middle of this was cleared for a "stage" but it could only be laid out so that the "front" of the "stage" faced a blank wall. The director, Larry Williams, never saw the expressions on his actors' faces until last week! Voices were lost in the vastness of the building. And the cast shook in their boots on chilly nights.

But they at least had a place to rehearse and were happy to suffer the inconveniences. Last Friday night they held the first rehearsal in the Bay Harbour. Sound and lights had to be set up, sets arranged and blocking re-arranged. But it went almost without a hitch.

Foy Shaw (left) and Herbert Harrell rehearse a touching scene from "I Never Sang for My Father".

A few more obstacles were thrown into their path this week but the theatre people have learned to step over them. They just keep performing and know all will turn out for the best.

It will be the first time the Little Theatre has been able to offer a dinner theatre concept to its members and supporters. They will provide the play and the White Heron will provide the extremely popular shrimp'n beer buffet the Bay Harbour has become so noted for. Buffet will be served from 7 to 8 p.m. followed by the play at 8:30. Cocktails will be available.

"I Never Sang for My Father" will be presented Friday and Saturday for the next three week-ends.

Spaghetti To Buy Uniforms

First Colonial High School Band Boosters will hold a spaghetti supper tonight at the school cafeteria from 5 to 8:30 to raise money for uniforms and needed musical instruments.

Tickets will be available at the door at $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12. Mrs. George C. Meira Jr. is chairman of the event.

TV's Cabot here Nov. 9

The distinguished actor and popular TV personality, Sebastian Cabot, comes to Virginia Beach on November 9, in the first of two programs in the Virginia Beach Forum. The Virginia Beach Rotary Club is sponsoring the program.

Cabot's appearance is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at Princess Anne High School on Virginia Beach Boulevard. Tickets at $5 per person are available from members of the Rotary Club and at the Chamber of Commerce.

Co-star with Brian Keith in the popular CBS-TV series, "A Family Affair", Cabot is also widely known for his role of the urbane Dr. Carl Hyatt in the "Checkmate" series and has appeared as special guest on dozens of top TV shows.

Among his special guest TV shows have been roles in "Gunsmoke," "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," "Climax," "Playhouse 90," "Death Playhouse," "Twilight Zone," "Bonanza," and "The Red Skelton Show."

Tickets for the Cabot appearance will also include the second presentation in the Forum series, Newscaster and Newspaper Columnist Bob Considine in March of next year.

When the aspect between Mars and Neptune has completely passed, the planet Jupiter (the great benefic) will form a conjunction with the planet of the mind, Mercury. This will certainly bring a period of release from the mental strain you have been experiencing. It should improve the health as well, since that area is also involved. The progressed Sun is beginning to make a very good aspect to the planet which rules the home. This means that in about one year you will find the home life greatly improved. In fact, I feel sure that you will again be in a very happy frame of mind, and things will be considerably improved. There could be an opportunity to travel abroad in the near future. If the opportunity to do so presents itself, by all means do it because it will be quite good for you. Therapy, in fact, the future is really quite good, but as I have stated before in this column, being prepared, physically, mentally and emotionally will make things just that much better. You will then be able to make the most of the opportunities that present themselves.

Try-outs Scheduled Mon.-Tues. Verbally Hits Planner

The Norfolk Little Theatre will hold try-outs for "The Desk Set" Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Little Theatre.

The cast calls for eight men and eight women. Participation in backstage work is also welcome.

"The Desk Set," the theatre's second offering of the 1970-71 season, will be directed by Chichi Lively of Virginia Beach. Mrs. Lively has performed with the Norfolk Little Theatre and has directed three productions for the Virginia Beach Little Theatre.

The Norfolk Little Theatre is located at 801 Claremont Avenue in Norfolk. Try-outs are open to the public.

Referendum To Be Discussed

The proposed school bond referendum will be among the topics that Virginia Beach School Superintendent E. E. Brickell will include in his presentation at the November 2 PTA meeting at Windsor Oaks Elementary School.

The meeting will start promptly at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Sam Houston, Jr., speaking once on behalf of the Ridge-Civic League and once as "Sam Houston, citizen" monopolized most of the time of a relatively short City Council meeting Monday morning.

Houston leveled a somewhat personal attack on Tim Barrow of the Planning Department as being responsible for what Houston labels "density zoning" in the Kempville Land Use Study, which, incidentally was unanimously approved by Council.

Houston said he was not opposed to the Kempville plan but "I'm against its manner of implementation. On the surface it appears to be everything we wanted—more schools, parks, recreational facilities, more fire stations, water and sewer, even a regional hospital."

"It is further recommended that our southern underdeveloped agricultural lands be barred from further development until the populous residential areas now served by public utilities are fully developed. This, of course, will appeal to the apartment and townhouse developers and will no doubt save them a considerable amount of money. No longer will the Kempville homeowners be able to point out that there are thousands of acres of undeveloped land available for townhouse development. Without a definite agenda of goals, what is envisioned for Kempville, particularly those much needed and long overdue public facilities, will, I am afraid, vanish in a jungle of more gas stations, chicken huts, huge billboards, cluster subdivisions, planned unit developments and density zoning schemes designed to continue the prostitution of obvious single development—and to benefit the builder and developer of multi-family units.

"Mr. Barrow, who made this plan, told me (Houston) in new city planning in Utah and New Mexico 'Density theories' are what they use. Professional city planners don't like 'fixed district zoning' because it makes their job more difficult. Mr. Barrow, let the record show, lives in a multi-family environment himself and cannot understand that established single family living is worth fighting for."

"Many of us in Kempville and citywide offered this Council and the Planning Department, free of charge, civic and professional services to expedite this study. Mr. Standing and Mrs. Stull (formerly with the Planning Department) took advantage of that offer and many hours of work and hundreds of suggestions were gathered. When Mr. Barrow returned from the Army and took over, no more help was requested of the citizens. As a matter of fact, just the opposite became the rule."

Houston then asked further study of the plan and that the vote be delayed but it wasn't. Councilman Reid Ervin protested Houston's statement as "an unwarranted attack on the professional integrity of Mr. Barrow."

Mayor Donald Rhodes asked Houston why, since he had attended all earlier hearings on the plan, he had not voiced his objections to it earlier. Houston said he had made objections to the plan from the beginning but that he "learned a long time ago there's no use objecting just to be objecting." Rhodes requested that in the future he make his objections known earlier.

Said Houston, "I hope you don't punish me personally. I'm just looking out for the best interests of the city of Virginia Beach."

Shortly thereafter, Houston volunteered his advice as a private citizen on the matter of the purchase of property owned by the Norfolk-Southern Railway Company at Kempville for $50,000. "It's not worth any $50,000," said Houston. "It's not good to the railroad for anything." He suggested a condemnation suit.

However, Rhodes said that a professional survey showed the property to be worth more than $50,000 and that the city "on condemnation couldn't do any better if as well."

City Manager Rodger Scott pointed out that the railroad has a valid contract with a private company for the land at a larger price.

Council voted to negotiate for the purchase of the property.

In other action Council:

"Deferred for two more weeks the application of J. D. and C. K. Rockefeller to build 204 townhouses and 96 apartment units on Clubhouse Road in Princess Anne Plaza until the offer of a school site can be clarified."

"Appropriated $4,079 to purchase vehicles approved in the 1970-71 budget to cover the increased cost of these vehicles."

"Approved an ordinance authorizing the issuance of $18,400.00 in School Bonds. Scott said that a study is now being made to ascertain what effect this will have on city taxes."

"Approved the appointment of representatives to the Virginia Beach Art Museum until the bylaws are available."

"Approved an ordinance authorizing the issuance of $18,400.00 in School Bonds. Scott said that a study is now being made to ascertain what effect this will have on city taxes."

Singer To Entertain

A young singer of some renown will open November 3 at Nero's Nook at Caesar's Restaurant, in Princess Anne Plaza.

A native of Winston-Salem, N.C., Tatum served with the Army and Special Services in Germany and was selected as the best vocalist in European Command. He was one of a vocal group that won Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts and one of the five Page Singers on the Patti Page television series.

He has free lanced with vocal groups in New York on recordings and such television shows as the Firestone Hour, Bell Telephone Hour, Texaco Specials, Chevy Show, Ed Sullivan, Perry Como and Jackie Gleason shows. A monster from outer space? Nope. Only the radio antenna crews installed Tuesday at the Hospitality House.

Versatile building adds another service

The Hospitality House, one of the projects instrumental in getting Virginia Beach nominated for the All-America City Award, will soon go worldwide. It will serve as home base for an Armed Forces Radio Station which will broadcast messages and conversations among military families in all parts of the world.

This is another segment of a continued joint effort between local citizens and the military. Through such interest the radio tower was erected Tuesday, the short wave equipment has been installed and the Hospitality House now houses a "very fine ham shack."

"We still have some bugs to work out before the station is operational," said Algy Cohen, organizer of Hospitality House, "but it is going to be one of the finest ham shacks in the country." Cohen explained that a call from a serviceman in Germany could connect him directly with his mother in California by "patching" in on a phone service.

This phone service, which will connect Virginia Beach with any telephone in the world, Cohen said, is being provided by the Virginia Pilots Association.

Hospitality House is a multi-purpose center which serves the community in many ways. It is operated by the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association under lease from the city for $1 per year. It is a service-man's "home away from home" during the summer months and becomes a recreational center September 15 through May 15 under the auspices of the city's Department of Parks and Recreation.

When the building becomes the Beach Activity Center during the fall and winter months it operates a full schedule of activities to please the adult, teen-ager and pre-teen group. Adults have classes in the morning and evenings in nearly every type of subject...guitar, oil painting, holiday crafts, even astrology and surf fishing. The pre-teens take over from 2:30 to 4:30 for arts and crafts and the older teens come in from 4:30 to 10 p.m. for a recreational program.

A few years ago the city abandoned its offices in this hub of activity and it was declared surplus property, doomed to existence as a parking lot. Then Algy Cohen came along and, backed by many interested citizens as well as the Ministerial Association, saved the building for a useful life.

Once the ham shack is completed it will connect Virginia Beach with the far corners of the world...a much finer fate than being a parking lot.

Courthouse Campaigning

Even though First District Rep. Thomas N. Downing is running unopposed for office for the coming term, he still likes to get out to the hustings and talk with the people. Tuesday he spent the morning at the City Hall complex, greeting old friends and making new ones, as Clerk of Court John V. Fentress led him around the Clerk's office on a handshaking tour.

Changes Summarized

THIS IS THE FOURTH AND FINAL OF A SERIES OF WEEKLY, INFORMATIONAL ARTICLES ON THE REVISED CONSTITUTION PROVIDED BY VIRGINIANS FOR THE CONSTITUTION.

On Nov. 3, the people of Virginia will go to the polls to vote not only on congressional candidates but on constitutional amendments which will generally revise the state's Constitution for the first time since 1928.

If these amendments are approved by the voters, this will be the sixth revision of the Constitution since it was first written in 1776. Virginians have updated their basic law on the average of once every three decades. However, it has been more than four decades since Virginia last updated the document.

During those 42 years Virginia changed significantly. Her population more than doubled, and she became urbanized and industrialized. State government took on new functions such as pollution control which could not be envisioned in 1928.

The amendments which will be voted on Nov. 3 are the product of almost three years' work. In 1968 Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., appointed a blue-ribbon commission, headed by former Gov. Albertis S. Harrison, to study the Constitution and recommend improvements. Using the commission's report, and after much hearing and debate, the General Assembly drafted the amendments. These amendments were overwhelmingly approved by the 1969 special session of the legislature and again by the 1970 regular session. The question is now up to the voters to decide.

On Nov. 3 the voters will be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on the four amendments which would revise and update the Constitution. Each proposed amendment will be listed separately.

The first proposed amendment would generally update the main body of the Constitution. Much of the change proposed is in the nature of "house-keeping." For example, obsolete passages such as those on dueling were deleted, and excessive and confusing detail was removed to make for a clearer, more fundamental document.

The words of George Mason's Bill of Rights were retained virtually intact and several safeguards were added. However, "housekeeping" elsewhere shortened the document from about 35,000 words to almost half that and made the document more readable.

In addition, there are some substantive changes in the main body of the charter such as annual sessions of the General Assembly, a new conservation article, a stricter franchise article to prevent vote fraud, repeal of the poll tax, authority for real estate tax relief for homeowners 65 and older, a new consumer protection provision, authority for tax relief on farm and open space land, and limits on the appointing powers of judges.

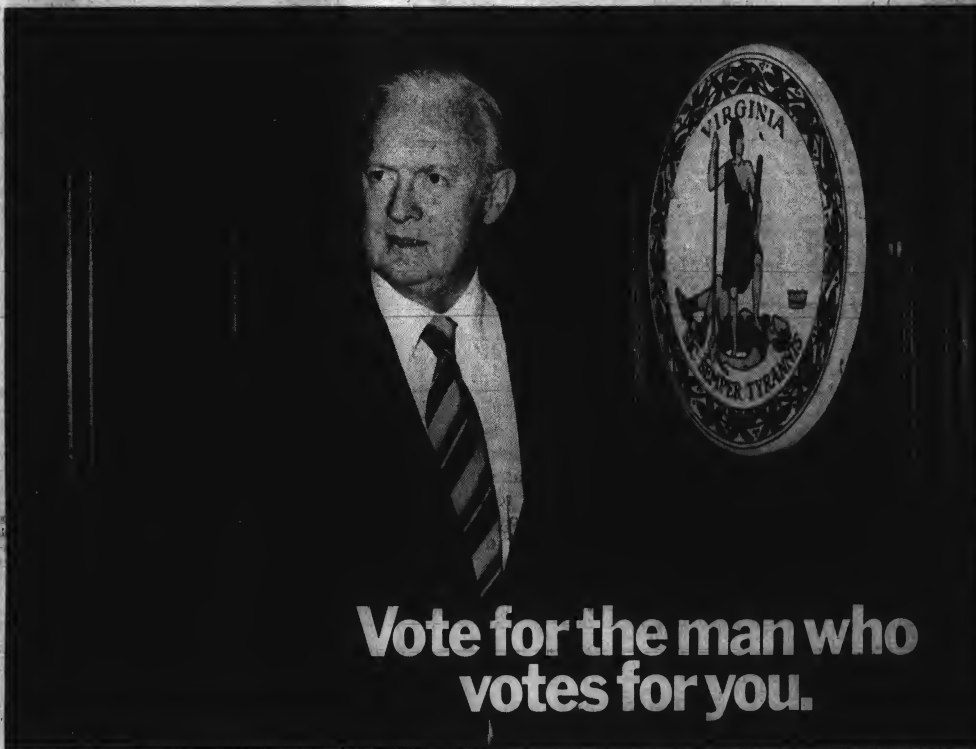

The second proposal simply asks that the General Assembly be allowed to decide the issue of lotteries. This second amendment does not itself permit lotteries.

The third proposal would somewhat enlarge the capacity of the Commonwealth to issue general obligation bonds for capital outlay projects such as mental health facilities and community colleges and four-year college buildings. Two debt limits, one for a four-year period and one cumulative, are provided. A vote of the people would be required to issue any such bonds if, and after, proposal No. 3 were approved Nov. 3.

The fourth proposal would allow the General Assembly to save money on interest rates by pledging Virginia's full faith and credit behind selected revenue bonds. This would require a two-thirds vote of the legislature and certification by the governor that revenues from the project would retire the debt. And the state could not back the bonds of independent authorities such as bridge or expressway authorities. Moreover, the state will continue to be able to issue revenue bonds, regardless of whether proposal No. 4 passed. The question is whether a savings on interest can be made.

Vote for the man who votes for you.

On November 3rd, Virginians will elect a United States Senator. In these terribly serious times, it is vital that he be a man of proven ability and experience. Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr. is that man.

Consider the record of Harry Byrd.

He is independent-minded because he believes the welfare of Virginians and America must come before political partisanship.

He speaks clearly and plainly on the issues, and he votes in accordance with his conscience and best judgment.

He holds firmly to the fundamentals of constitutional government and sound fiscal policies.

He recognizes that taxes—to use his own words—"are paid in the sweat of all who labor."

And, working for you, he has voted on 97 percent of Senate roll-calls.

Here is where Senator Byrd stands on some of the key issues facing Virginia and the Nation.

The High Cost of Living. "If we're going to reduce the cost of living, we must control inflation," says Senator Byrd, a member of the Senate Finance Committee. He is striving to cut excess government spending, a major cause of inflation.

If you want a Senator who's going to safeguard the taxes of the wage earner instead of supporting every wild-spending scheme, you'll vote to re-elect Byrd November 3rd.

Welfare. Senator Byrd believes the government has an obligation to those physically or mentally unable to earn a living.

"But I do not want to turn over tax funds of hard-working citizens to able-bodied persons who refuse to work."

Crime and Violence. This country is continually faced with mob violence and generally civil disobedience. Senator Byrd says, "We cannot have a free country unless it is free from crime and mob violence," and he's voted for legislation to help make our country safer.

If you want a Senator who cares about the individual but doesn't coddle up to the radical liberals, you'll vote to re-elect Byrd November 3rd.

National Defense. Some people in the Senate want us to ignore the very real threats to our freedom. Not Senator Byrd.

He's fighting to keep our national defenses strong. As he says, "While we must trim the fat from our defense budget, we must not cut the muscle."

This is no time for amateurs. If you want a Senator who's got real power in the Senate with a seat on the Armed Services Committee, you'll re-elect Byrd November 3rd.

The Neighborhood Schools. The neighborhood school system is a basic American tradition. And a workable one. Senator Byrd is unalterably opposed to arbitrary busing to achieve what's called a racial balance at the expense of a good education.

If we're going to preserve the neighborhood school system, we'll need experienced legislators like Senator Byrd. If you're for neighborhood schools, you'll vote for Byrd November 3rd.

Consider the issues. Consider the candidates. And vote to re-elect Byrd on November 3rd.

BYRD, YOU KNOW WHAT HE STANDS FOR.

VOTE BYRD NOV. 3rd

UNICEF project snowballs

The enthusiasm has caught on for children and their parents at St. Nicholas Catholic Church on Little Neck Road as they have united in efforts to raise funds for UNICEF (United Nations International Children's Fund) this week.

"Trick or Treat for UNICEF" is a familiar phrase in this area, which every year collects a goodly amount of money on Halloween. But the church is taking the efforts a step farther to help the children relate to less fortunate children throughout the world.

The theme of "children helping children" was first suggested by Mrs. Joyce Snyder of the church, and it has snowballed from there. Mrs. Snyder was looking for a social action project for the children "to live what we're teaching them in the classroom."

About 1,200 children in grades one through twelve are involved. Each grade level has its own fund raising project. These range from collecting bottles, to selling donuts, doing chores at home for money to having a teen dance. One class had a bake sale.

The climax to the week's efforts will be the sponsoring of the kiddie show at the Princess Theatre Saturday, Oct. 31. All proceeds will go to UNICEF. Tickets are 50 cents. The movie, which begins at 9 a.m. will be "King Kong Vs. Godzilla." Children are encouraged to come in costume, as there will be a costume contest with prizes offered. Contest winners for posters advertising the movie will also be announced at the movie.

"Everyone has cooperated," commented Mrs. Snyder. "The parents, the stores. You know it must cause some problems for the store to be loaded down with this many bottles at one time." She said they were returning them to the store some 500 at a time.

"We're stressing that every penny counts," said Mrs. Snyder. "Bottles are worth three cents and three cents will buy 15 classes of milk."

All of the children are enrolled in religious education classes at St. Nicholas. The classes are held Monday through Saturday, and children attend one hour a week.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of UNICEF. The Tidewater UNICEF chairman is Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, who says she will have a booth at the Pembroke Bazaar today through Saturday and will have UNICEF Trick or Treat boxes available free as well as UNICEF Christmas cards for sale.

Total confusion leads to Follies

Although work started last summer selling ads, having tickets, posters and tents printed, arranging for rehearsal halls, bands, publicity, lighting and sound, the show will be put together in just two weeks of actual rehearsal.

The strenuous routine begins when the director arrives from New York on Nov. 8 and informs members of the Virginia Beach - Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club of the songs, dances and acts which will compose the 1971 Follies.

The talent party on Nov. 8 at the F. O. P. Lodge on Birdneck Road is for the purpose of introducing the director to club members and anyone else interested in participating in the Follies. The show is not limited to club members. In fact new talent is always welcome. The Talent Party is not all work. Before and after the director's spiel, there is a rock 'n roll band for dancing.

After the Talent Party rehearsals begin bright and early the next morning at 8 a.m. The morning rehearsals are for the all-girl numbers such as kick lines, and they are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to noon. Evening rehearsals are set up for couples--both dance numbers and songs from 8-11 p.m. Solo numbers are usually rehearsed Tuesday nights or at a convenient time during the day.

Dress rehearsal is held at the Civic Center on Thursday, Nov. 19, and in the past the director has kept the cast for at least two trial runs, often lasting until 1 a.m. while cast members wonder if it is worth the time and expense.

The Friday night performance is a family-style show, and Saturday night is cabaret style with dancing before and after the show.

(See 'Follies' p. 8)

NOT A SOUP LINE, but a chowder line. Everyone was willing to stand in line to taste the delicious food prepared in Angle's Kitchen at the Antique Show sponsored by the Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach last weekend.

Robbie Pernan adds some more bottles to the collection.

POW-MIA wives

Local efforts aimed at answers to questions

With the opening of their first official headquarters, last week, the POW/MIA wives launched a massive effort to collect 100,000 names on petitions which will be taken to the Paris Peace Talks.

The new effort is called "Operation We Care." The wives have been loaned a building at 500 First Colonial Rd. by John K. Parder of Parko Industries. The office will be manned by volunteers from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. For those seeking information or wishing to volunteer may call 425-6441 or 425-6442.

A delegation headed by Mayor Donald Rhodes and Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin will travel to Paris to present the signatures to North Vietnamese and National Liberation Front delegates at the peace talks. The two mayors also will carry the names of men from Norfolk and Virginia Beach and ask for specific information about their whereabouts and welfare.

There are presently 21 men from Virginia Beach and Norfolk who are missing or imprisoned in North Vietnam. Nine are known prisoners of war and 12 are listed as missing in action.

Mrs. Dorothy McDaniel, Virginia State Coordinator of the National League of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, said at the headquarters opening. Both the North Vietnamese and the National Liberation Front recently have seen some elected representatives of the people who have travelled to Paris. Perhaps they will respond to appeals from the people of Norfolk and Virginia Beach. Once they fully understand that America is deeply concerned about these men--and would be equally concerned if only one man was involved--we believe they may modify their position of intransigence. They must be made to realize that the United States will never sacrifice these men to political expediency, and that a satisfactory resolution of the peace talks would be accelerated if the prisoner-issue could be speedily resolved."

Petitions will be circulated throughout the two cities by volunteers, assisted by the American Red Cross. The petitions will be available at shopping centers, at polling places on Nov. 3, and at numerous civic, religious and business gatherings for a three-week period. The Navy League is assisting in fund-raising to send the delegation to Paris.

Mayor Rhodes commented, "There have been a lot of new things for me since September. I can't think of anything I'd rather be involved in than the prisoner-release efforts. The City of Virginia Beach is behind you 100%, officially and unofficially."

According to the wives, the pressure of American and world opinion has helped to edge Hanoi closer to humanitarian treatment of the prisoners. There are no more parades of prisoners through the streets of Hanoi, and threats to try the men as "war criminals" have subsided since the world outcry against that.

In addition, since February of this year, the Hanoi has allowed packages to be sent to the men every two months. Indications are that some of the men receive them. Letter writing has also increased.

Concluded Mrs. McDaniel, "We know our fellow citizens

Events mark fellowship

In the spirit of world community, several special events have been planned by members and Y-Teens of the Tidewater Area for the observance of the TWCA's Annual World Fellowship celebration, Miss Hannah Stevens, executive director of the local Association, announced today.

Tidewater YMCA members will be joining with others in Associations throughout the 50 states and in 80 countries around the world in celebrating a week of prayer for world peace and better understanding among all peoples.

On Nov. 8 a group of Tidewater area Y-Teens will participate in the opening event of the week, the Annual World Fellowship Service held at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. The teens and their chaperones will travel by charter bus and will combine sightseeing with their trip to the Cathedral service.

The Phyllis Wheatley Branch will present an international program "Music Around the World" at a World Fellowship luncheon to be held at the new Sheraton Inn at Military Circle on Saturday, Nov. 7 at 12:30 p.m.

The Virginia Beach Branch observance will be at a coffee at the Eastern Shore Chapel, 2080 Laskin Road on Thursday, Nov. 6 at 10:30 a.m. Adm. (Rev.) Ben W. Sarver will be the speaker and wives of officers of CINCLANT will be guests of honor.

The Freemason Street Branch is planning an International Talent event, date to be announced.

Of the annual commemoration, Miss Stevens said, "This is a time when we focus on the work we do collectively on a year-round basis and call upon our members for their support of that work." Miss Stevens pointed out that the TWCA is established in 80 countries around the world. It is engaged in a wide variety of activities overseas which included self-help projects, nutritional programs, literacy training, nursery schools, leadership development, clinics, vocational training and youth programs.

District meeting attended by five

Mrs. L.J. Bare, Mrs. R.G. Hines, Jr., Mrs. N.P. Nielsen, Mrs. M.A. Smith and Mrs. W.R. Collier, members of the Bay-side Junior Woman's Club, attended the Tidewater District Virginia Federation of Women's Club fall meeting held in the Hotel Chamberlain in Hampton.

The Junior State Director, Mrs. J.D. Rice, was there and told of a conversation between "My Vacuum Cleaner and I." This conversation, along with the whole meeting, was most entertaining and informational. The president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. J.B. Roberts, was also in attendance.

will want to back this effort. Nothing is stronger than public opinion, and the North Vietnamese cannot ignore the wishes of all the people from these two cities, especially when those wishes are all in one time. This effort will be another attempt to end the more than 100,000 American missing and prisoners who cannot return to their families.

 McAllen's ALLEY

By Carolyn McAllen

It's too early to be cheerful

Why can't people leave well-enough alone? Like I was resigned to getting up in the dark in the morning. At least the kids could play outside for awhile after supper.

Now I have to get up bright and early (so who can be cheerful at 6:30 a.m.?) then put up with the kids for two hours after supper because it's dark and they can't go outside. And it's an hour before any television program comes on for them to watch. They haven't developed much of a taste for the 6 p.m. news yet.

The time changed but the seven-year-old didn't. We played bridge an hour later Saturday night in anticipation of an hour's extra sleep. Ha! The seven-year-old always wakes up as soon as it gets light. Well, it got light shortly before 6:30 Sunday.

There's nothing that turns me off quicker than to be greeted at 6:30 a.m. by a happy smiling face. If she would just keep it to herself it would be fine. But she wants to share it with everybody.

Now I can get up. I have to. But I just don't want anybody to talk to me. The nine-year-old has to be physically dragged out of bed and set on her feet. It doesn't matter whether it's light outside or not. The six-year-old is the greatest. He sleeps until somebody wakes him up, then he very sensibly gets up, he isn't particularly cheerful, but he isn't grouchy either. Like his father.

The night situation is no better.

The kids need some time to play outside after school, but they have to do their homework first. That's fine with Daylight Savings time. Now it's dark by the time they get through. No wonder they say they don't have any.

If they wait until after supper they're too tired. I've been that route.

Of course, it's just as bad when Daylight Savings Time begins and the kids can't go to sleep until 10 because it's still light outside. Sometimes you can't win for losing.

Why not DST in the winter and Standard Time in the summer? At least the kids and mothers would be happy.

Grow vegetables in minigarden

(Editor's note: This is one of a series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Jenkins, Virginia Tech extension horticulturist.)

A kitchen or minigarden may provide an opportunity for you to practice your gardening skill during the winter. It can be an interesting hobby and will supply a limited harvest of food.

Don't be misled by publications which suggest that a complete assortment of vegetables can be grown in the house. This is utter folly. Try only about five, such as chive, parsley, pepper, tomato and radish.

You will need some pots or buckets six inches in diameter and larger. Use a fertile soil mixture with a high humus content. Provide good drainage with broken crockery and crushed stone or gravel in the bottom of each pot.

Chive is a fine crop for the kitchen garden. It grows like small onions with leaves about six inches tall. The plants prefer cool conditions and good light, but will grow quite well on a window sill in the kitchen.

One or two pots of chives will provide leaves for seasoning salads and soup. Plant seeds or small bulbs in a six inch pot. The plants should be about one inch apart over the entire surface area. It will require about twelve weeks from the time seeds are planted until leaves can be cut.

Parsley is another good crop for raising in the house. Plant seeds directly into six inch pots, or transplant young healthy plants from the garden. One vigorous plant per pot is enough. Parsley develops attractive, green, curly leaves about six or eight inches tall. It will require about ten or twelve weeks after planting the seeds before leaves can be clipped for garnish.

The Tiny Tim tomato may be raised quite satisfactorily in the home. One plant in a ten inch pot will challenge your gardening ability, and supply some small cherry size fruits which can be eaten whole or served with salad. The Tiny Tim tomato grows to a height of about twelve to fifteen inches.

You may also try the new Small Fry which is about three feet tall. The paste type tomato Roma may also be grown indoors. These will need more space than Tiny Tim and should be located on a porch or in a conservatory setting.

Some of the small fruited peppers may be grown as house plants. Like tomatoes, they prefer warm conditions and may grow quite well. Fruits will be ready to harvest from peppers and tomatoes in about ten weeks after planting.

For a quick growing crop try radishes. These will be ready to eat in four weeks. They must be grown very rapidly if they are to be crisp and succulent. Scatter radish seeds.

Kingston

The Kingston Garden Club met last week at King's Grant Presbyterian Church. The speaker was Fred Heutte, developer of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens, who spoke on unusual plants in the garden and showed specimens of some varieties of plants not often seen in the area.

Heutte also explained ways to espalier bushes. His talk was followed by a question and answer period. This led to a discussion of the Japanese Beetle problem at the Beach. The milky spore disease, when inoculated into the soil, will help to prevent the beetles from multiplying. This can be obtained from the county agent and must be done in the entire area. It would take three to four years to eradicate the beetles completely. This was done years ago in Norfolk and has been very successful.

Mrs. William A. Perkins suggested that all garden clubs in the area as well as the King's Grant Community League and King's Grant and Kingston PTA's investigate the possibility of inoculating every yard in the area with Milky Spore Disease to eradicate Japanese beetles.

Mrs. Charles Traub, anti-litter chairman, announced that the club will hold its annual Anti-Litter Poster Contest again this year at Kingston School. The deadline for entries is Oct. 30th.

A blue ribbon was awarded to Mrs. Vincent Gunn for her artistic arrangement.

Cavalier

Despite continued dry weather, Cavalier Garden Club members filled the Bay Harbour Club with flowers for their October meeting.

Each member brought a container, and Mrs. E. A. Hoffmeister, Accredited Judge and club member, instructed the flower arrangement clinic.

on moist soil in a six or eight inch pot. Cover with about one-fourth inch of soil and place a piece of glass over the pot to conserve moisture until the seeds germinate.

Plant thin young radish plants about one inch apart. Grow your radishes in cool but sunny places. An unheated side porch is fine as long as it does not freeze. Radishes will grow very poorly in a warm house with poor light.

Lake Joyce

Dr. Ann Lee spoke on the lesser known dwarf bulbs at the first fall meeting of Lake Joyce Garden Club. Beginning now is the time to plant a garden or add to an established one. She said a garden should not be a spring garden or a camellia collection but should contain something to look forward to throughout the year and should have some added attraction each year.

Dwarf bulbs suggested by Dr. Lee included:

Crocus: Snow Bunting, white with indigo blue feathering; Goldlocks, deep yellow with purple base; Firefly, lilac pink; Lady Killer, blue and white; Zwaneburg, bronze.

Iris, January blooming: Vantard, white, bulbous, native to The Holy Land; Danfordiae, bright yellow, native of Turkey, 6" tall.

Anemone: Anemone blanda or Grecian Windflowers—these are not bulbs but corms. Bright red, blue, pink and white, they are charming on the edge or borders, 5" tall.

Tulips: Chusiana, a species tulip, native to Persia and is a real gem. Outer petals cherry red, inner petals white with a deep violet base. Height about 9 to 12" on slender stems. The blooms are lasting and quite weather resistant in spite of their delicacy. Red Ridinghood, Bright Hybrid—Scarlet bloom, 12" stem, set from their sparkling color. It has variegated foliage, quite ornamental.

Blue ribbon winners were Mrs. M.K. Crockett, Dr. Lee, Mrs. B.T. Bateman, Mrs. Robert L. Mann and Mrs. Cecil H. Reed.

Be creative with pumpkin

When Halloween is with us and Thanksgiving is approaching fast, Nature catches Madison Avenue with the brilliance of her own "packaging", from the rich persimmon and the gay kumquat to the proud pumpkin, our totally American symbol of a bountiful harvest.

The pumpkin acts as a muse for children. Seized with a creative urge, they turn pumpkins into snaggle-toothed Jack O' Lanterns. Husbands demand possibilities of pies, the pumpkin leaves a cook with a long-range variety. A Coffee Pumpkin Plan is a glorious answer, for unlike pies, it is light and special. Suffice to say that once it has been tasted, it is certain to become one of the family's pleasures of the season. Of course, freshly brewed coffee is the perfect accompaniment.

COFFEE PUMPKIN PLAN
1 1/2 cups sugar, divided
1 cup canned pumpkin
1 tsp. ginger
3/4 tsp. cinnamon
1/8 tsp. each, cloves and nutmeg
1 lbs. molasses
1 lb. butter or margarine, melted
4 whole eggs
3 egg yolks
1 large can evaporated milk
1 cup strong coffee beverage

Pour 1 cup sugar into heavy frying pan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until a clear brown syrup forms. Pour syrup into 12 4 oz. ramekins, tip back and forth to coat sides of ramekins. Cool. Combine pumpkin, spices, molasses and melted butter; mix well. Beat eggs and egg yolks together; add remaining 1/2 cup sugar, evaporated milk and coffee; beat until well blended. Pour coffee mixture slowly into pumpkin mixture, mixing well. Pour into caramel-coated ramekins. Place in pan of hot water with the water on a level with the top of custard. Bake at 350 for 1 1/4 hours or until inserted knife comes out clean. Chill. Top with a trill of whipped cream. Makes 12 servings.

Follies

After the final curtain on Saturday and the back stage confusion has dimmed to a dull roar, there is a well-earned After Hours Party for cast members and friends from 1 to 4 a.m.—a fitting end to two weeks of hectic confusion!

Coffee Pumpkin Plan is a light dessert for harvest season.

Notice the wild plants along the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. The area between the highway and the boundary fences looked barren right after the road was completed, but now the wild flowers and shrubs are growing again. This massed planting along the right of way adds greatly to the motorist's pleasure.

Notice the variety of wild plants. The familiar cat tails are everywhere and so is the Scotch broom. The golden rod is beautiful this month. Notice, too, the handsome salt bush now in bloom. Perhaps you do not know this local wild plant. It is a vigorous grower and sometimes reaches tree-like size.

Kempsville Chief's Ease Out Cavaliers in Week's Shocker

There's an old adage in football, probably dreamed up by a coach with 1 losing season, which says: "On a given day, any football team of comparable status can beat any other football team."

There are some who would argue the "comparable status" part, but, nevertheless, Kempsville's Chiefs—able to boost into two wins all season—lost Friday by shocking powerful Princess Anne 26-20.

The fact that Kempsville was playing before its first homecoming at the new school might have contributed to the Chiefs' ambitious ground game against the highly favored Cavaliers. The Chiefs, not to be awed by PA's state ranking, showed their visitors no mercy, driving 83 yards in only 11 plays for their first score. Julius Hurdle, Kempsville's answer to the Cavaliers' highly-touted Jerry McGrath, ran the final 15 yards in the drive to put the Chiefs on the scoreboard.

PA refused to play dead and quickly came back with a 50-yard run off a lateral from Ronnie Wallis to Eddie Neal. The Chiefs managed to take a 13-6 halftime lead to the lockers on a one-yard plunge by Don Hauck.

It was more of the same in the second half with the Chiefs' Mike Shea snaring a 67-yard Bill Paschall pass for a touchdown. Princess Anne added touchdowns on a 27-yard pass from Al Strange to Bob Jones and a one-yard run by McGrath, but they weren't enough to stop Kempsville's homecoming victory.

In other Friday night high school action, Cox held a half-time lead of 6-0, but Kellam rallied in the second half to take its first win of the year, 12-6; Bayside fell for the second time in as many weeks to Lake Taylor, 13-12; and the Patriots of First Colonial felt no pain in overwhelming Churchill, 60-0.

Pride was the only thing at stake in the Cox-Kellam bout with both teams trying to escape with their first win of the season. The Knights' defensive team contributed half their points when Joe Shray blocked a Cox punt, then bounded into the end zone with it.

Danny Weinbrecht put six points on the board for the Falcons before halftime for Cox's only score. Kellam's Joe Mulder tied the score in the third quarter on a one-yard dive. Kellam held Cox to only 42 yards total offense and three first downs.

Bayside, still licking its wounds from its encounter with front-running Maury a week earlier, made too many mistakes and saw its record drop to 4-2-1. Lake Taylor returned two Marlins fumbles into touchdowns within a minute of each other, then outlasted Bayside.

Two pass interceptions in the last quarter stymied Bayside's final hopes. The Marlins were unable to convert after both touchdowns which ultimately accounted for their downfall. Bayside's scoring came on a four-yard run by Lloyd Bohn after a second period fumble and a 30-yard punt by Lance Platts.

First Colonial, scheduled to take on first-place Maury this week, got in a good practice session Friday at the expense of Churchill. Five Patriots crossed the Truckee goal line to ensure their homecoming win. Steve Taylor, who scored the first of eight touchdowns, gained 103 yards while teammate Weilton Cowell ran for 70 yards and caught two passes for another 40 yards.

GAMES THIS WEEK
Norview at Bayside; Booker T. Washington at Cox; Maury at First Colonial; Kellam at Granby; Indian River at Kempsville; and Princess Anne at Lake Taylor.

PREDICTIONS
Norview over Bayside
Cox over Booker T. Washington
Maury over First Colonial Kempsville over Indian River

Small scale Rose Bowl hails queen

Queen Cissy Gwinn accepts bouquet from Coach Charlie Earp.

With a few minor exceptions, the homecoming of the Arrowhead Rams over on Susquahanna Street went without a hitch. The Rams, a dynasty in miniature, had already accumulated 18 points in the first half. From all indications, the hapless Larkspur Larks would provide little more than mild exercises for the Rams. A mere statistic in the Ram won-lost column.

At halftime Saturday morning on the field beside Arrowhead Elementary, the mighty Rams' co-captains, Steve Earp and Mike Crabtree, walked casually to the end zone and picked Cissy Gwinn from among the other members of the Ram cheering squad to be Miss Ram.

Then, with all the fanfare of a small scale Rose Bowl, the pretty Miss Ram, flanked by the pair of griders, got into the backseat of a blue Cadillac convertible and was driven to the 50-yard line.

There, according to the most well-laid of plans, Miss Gwinn received flowers from Charlie Earp, the Rams' coach who doubles as Steve's dad. And, rest assured, it was a presentation befitting the front runners of the 10-pound league.

Kellam tackle John Sachon hands the Homecoming Queen ribbon to Cathy Coppino in Friday night's festivities.

At this point, it might be interesting to note that, though the league is called the 10-pound league, Mike Crabtree's little brother doesn't actually tip the scales at 10. Even though he weighs in at only 67 pounds (probably with pads and helmet, you don't underestimate his football credentials. Unfortunately for the Larks, they discounted his 67-pound frame.

At any rate, the game would have made most football coaches proud. Except for Dusty, undoubtedly the most avid of the Rams' cadre supporters, stopped the game several times with his frequent trips to the Ram huddle. Finally, a Ram booster collared Dusty who spent the remainder of the game on the sidelines beside the bench, lapping occasionally at a puddle of water from a recent rain.

But, probably the highlight of the affair was when the Ram mascot, a flop-eared goat wearing a blue blanket, ate a sign proclaiming the Rams No. 1. Probably no one noticed. For on the field, the Crabtree of the 67-pound variety had just snared another pass, sending the Larks into that bottomless oblivion called defeat.

Miss Bryan Cox Queen

Kathy Bryan was recently elected Homecoming Queen for Cox High School. She was crowned by last year's queen, Marianne Martini during half-time ceremonies in a game with Kempville.

Other queen nominees were Sherry Beard, Nancy Longworth and Ann Rittenhouse. Class attendants were Kim Litz, 8th grade; Nancy Magee, 9th grade; Carolyn Felton, 10th grade; and Linda Cowling, 11th grade.

Theme for the Homecoming festivities was "Reflections." All class and club floats followed this theme. The class of '73 had the winning float.

Following the game there was a S.C.A. reception in the cafeteria for returning alumni. The dance featured Black River Circus and was held in the gym.

By Jon Sagester

Admiral HEINZ previews some of the WWII photography on display at the new museum.

Tuesday was NAVY DAY. Among the celebrations at Little Creek was the opening of the Amphibious Museum. The museum is housed in the former fleet landing building near the base dispensary and the public is invited to visit. Among the exhibits are "combat art painted by 'who's who' artists, amphibious vehicles, a practice Apollo spacecraft capsule, landing craft models, artifacts from ships recently retired, photographs of riverine scenes, pen-and-ink drawings of historic events, mannequins in combat dress, a variety of weapons, and a prisoner-of-war room - all this and more will be there."

Workmen unveil the sign above the front entrance to the new museum.

Vice Admiral LUTHER C. HEINZ, Commander Amphibious Force, Atlantic, gives a final inspection of the Amphibious Museum before the Opening as workmen add the finishing touches.

These are the days when boat owners are getting ready for the winter. CHARLES HEEB and LLOYD WINCHESTER have just finished putting a new engine in their boat and are getting it ready for a new paint job.

Virginia Beach 4-H Club members draw for steers

The drawing was held at the Adams Farm near Nimmo Church. One of those doing the drawing was SUSAN CAROL CONNER 8.

Last Wednesday was a big day in the lives of several Virginia Beach 4-H club members. That was the day drawings were held for sixteen steers. The members, boys and girls between the ages of nine and sixteen, drew lots to see which steer they would take home and care for the next six months.

WADE RIGGS 11, gets acquainted with his new charge, a Charolais. A relatively new breed to this country, the Charolais comes from France and produces more lean meat per pound than any cattle known.

UPDIKE found that the youngsters were very attentive as he explained the proper way of tying cattle and of approaching them.

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, which sponsors the annual event, will present awards to winners at a banquet next year.

GLENN UPDIKE, VPI Cooperative Extension Service Agent, advised and demonstrated the care and feeding of the animals.

Beach policeman uses historic bricks in new home addition

Virginia Beach Police Sergeant LEONARD F. CAPPS is a man who always knows what he's going to be doing on his days off. Sergeant CAPPS has spent much of his off duty time in the past few years building a den and playroom building detached from his home at Creeds.

Each stone in the fireplace was fitted in place by SERGEANT CAPPS. Considering the number of small stones or pebbles, this in itself was a time consuming job.

The beams in SERGEANT CAPPS' building were made by splitting 12 inch sleepers. The brick used in the building were acquired when the old ACKISS farm or the old BRICKHOUSE house, below Creeds School at Blossom Hill, was torn down. The brick were made in England and were brought over as ships ballast over two hundred years ago.

Northeast blow makes beach a collectors paradise

Northeast winds such as we have experienced during the past several days frequently uncover strange things along the beach South of Rudee Inlet, C. O. Barco who enjoys trips along the stretch to False Cape, inspects what is believed to be the remains of an ancient forest.

Another benefit of the Nor'easter is the usual abundance of shells which are washed ashore, creating a collector's haven.

The Porsche 914

The car with the engine in the front is called the Audi.

It stops differently, turns differently, moves differently, even uses gas differently than just about every other car in the world. (Sixty-one years of German engineering experience has taught us a few things.)

The car with the engine in the rear is the Porsche 911.

A true classic in sports cars. And a classic in engineering. In fact, over the past twenty-one years Porsches have proven to be so well engineered, so precise, that they've won more than one thousand major races.

And the car without an engine in the front or the back is the Porsche 914.

We put the engine in the middle so the 914 would hold the road better, corner surer, and brake smoother than almost any other car.

At the auto show we'll be glad to show what our cars look like in real life. We're very proud of them.

Surfers Are A Hardy Lot

Even though the temperature of water and air was in the sixties Saturday, there were many surfers out. Some wore wet suits against the cold but the more hardy didn't bother.

Servicemen Excel

Army Sergeant ALLEN M. HAWKES, JR., son of MR. and MRS. ALLEN M. HAWKES, SR., of 3029 Coach House Lane, Virginia Beach, Virginia, has been named as the "Soldier of the Month" for September at Ft. Jackson. He received the Certificate of Achievement in the offices of MAJOR GENERAL WILLIAM S. COLEMAN, post commander.

The Vietnam veteran who is attending the Third Army Drill Sergeants School at the fort, won the award after he represented his company before a series of questioning boards. He was quizzed concerning various general military matters, personal appearance and military bearing.

HAWKES, a 1968 graduate of Floyd E. Kellam High School in Virginia Beach, attended Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Virginia, before entering the Army in March 1968.

For Navy pilot LIEUTENANT LARRY McATEE, flying airplanes and winning golf tournaments has proven to be a good combination, and this summer was no exception.

McATEE, who flies the F-8 Crusader jet and US-2C for Fleet Composite Squadron Four (VC-4) based at Naval Air Station Oceana, Va., added the prestigious 1970 Interservice champion title to his lengthy list of military titles since joining the Navy four years ago. Along with winning the individual title, he led the five-man Navy team to the team championship.

For winning the Interservice title, McATEE will receive a special invitation to play in the BOB HOPE Classic. He praises the Navy for the sports program it has available to its personnel and feels fortunate to be a representative in the program. The Navy is fortunate to have such a representative.

Harvest Time—Halloween

This scene should bring back memories to many. It's very seldom now that a farmer leaves his corn in shocks in the field. The frost had not yet hit the pumpkin but the young lady was ready for Halloween. The IN SIGHT photographer found this harvest scene in Brunswick County near Lawrenceville, Va.
